,000 Flee as Floods, Winds Sweep California

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — Torrential rains, whipped along on gale force winds, continued to sweep across four Pacific Northwest states today, imperiling scores of cities and towns and causing millions of dollars of damage.

Six persons have died and three rescuers were missing in the two-day storm that forced at least 5,000 persons to flee before the raging waters of a dozen flood-swollen mountain rivers.

A helicopter with three Coast Guardmen aboard was missing after evacuating 10 people off an island in California's Eel River.

Federal, state, and local disaster units worked frantically through the night in 65-mile-an-hour winds to complete evacuation of towns while the storm raged. The Weather Bureau predicted no let up today.

Another storm, about 700 miles off the coast, was expected to bring more rain by Christmas, the Weather Bureau forecast.

California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown at midday declared four northwestern counties disaster areas and appealed for federal assistance. Five other hard-hit northern counties sent urgent pleas to the state capitol for relief.

In Oregon, Gov. Mark Hatfield issued the disaster call and placed the National Guard on alert.

Gov. Grant Sawyer called out the Nevada National Guard to help workmen sandbag storefronts in downtown Reno as the Truckee River's flood waters spilled out of the Sierra into the heart of town.

Idaho's National Guardsmen were put on emergency duty by Gov. Robert E. Smilie, and 50 men were rushed to the beleaguered town of Bancroft in the southeastern part of the state.

Natural disaster seemed the order of the day. San Diego was hit by an earthquake, causing panic in the downtown area and widespread, but minor, damage.

Four drownings were blamed on the storm in Oregon. Dr. Robert Dickson, 60, of Chinook, Mont. drowned when the bridge over Interstate 808 gave way and he was thrown into the John Day River. Edward Kilgore, 48, of Sutherlinn, Ore., and Ella

South Viets Blast U.S. Interference; Threaten to Fight Alone Against Reds

By RAY F. HERNDON

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — South Vietnamese military leaders were reported today to be considering a proposal that they adopt a go-it-alone policy without American help in the anti-Communist war.

Usually reliable sources said Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, commander in chief of the armed forces, proposed a campaign of sustained anti-Americanism at a meeting Tuesday of the generals who purged the civilian high national council and arrested some of its members.

The move brought criticism from the U.S. government and pressure from U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor to restore the high council or risk a revision of plans for major increases in American aid.

But the sources said Khanh told the generals the army could get along without American aid. They said he also told the generals they no longer should tolerate Taylor's efforts to force them to free the arrested civilians and to reinstate the council, the nation's acting legislature.

Sec. Rusk Asks Viet Chiefs to Stop Bickering

By DONALD H. MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk appealed to the leaders of South Viet Nam today to put aside personal rivalries and get on with the war against the Communists.

Rusk told a news conference that unity in the South Vietnamese government would be worth "many, many divisions" of troops in fighting Communist guerrillas.

Rusk made clear, however, the United States has no intention of pulling out of South Viet Nam.

He said the lesson of the last two decades of world history is that a persistent course of aggression left unchecked can only lead to a general war.

Santa to Find Space Is Full of 'Traffic'

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — When Santa Claus makes his chimney-to-chimney goodwill journey Thursday night he may find that space resembles a freeway at rush hour.

He might be wise to equip his sleigh with control jets or retro-rockets so he and his reindeer can maneuver through the jam of fast-moving satellites and "space junk" orbited by man.

The latest count shows there are 297 man-made objects racing through space at altitudes from 100 miles to several million miles.

These are satellites, dead and alive; burned out rocket casings, and fragments of metal which have fallen off satellites or rockets. They are widely-scattered and Santa should have little trouble weaving around them.

But he'd better have his radar on the alert for a cluster of 202 small fragments which are orbiting close together. They are the fallout from a U.S. Transit navigation satellite rocket which disintegrated in 1961.

If Santa doesn't want to become a pincushion, he'd detour around the band of Project West Ford space needles. These are 400 million hair-thin copper wires, called dipoles, launched in 1962 in a communications experiment. They are about 2,000 miles up and form a continuous north-to-south belt around the earth about five miles wide and 25 miles thick.

The orbiting objects are what remain of more than 600 pieces of hardware — excluding the needles and transit debris — shot into space by the United States and Soviet Union since Sputnik 1 was launched Oct. 4, 1957.

Sabotage Missions May Be Planned by Cuba Reds

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON —(Special) — Communist North Vietnamese and Viet Cong military personnel are appearing in Cuba with full battle gear.

These combat-tested guerrillas are arriving aboard Soviet bloc ships under security measures as tight as those used to sneak Russian missiles into Cuba in 1962.

An intelligence estimate, circulated only in highest government levels, warns that "several hundred" of these Asian Communist troops already are on the island and others are enroute on vessels that had carried sugar to North Viet Nam.

Although their ominous mission is as mysteriously cloaked as their unannounced arrival, the North Vietnamese troops appear to be replacing Soviet combat troops and military advisers in Russian-controlled units strategically located in heavily-guarded coastal areas.

Some of the North Vietnamese officers are being assigned to espionage-guerrilla camps where Latin American and some U.S. Negro Communists are undergoing intensive training in the use of small arms and demolition charges.

These unpublished details and other secret information about the North Vietnamese troops' arrival in Cuba have come from Western businessmen visiting Havana, Cuban refugees with contacts on the island, and intelligence sources in Mexico where the elite of the North Vietnamese have clandestinely met with other Communist espionage agents.

THE FUTURE DANGER

Condemnation Suit Filed To Add 45,131 Carson Acres

DENVER (UPI) — Suit was filed in U.S. District Court late Tuesday to begin condemnation proceedings to acquire 45,131 acres of land to add to Ft. Carson.

Federal officials hope to add the land to the Army reservation which now covers about 60,000 acres south of Colorado Springs. The land involved in the suit is part of a total of 76,000 acres in three counties which the Army wants.

The remainder of the land is owned by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management and the state of Colorado.

The condemnation suit names 65 defendants, including the boards of county commissioners in El Paso, Pueblo and Fremont counties.

The federal government already has appropriated $1.9 million to acquire the extra land which Army officials said was needed for proper training of the Fifth Infantry Division (Mechanized).

Bids for Carson Building Plans Are Announced

Bids for a multi-million dollar building complex at Ft. Carson were opened Tuesday by the Omaha District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Hensel-Phelps Construction Co., Greeley, was the apparent low bidder. Their bid of $10,465,495 was the lowest of 14 bids from eight states.

The government had estimated the project would cost $12,293,200. Almost 300 persons attended the opening.

The project includes construction of 10 three-story barracks buildings for enlisted men and a three-story headquarters building. Each barracks will have 40,750 square feet.

Other construction under the contract will be a unit chapel, gymnasium, post exchange, four

No Immediate Results Seen In Dock Talks

By RONNIE THOMPSON

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson's peacemaker in the contract dispute between Gulf Coast longshoremen and shippers tried today to get both sides around the bargaining table again. He said no immediate results were expected.

Assistant Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds held separate meetings Tuesday with representatives of the International Longshoremen's Association and the West Gulf Maritime Industry.

Reynolds said he feels that "there is a lot of misunderstanding that can be cleared up," and thus possibly avert a dock strike the length of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

While union leaders have approved a proposed new contract with New York shippers, the Gulf Coast ILA — involving ports from Lake Charles, La., to Brownsville, Tex. — is at a

Another U.S. Advisor Killed In Viet War

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A U.S. Army adviser was killed today by Viet Cong fire and another American was reported missing.

The dead American, an enlisted man, was accompanying a patrol that ran into a Viet Cong platoon of about 40 men near the North Vietnamese border. He was struck in the head and died in an evacuating helicopter, military sources said.

He was the 239th American to die in combat in Viet Nam since the United States stepped up its war effort in December 1962.

The missing adviser was on an operation farther south in the coastal province of Vinh Binh. No details of the operation were available.

A U.S. military spokesman said that 170 Vietnamese government troops were killed last week and 480 were wounded compared with 275 Viet Cong deaths. The spokesman said large-scale Communist operations decreased but the Viet Cong stepped up smaller operations.

Quadruplets Pose Big Christmas Gift Problem

By DON BANDY

CINCINNATI, Ohio AP) — A biblical quartet of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John adds to the Christmas spirit — and problems — at the Robert L. Mincey home.

"It's trouble enough buying for five, but when your family's been increased by four in the same year — wow!" said Mincey, whose quadruplet sons celebrate their first Christmas Friday.

"We're not planning anything special for them — except to get them some more diapers and other baby things," said Mincey. "There will be some toys, too. They're too young for much else."

The identical youngsters were seven months old Tuesday.

"They're good babies. Just like angels," said Mincey's wife, Willie Mae, 39. "After I put them to bed that's usually it until morning."

Mincey, 44, already had four boys to buy gifts for — Dudley, 17, Robert Jr., 12, Wil[illegible] Lewis, 10, and Michael, 7 — plus one girl, Betty Jo, 16.

This is a special Christmas for the family for another reason.

"Our Christmas is really this new house," Mincey, a drill press operator, said, "and we sure needed it."

The Minceys moved just a few days ago from a three-bedroom house into a two-story one with five bedrooms — one a dormitory room for the quads. Neighbors raised money to help them get the house.

The quads are identified — even by their parents — by bracelets.

Only John can be told apart "because he weighs the least," Mincey said. "He was born last." Matthew, Mark and Luke each weigh about 16 pounds.

Mrs. Mincey said she has only one real problem. "They all want their bottle at the same time."

Betty Jo, though, as the only girl in the family has had some added chores.

She knows what she'd like for Christmas: "A sister."

U.S. Air Force to Get New Chief and Giant Airplane

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force, heading into the new year with bright prospects for a new giant plane of hemisphere-spanning range, will get a new commander Feb. 1.

Emerging from a meeting with President Johnson in Texas Tuesday, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced:

—Gen. John P. McConnell, 56, will become the new chief of staff of the Air Force when Gen. Curtis E. LeMay retires Feb. 1. McConnell, now vice chief of staff of the Air Force, is a strategic warfare expert.

—The Air Force proposal for a start on blueprinting a plane so enormous as to dwarf the largest now flying has been approved by McNamara and Johnson. The sky giant would be designed to carry 600 men or 250 tons of cargo great distances.

Funds for beginning development of the C5A will be included in the new military budget. Everything about the big plane is on a grand scale. Just to decide on the exact design, then design it, test it and build some experimental models will cost about $750 million; to build 58 such planes in a production program — which would constitute three squadrons — would cost about $1 billion, in addition to the development.

McNamara, talking to newsmen at Johnson City, Tex., seemed confident that the first experimental model would be flying in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1968. A contract to begin actual development could come in the next six or seven months.

The concept for the C5A is an extremely long-range, large-cargo aircraft to provide true global air mobility — a craft that will fly nonstop for more than 6,000 miles and be able to unload 600 men or 250 tons of cargo at destinations approaching this range, depending on load-fuel factors.

The Air Force says it would be subsonic in speed, probably about 550 miles an hour.

McNamara took pains to disassociate the C5A project from the nonmilitary project for development of a supersonic commercial transport. The C5A would lift far more people over long distances at far less cost than a supersonic aircraft and would take off and land on much shorter runways, its sponsors believe.

Three Cubans Charged With U.N. Bomb Plot

By BERNIE GOULD

NEW YORK (AP) — Three Cubans, identified as officials of an anti-Castro exile group, have been charged with taking part in the Dec. 11 bazooka shot at the United Nations building.

They were quoted as saying they purposely missed the 38-story East River skyscraper; that their motive was to take newspaper headlines from Ernesto Guevara, Cuban minister of industry, who was speaking to the U.N. General Assembly at the time.

Guevara is the No. 2 man in the Communist regime of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Little Girl Is Allergic to Christmas Tree

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Two-year-old Kitty Wolcott has a Christmas problem she is taking in stride. Her trouble: she's allergic to the Christmas tree.

She has big red spots all over her arms and face.

"She sort of blends in with the other Christmas decorations," said James W. Wolcott of his daughter.

"Everytime she goes near the tree she breaks out in a rash. It didn't seem to bother her last year.

"She started breaking out when she helped decorate the tree last Friday. We took her to an allergist and he immediately diagnosed the problem.

"We explained to Kitty about her allergy and told her she could look at the tree but 'mustn't touch'. She has been real good about it. She's taking it in stride."

Kitty wears stocking mittens on her arms and hands to keep from scratching. A doctor said the resin in trees causes the rash. Kitty doesn't get sick, but she "becomes pretty miserable" at times, Wolcott said.

"We've been thinking of buying artificial trees from now on," he said. "The tree we have now comes down the day after Christmas."

Mrs. Wolcott suggested: "We could buy a real tree again next year, but put it out on the patio and look at it through the window."

U.S. to Escape Major Flu Outbreak, Medics Think

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Public Health Service predicts the nation will escape any big flu outbreak this winter.

There have been only a few local concentrations of Asian or other types of influenza so far this year. There probably would have been many more if a major epidemic were imminent, the service noted.

The agency again recommended vaccinations, especially for those in "high risk" groups —pregnant women, the elderly and those with heart trouble or other chronic diseases.

In response to questions, health service officials said all signs indicate no widespread epidemic will hit the country, although there is always the possibility of localized outbreaks.

The present situation, they said, bears out forecasts made last summer by an advisory committee to the surgeon general.

In general, those forecasts were that the 1964-65 winter season shapes up as a comparatively light year on flu for two reasons:

1. As regards Asian,, or type A-2 flu —the newest and most

Sabotage Missions May Be Planned by Cuba Reds

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON —(Special) — Communist North Vietnamese and Viet Cong military personnel are appearing in Cuba with full battle gear.

These combat-tested guerrillas are arriving aboard Soviet bloc ships under security measures as tight as those used to sneak Russian missiles into Cuba in 1962.

An intelligence estimate, circulated only in highest government levels, warns that "several hundred" of these Asian Communist troops already are on the island and others are enroute on vessels that had carried sugar to North Viet Nam.

Although their ominous mission is as mysteriously cloaked as their unannounced arrival, the North Vietnamese troops appear to be replacing Soviet combat troops and military advisers in Russian-controlled units strategically located in heavily-guarded coastal areas.

Some of the North Vietnamese officers are being assigned to espionage-guerrilla camps where Latin American and some U.S. Negro Communists are undergoing intensive training in the use of small arms and demolition charges.

These unpublished details and other secret information about the North Vietnamese troops' arrival in Cuba have come from Western businessmen visiting Havana, Cuban refugees with contacts on the island, and intelligence sources in Mexico where the elite of the North Vietnamese have clandestinely met with other Communist espionage agents.

THE FUTURE DANGER

Condemnation Suit Filed To Add 45,131 Carson Acres

DENVER (UPI) — Suit was filed in U.S. District Court late Tuesday to begin condemnation proceedings to acquire 45,131 acres of land to add to Ft. Carson.

Federal officials hope to add the land to the Army reservation which now covers about 60,000 acres south of Colorado Springs. The land involved in the suit is part of a total of 76,000 acres in three counties which the Army wants.

The remainder of the land is owned by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management and the state of Colorado.

The condemnation suit names 65 defendants, including the boards of county commissioners in El Paso, Pueblo and Fremont counties.

The federal government already has appropriated $1.9 million to acquire the extra land which Army officials said was needed for proper training of the Fifth Infantry Division (Mechanized).

Bids for Carson Building Plans Are Announced

Bids for a multi-million dollar building complex at Ft. Carson were opened Tuesday by the Omaha District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Hensel-Phelps Construction Co., Greeley, was the apparent low bidder. Their bid of $10,465,495 was the lowest of 14 bids from eight states.

The government had estimated the project would cost $12,293,200. Almost 300 persons attended the opening.

The project includes construction of 10 three-story barracks buildings for enlisted men and a three-story headquarters building. Each barracks will have 40,750 square feet.

Other construction under the contract will be a unit chapel, gymnasium, post exchange, four

No Immediate Results Seen In Dock Talks

By RONNIE THOMPSON

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson's peacemaker in the contract dispute between Gulf Coast longshoremen and shippers tried today to get both sides around the bargaining table again. He said no immediate results were expected.

Assistant Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds held separate meetings Tuesday with representatives of the International Longshoremen's Association and the West Gulf Maritime Industry.

Reynolds said he feels that "there is a lot of misunderstanding that can be cleared up," and thus possibly avert a dock strike the length of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

While union leaders have approved a proposed new contract with New York shippers, the Gulf Coast ILA — involving ports from Lake Charles, La., to Brownsville, Tex. — is at a

Another U.S. Advisor Killed In Viet War

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A U.S. Army adviser was killed today by Viet Cong fire and another American was reported missing.

The dead American, an enlisted man, was accompanying a patrol that ran into a Viet Cong platoon of about 40 men near the North Vietnamese border. He was struck in the head and died in an evacuating helicopter, military sources said.

He was the 239th American to die in combat in Viet Nam since the United States stepped up its war effort in December 1962.

The missing adviser was on an operation farther south in the coastal province of Vinh Binh. No details of the operation were available.

A U.S. military spokesman said that 170 Vietnamese government troops were killed last week and 480 were wounded compared with 275 Viet Cong deaths. The spokesman said large-scale Communist operations decreased but the Viet Cong stepped up smaller operations.

Quadruplets Pose Big Christmas Gift Problem

By DON BANDY

CINCINNATI, Ohio AP) — A biblical quartet of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John adds to the Christmas spirit — and problems — at the Robert L. Mincey home.

"It's trouble enough buying for five, but when your family's been increased by four in the same year — wow!" said Mincey, whose quadruplet sons celebrate their first Christmas Friday.

"We're not planning anything special for them — except to get them some more diapers and other baby things," said Mincey. "There will be some toys, too. They're too young for much else."

The identical youngsters were seven months old Tuesday.

"They're good babies. Just like angels," said Mincey's wife, Willie Mae, 39. "After I put them to bed that's usually it until morning."

Mincey, 44, already had four boys to buy gifts for — Dudley, 17, Robert Jr., 12, Wil[illegible] Lewis, 10, and Michael, 7 — plus one girl, Betty Jo, 16.

This is a special Christmas for the family for another reason.

"Our Christmas is really this new house," Mincey, a drill press operator, said, "and we sure needed it."

The Minceys moved just a few days ago from a three-bedroom house into a two-story one with five bedrooms — one a dormitory room for the quads. Neighbors raised money to help them get the house.

The quads are identified — even by their parents — by bracelets.

Only John can be told apart "because he weighs the least," Mincey said. "He was born last." Matthew, Mark and Luke each weigh about 16 pounds.

Mrs. Mincey said she has only one real problem. "They all want their bottle at the same time."

Betty Jo, though, as the only girl in the family has had some added chores.

She knows what she'd like for Christmas: "A sister."

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force, heading into the new year with bright prospects for a new giant plane of hemisphere-spanning range, will get a new commander Feb. 1.

Emerging from a meeting with President Johnson in Texas Tuesday, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced:

—Gen. John P. McConnell, 56, will become the new chief of staff of the Air Force when Gen. Curtis E. LeMay retires Feb. 1. McConnell, now vice chief of staff of the Air Force, is a strategic warfare expert.

—The Air Force proposal for a start on blueprinting a plane so enormous as to dwarf the largest now flying has been approved by McNamara and Johnson. The sky giant would be designed to carry 600 men or 250 tons of cargo great distances.

Funds for beginning development of the C5A will be included in the new military budget. Everything about the big plane is on a grand scale. Just to decide on the exact design, then design it, test it and build some experimental models will cost about $750 million; to build 58 such planes in a production program — which would constitute three squadrons — would cost about $1 billion, in addition to the development.

McNamara, talking to newsmen at Johnson City, Tex., seemed confident that the first experimental model would be flying in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1968. A contract to begin actual development could come in the next six or seven months.

The concept for the C5A is an extremely long-range, large-cargo aircraft to provide true global air mobility — a craft that will fly nonstop for more than 6,000 miles and be able to unload 600 men or 250 tons of cargo at destinations approaching this range, depending on load-fuel factors.

The Air Force says it would be subsonic in speed, probably about 550 miles an hour.

McNamara took pains to disassociate the C5A project from the nonmilitary project for development of a supersonic commercial transport. The C5A would lift far more people over long distances at far less cost than a supersonic aircraft and would take off and land on much shorter runways, its sponsors believe.

Three Cubans Charged With U.N. Bomb Plot

By BERNIE GOULD

NEW YORK (AP) — Three Cubans, identified as officials of an anti-Castro exile group, have been charged with taking part in the Dec. 11 bazooka shot at the United Nations building.

They were quoted as saying they purposely missed the 38-story East River skyscraper; that their motive was to take newspaper headlines from Ernesto Guevara, Cuban minister of industry, who was speaking to the U.N. General Assembly at the time.

Guevara is the No. 2 man in the Communist regime of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The three Cubans were booked Tuesday night in

Little Girl Is Allergic to Christmas Tree

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Two-year-old Kitty Wolcott has a Christmas problem she is taking in stride. Her trouble: she's allergic to the Christmas tree.

She has big red spots all over her arms and face.

"She sort of blends in with the other Christmas decorations," said James W. Wolcott of his daughter.

"Everytime she goes near the tree she breaks out in a rash. It didn't seem to bother her last year.

"She started breaking out when she helped decorate the tree last Friday. We took her to an allergist and he immediately diagnosed the problem.

"We explained to Kitty about her allergy and told her she could look at the tree but 'mustn't touch'. She has been real good about it. She's taking it in stride."

Kitty wears stocking mittens on her arms and hands to keep from scratching. A doctor said the resin in trees causes the rash. Kitty doesn't get sick, but she "becomes pretty miserable" at times, Wolcott said.

"We've been thinking of buying artificial trees from now on," he said. "The tree we have now comes down the day after Christmas."

Mrs. Wolcott suggested: "We could buy a real tree again next year, but put it out on the patio and look at it through the window."

Sec. Rusk Asks Viet Chiefs to Stop Bickering

By DONALD H. MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk appealed to the leaders of South Viet Nam today to put aside personal rivalries and get on with the war against the Communists.

Rusk told a news conference that unity in the South Vietnamese government would be worth "many, many divisions" of troops in fighting Communist guerrillas.

Rusk made clear, however, the United States has no intention of pulling out of South Viet Nam.

He said the lesson of the last two decades of world history is that a persistent course of aggression left unchecked can only lead to a general war.

U.S. to Escape Major Flu Outbreak, Medics Think

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Public Health Service predicts the nation will escape any big flu outbreak this winter.

There have been only a few local concentrations of Asian or other types of influenza so far this year. There probably would have been many more if a major epidemic were imminent, the service noted.

The agency again recommended vaccinations, especially for those in "high risk" groups —pregnant women, the elderly and those with heart trouble or other chronic diseases.

In response to questions, health service officials said all signs indicate no widespread epidemic will hit the country, although there is always the possibility of localized outbreaks.

The present situation, they said, bears out forecasts made last summer by an advisory committee to the surgeon general.

In general, those forecasts were that the 1964-65 winter season shapes up as a comparatively light year on flu for two reasons:

1. As regards Asian,, or type A-2 flu —the newest and most

ANKLE IS SOUND NOW

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP) — But for an ankle injury which sidelined him at Hialeah last winter, Kelso, world money-winning champion with $1,893,362, might now be the first thoroughbred to earn $2 million.

Before his mishap, Kelso won the Royal Palm, Seminole and Widener Handicaps. The three races yielded $159,090.

Embattled TFX Plan Goes On Test Hop

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The sleek fighter plane which figured in the stormy TFX debate successfully executed an airborne test Monday although a minor malfunction cut short the maiden flight.

The supersonic F111, a multipurpose craft commonly called the TFX, made a 21-minute test hop from Carswell Air Force Base and its brief performance brought praise from any quarters.

Citations came from both the Air Force and the Navy, for whom the swept-wing aircraft was designed.

The test was scheduled for 40 minutes but was cut in half because the two-man crew was unable to retract the plane's wing flaps after takeoff.

Project directors called the malfunction minor and said a second test would come in a week or 10 days.

Test pilot Richard L. Johnson and copilot Val E. Prahl flew the craft at a top speed of 230 miles per hour. Plans had called for a maximum speed of just under 350 m.p.h.

The plane reached an altitude of more than 15,000 feet.

Despite the apparent success of the initial flight, there were reports that the project is encountering cost problems and that the Navy is disturbed about what it considers the F111's excessive weight.

Frank W. Davis, president of General Dynamics' Fort Worth plant, where the plane was assembled, said this was not the case.

"It's not as far as I'm concerned," he said. "We're just about on cost and we're 10 days ahead of schedule."

He said if the Navy is unhappy, "you'll have to talk to the Navy about that."

The Navy's project supervisor, Capt. Donald C. Davis, said: "It sure looked wonderful. I'd put 'Navy' on it right now."

Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert, describing himself as a "most happy fellow," declared: "This successful accomplishment of a milestone in a program of great importance to our national security is indeed significant.

"The versatility of this aircraft promises to meet the demands for mobility, supersonic performance and great striking power."

Johnson, a slender, crewcut man in white coveralls, said he "enjoyed the flight thoroughly." "I was a little bit more than pleasantly surprised with the takeoff and landing performance," he added.

"All in all," said Frank Davis, "we consider it very successful."

The F111 features a variable sweep wing concept which enables the tactical machine to spread its wings for slow flight and tuck them in for high speeds. It is capable of flying 2.5 times the speed of sound.

The initial flight was made with the wings fixed at a 26-degree angle. It used only 3,000 feet of Carswell's 12,000-foot runway for takeoff.

France Observes Real Feast Day on Yule

PARIS (UPI) — Frenchmen take a lot of pleasure in proving that Christmas is a feast day.

It's a trencherman's delight.

A Catholic country despite rampant anti-clericism, France fills its churches at midnight Christmas Eve.

In November and December the stores are hot-boxes of crushed humanity as the nation goes on a buying spree as heady as any you would expect to see in Buffalo, Detroit or Atlanta.

The children find their presents Christmas morn in slippers under the mantelpiece or the Christmas tree, much as those in America find them in stockings hung the night before.

But first, Christmas Eve, and foremost, into the wee hours of Christmas morning, this is a feast day, a day for eating, drinking.

Families start nibbling late the night of Dec. 24. They take a break for mass at midnight. And then they settle down to stuff themselves into the dawn of the 25th.

In Provence, deep in the south, they traditionally eat up to 13 kinds of desserts in a kind of gastronomic marathon.

But everywhere, when the family can afford it, and sometimes when it can't, the meal begins with pate de foie gras—the rich truffle-flavored paste made from the livers of overfed geese.

This is followed by the turkey, fast becoming a tradition in economically burgeoning France.

And finally comes the "buche de Noel," a creamy chocolate Christmas cake that sticks to the ribs.

When the money is there, champagne washes it all down. Otherwise, white wine does fine.

What happens to the children? They sleep. What happens when it's time to open the presents? The world isn't so different from place to place. The reveling adults are groggy, but they're there.

People come home for Christmas. It is a feast, but it is a family feast.

Cancer Discovery Reported in France

PARIS (AP) — Four French doctors have made what they believe is a new discovery in the cultivation of cancerous growths.

The doctors, led by Prof. Bernard Halpern, reported to the Academy of Sciences Monday that separate cancerous cells cultivated under special conditions tend to stick together and form a cancerous "structure." Healthy cells treated under the same conditions did not form into a mass.

When the massed cancerous cells are grafted onto a healthy animal, the animal quickly develops malignant tumors, the doctors reported.

Cancer Discovery Reported in France

PARIS (AP) — Four French doctors have made what they believe is a new discovery in the cultivation of cancerous growths.

The doctors, led by Prof. Bernard Halpern, reported to the Academy of Sciences Monday that separate cancerous cells cultivated under special conditions tend to stick together and form a cancerous "structure." Healthy cells treated under the same conditions did not form into a mass.

When the massed cancerous cells are grafted onto a healthy animal, the animal quickly develops malignant tumors, the doctors reported.

Shapely Leg Exposure Blasted in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet health official today criticized style-conscious young women who expose shapely legs to the Russian winter in flimsy nylons.

"One has to take into account our Russian climate. One can't blindly imitate foreign fashions. In France and Italy the winters are milder and warmer," she said in an interview in the youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda.

ANKLE IS SOUND NOW

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP) — But for an ankle injury which sidelined him at Hialeah last winter, Kelso, world money-winning champion with $1,893,362, might now be the first thoroughbred to earn $2 million.

Before his mishap, Kelso won the Royal Palm, Seminole and Widener Handicaps. The three races yielded $159,090.

Embattled TFX Plan Goes On Test Hop

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The sleek fighter plane which figured in the stormy TFX debate successfully executed an airborne test Monday although a minor malfunction cut short the maiden flight.

The supersonic F111, a multipurpose craft commonly called the TFX, made a 21-minute test hop from Carswell Air Force Base and its brief performance brought praise from any quarters.

Citations came from both the Air Force and the Navy, for whom the swept-wing aircraft was designed.

The test was scheduled for 40 minutes but was cut in half because the two-man crew was unable to retract the plane's wing flaps after takeoff.

Project directors called the malfunction minor and said a second test would come in a week or 10 days.

Test pilot Richard L. Johnson and copilot Val E. Prahl flew the craft at a top speed of 230 miles per hour. Plans had called for a maximum speed of just under 350 m.p.h.

The plane reached an altitude of more than 15,000 feet.

Despite the apparent success of the initial flight, there were reports that the project is encountering cost problems and that the Navy is disturbed about what it considers the F111's excessive weight.

Frank W. Davis, president of General Dynamics' Fort Worth plant, where the plane was assembled, said this was not the case.

"It's not as far as I'm concerned," he said. "We're just about on cost and we're 10 days ahead of schedule."

He said if the Navy is unhappy, "you'll have to talk to the Navy about that."

The Navy's project supervisor, Capt. Donald C. Davis, said: "It sure looked wonderful. I'd put 'Navy' on it right now."

Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert, describing himself as a "most happy fellow," declared: "This successful accomplishment of a milestone in a program of great importance to our national security is indeed significant.

"The versatility of this aircraft promises to meet the demands for mobility, supersonic performance and great striking power."

Johnson, a slender, crewcut man in white coveralls, said he "enjoyed the flight thoroughly." "I was a little bit more than pleasantly surprised with the takeoff and landing performance," he added.

"All in all," said Frank Davis, "we consider it very successful."

The F111 features a variable sweep wing concept which enables the tactical machine to spread its wings for slow flight and tuck them in for high speeds. It is capable of flying 2.5 times the speed of sound.

The initial flight was made with the wings fixed at a 26-degree angle. It used only 3,000 feet of Carswell's 12,000-foot runway for takeoff.

Public Cooperation Seen in U.S. Mailing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans have shown "unprecedented public cooperation" in their Christmas mailing this year and 99 per cent of the cards and packages will be delivered by Christmas Eve, says Postmaster General John A. Gronouski.

The Postmaster General said in a statement Monday that a record of 7 billion pieces of Christmas mail will have been delivered by Thursday night. Last year's figure was just under 7 billion.

"MUTUAL" TALKS

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI)—Presidents Anastas Mikoyan of Russia and Urho Kekkonen of Finland met Tuesday in the presidential palace overlooking Helsinki Harbor. The Foreign Ministry said the talks were on "matters of mutual interest."

France Observes Real Feast Day on Yule

PARIS (UPI) — Frenchmen take a lot of pleasure in proving that Christmas is a feast day.

It's a trencherman's delight.

A Catholic country despite rampant anti-clericism, France fills its churches at midnight Christmas Eve.

In November and December the stores are hot-boxes of crushed humanity as the nation goes on a buying spree as heady as any you would expect to see in Buffalo, Detroit or Atlanta.

The children find their presents Christmas morn in slippers under the mantelpiece or the Christmas tree, much as those in America find them in stockings hung the night before.

But first, Christmas Eve, and foremost, into the wee hours of Christmas morning, this is a feast day, a day for eating, drinking.

Families start nibbling late the night of Dec. 24. They take a break for mass at midnight. And then they settle down to stuff themselves into the dawn of the 25th.

In Provence, deep in the south, they traditionally eat up to 13 kinds of desserts in a kind of gastronomic marathon.

But everywhere, when the family can afford it, and sometimes when it can't, the meal begins with pate de foie gras—the rich truffle-flavored paste made from the livers of overfed geese.

This is followed by the turkey, fast becoming a tradition in economically burgeoning France.

And finally comes the "buche de Noel," a creamy chocolate Christmas cake that sticks to the ribs.

When the money is there, champagne washes it all down. Otherwise, white wine does fine.

What happens to the children? They sleep. What happens when it's time to open the presents? The world isn't so different from place to place. The reveling adults are groggy, but they're there.

People come home for Christmas. It is a feast, but it is a family feast.

Queens, from where the rocket was fired.

The missile from the World War II German-made rocket launcher soared over a tugboat and exploded in the river about 100 yards from the U.N. secretariat building on the Manhattan shore. No one was hurt.

Stanley Ross, editor of El Tiempo, a Spanish-language weekly newspaper, said the three men told him before their arrests that they had purchased a deactivated bazooka for $35 from a war surplus store in Manhattan and fashioned a firing pin out of an automobile ignition.

Ross said his reporters had asked the three to surrender. The three were planning to do that when police picked them up, he said.

Ross identified them as members of the Cuban Nationalist Movement, an anti-Castro group headquartered in Miami.

Police said the arrests resulted from painstaking work on their part, including checkups on the sale of bazookas.

There were unconfirmed reports the FBI would make further arrests in connection with the bazooka sale. The FBI declined comment.

The Cubans were booked as Julio Carlos Perez, 31, a Teletype repairman from the Bronx, and brothers Ignacio Novo, 26, a shoe salesman of Manhattan, and Guillermo Novo, 25, a doorman from North Bergen, N.J.

Chief of Detectives Philip J. Walsh, who gave the brothers' names as "Nova," said the three were charged with endangering life maliciously by placing an explosive near a building, and with attempting to damage a building or a vessel, both felonies punishable by up to 25 years in prison on each count. They also were charged with conspiracy, a misdemeanor, which could mean a three-year prison term.

In Miami, Felipe Rivero, national director of the Cuban Nationalist Association (or Movement), said Ignacio Nova was his organization's national secretary general, that Guillermo Nova was its delegate for New Jersey and that Julio Perez was chief of its "naval department."

Alarm Scares Off Would-Be Burglar

A burglar alarm apparently scared two thieves away from a grocery store they had entered at 10:50 p.m. Tuesday, police reported.

Tony Krostoff, owner of Tony's Market, 628 E. Monument St., told police the buzzer which is operated when the front or back door of his market is opened after closing time, went off in his house. Krostoff said he turned on the lights in the store from the house, which is located directly behind the market, and at this time saw two men run from the rear door of the store and run south across Monument Street.

The burglars escaped with $23.20 worth of cigarettes, $2 worth of baking powder, and approximately $.80 worth of donuts, according to the report.

5,000 Flee as Floods Wreak California Damage

Cox, 65, of Roxeberg, Ore. were carried away by the overflow of Calapooia Creek after they fled their stranded car. An unidentified child perished in a car that ran into a washout in a canyon southeast of The Dalles, state police reported.

Most major rivers continued to rise and were over flood stage late Tuesday night. Only Interstate 5 remained open, and highway officials feared it would be two or three days before east-west roads could be opened.

All rail traffic was disrupted. Southern Pacific's line in the Cascade Mountains was blocked by a mudslide; the Union Pacific line was blocked at two points by washouts.

Numerous smaller towns were isolated by blocked roads and severed telephone lines. The $2.4-million John Day bridge, only a year old, was among the many bridges washed out.

Civil defense officials reported thousands left homeless but they had no way of pinpointing how many.

California's four counties on the northwest coast appeared to be hardest hit by the unrelenting storm with an estimated 4,000 persons turned out of their homes.

Four mountain rivers were expected to crest, and the Army Corps of Engineers predicted $35 million damage to the lumber and cattle raising area.

Rescue workers helped dairymen herd an estimated 23,000 cows to high ground Tuesday as the Eel River inundated about 750 dairy farms. A desperate call went out for volunteer milkers.

An added threat came as tons of logs spilled into the river and were swept against bridges and punched great holes in rescue boats near Loleta on the coast.

Many towns were isolated and rescuers were hard pressed to reach them.

At Ukiah, Calif., where the Russian River poured over its banks, Civil Defense officials sent out one of the many urgent pleas heard during the day.

"We need help with roads, sandbags, food, all kinds of things," said coordinator George Smith.

"The water is coming up so fast that a lot of people are leaving their homes with nothing but the clothes they're wearing," he said.

Reports came out of the afflicted area of people fleeing with furniture and Christmas presents when they had time. Many found refuge when schools and community halls were opened in neighboring towns. Motels in resort areas were jammed with the flood's refugees.

Eighty National Guardsmen, 20 disaster-tested Red Cross workers, and 132 prisoners from San Quentin's honor camps joined local officials in rescue efforts. Five Coast Guard helicopters and 30 boats were on the scene or en route late Tuesday.

Many persons refused to leave their homes or waited too long before accepting help and were left stranded.

In Humboldt County William Startare passed a barn filled with 100 head of cattle.

"They were still in the stalls and were taking water in their mouths," he reported to the sheriff's office.

"A lantern was still burning in the barn, and an old woman and her daughter asked us to shut the front door where water was about to come in," he said.

At least one death in California was attributed to the storm. John Butler, 50, vanished in the Klamath River near Orleans in Humboldt County when a road collapsed beneath his Jeep.

Sabotage Missions May Be Planned by Cuba Reds

clude watching Communist activities in Mexico.

The intelligence experts point out that Mexico City is the Kremlin's headquarters for espionage operations in the Western hemisphere. Appearance of Vietnamese in Mexico could mean that these guerrillas are to be used in operations in Latin America and the U.S. in the near future.

It was just one year ago this week that the Federal Bureau of Investigation, striking swiftly and with good intelligence, smashed a Cuban Communist espionage ring planning to blow up several railroad bridges and buildings in the U.S.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover warned of possible new Castro espionage attempts in a speech in New York on December 12, stating:

"In Communist Cuba, less than 100 miles from our shores, Kremlin shakes a bloodstained fist at the U.S. while belligerently conspiring to spread violence and subversion throughout the Americas."

VIET NAM LINK

Another group of U.S. intelligence authorities believes the North Vietnamese troops have an even more sinister diplomatic-military mission in Cuba.

These experts, whose voices are suppressed by higher officials' efforts to reach accommodations with the new Soviet leaders, argue that the Communist troop arrivals may be linked to the Moscow - Hanoi strategy now unfolding in their war to tave over South Viet Nam.

If this build-up continues, the intelligence officials contend, it will signal a definite effort by Moscow-Hanoi to use "the presence" of North Vietnamese troops in Cuba as a major bargaining weapon to force U.S. troops out of South Viet Nam.

By sending missiles to Cuba in 1962, the Russians succeeded in getting the Kennedy-Johnson administration to withdraw its intermediate range ballistic missiles from Turkey and Italy.

With the Johnson administration hunting a way out of the South Viet Nam mess, a joint pull-out of U.S.-North Vietnamese troops isn't as fantastic as it might appear to anyone other than the authorities handling U.S. policy in those vital areas.

FOR THE RECORD

Senator Robert Kennedy, D-N.Y., had a lot more to do with the federal grand jury indictment of three former Pentagon officials on charges of embezzling confidential funds than the Johnson administration is publicly admitting.

The Justice Department investigation, launched while Kennedy was attorney general, was shelved during the presidential campaign following a White House conference attended by Defense Secretary McNamara and Justice Department officials.

When the story of the "missing" Defense Department funds was published in this column at the height of the Kennedy-Keating Senate battle, the former attorney general called McNamara protesting that he was being blamed for suppressing the scandal.

"There is a story appearing in a column from Washington blaming me for sitting on your missing fund scandal," Kennedy told McNamara. "I'm not going to take the blame for hiding your dirty linen. If there isn't an official statement out of the Defense Department on what is being done to clean up this mess, I'm going to make one up here."

McNamara promised to issue a statement to the press, revealing that three of the officials involved had resigned after being requested to do so.

After the Defense Department issued its statement, Acting Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach instructed the Justice Department's Criminal Division to proceed with its investigation and prepare its case for presentation to a grand jury.

If the case ever goes to trial, it could cause an international sensation as it will center around an alleged embezzlement of money from the most confidential fund in the Defense Department.

This secret Pentagon fund was used by other high government officials to pay South Vietnamese authorities for their roles in the overthrow of the late President Diem.

Israel Plans to Put Trunk Spy on Trial

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (AP) — The Israeli government plans to try Mordechai Louk, the man in the Egyptian trunk, on charges of spying for the United Arab Republic.

Dist. Atty. Ezra Hadaya filed charges Tuesday in Jerusalem District Court alleging that Louk, 30, a Moroccan-born linguist, conspired "with the enemy." He was accused of giving Egypt information likely to endanger Israel's security.

Louk also was charged with illegally crossing from Israel into the Egyptian-held Gaza Strip in 1961.

Two officials of the U.A.R. Embassy in Rome tried to ship Louk to Cairo Nov. 17 in a trunk labeled diplomatic baggage. Italian customs men heard Louk's cries and foiled the plot.

Louk has denied he is a traitor. He returned to Israel voluntarily.

chief by the Town Council to "reorganize" the department.

Until King assumes his duties, the town's police protection will be relief Patrolman Bud Tiche.

There were conflicting reports on why the police department was fired.

Said Nugent, "All they told me was that I was a victim of circumstances. There was absolutely no reason given." Nugent said he was on the force for seven years. He said he was not given two weeks' vacation pay when he was fired Tuesday morning.

Said Councilman Rufus Marshall, "Their work was not satisfactory."

"Does there have to be a reason?" asked Town Coordinator-Clerk Michael Rasher.

He was recently given a salary raise for his new duties as police coordinator.

Said Councilman Walter Fortman, "I wasn't satisfied."

All officials agreed they met in closed session Monday afternoon, discussed the police department, and decided to dismiss the three-man force Tuesday morning.

The dismissal time of 10 a.m. coincided with Chief Soltwedel's six-months' probationary period which started when he was hired.

Rasher said King will be given authority to pick his own staff.

"It (the dismissal) was done by the Council — not me," Rasher emphasized.

King has been a deputy sheriff for almost a year. His resignation was verified this morning by Sheriff Earl Sullivan.

Said former Chief Soltwedel, "They called us in Tuesday morning and gave us our checks. They didn't say why they fired us. I asked them for reasons but they didn't give us any."

More Students Plan Careers in Church

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Total enrollment of students preparing for full-time service careers in The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod has increased this year, while siminary enrollments are near the recent average, according to the Board for Higher Education.

The sharpest increase was in enrollments for teaching careers, which rose from 3,503 to 3,852. Students preparing for ministerial careers increased from 2,947 to 2,956 and seminary enrollments of 1,015 were slightly above the last four-year average of 1,003. Overall enrollment climbed from 7,284 to 7,721.

feared type in recent years — the nation suffered widespread outbreaks in 1962-1963; and the West Coast and parts of southern Minnesota were hit hard by the same virus last winter. The experts feel the betting averages are against another major outbreak so soon after those.

2. As for influenza "type-B" — another major form —widespread epidemics are relatively rare anyway. The United States was hit by a tough one as recently as 1961-62.

The American Medical Association gives this advice regarding flu:

"Exercise general health precautions. If the flu breaks out in your neighborhood, do not enter any place where crowds congregate. Dress warmly for extremely cold weather and keep your body in shape so you can resist a virus infection. Finally, if you do get sick, call your doctor at once."

Santa to Find Space Is Full Of 'Traffic'

259 belong to the United States, 38 to the U.S.S.R.

Thirty of the American satellites still are beeping signals — transmitting weather pictures, communications signals, military information and a wealth of data on secrets of the universe.

The Russians don't say how many of their satellites are operating. They do say that their Zond-2 is beeping along toward Mars — as is the U.S. Mariner 4.

The figures reflect the greater number of successful American space shots. Since the space age began, the United States has orbited 236 earth satellites, six solar satellites and hit the moon three times. The Soviets have launched 76 successful earth satellites, five sun vehicles and hit the moon once. The United States has sent six astronauts into space; the Soviets have orbited nine.

The oldest satellites still in orbit are Explorer 1, launched Jan. 31, 1958, and Vanguard 1, sent aloft March 17, 1958. Both are American.

Vanguard 1 still is sending a stream of radio signals, and if Santa should encounter this grapefruit-sized chatterbox he could do rocketmen a favor by switching off its transmitter.

The radio, powered by solar cells which draw battery energy from the sun, is transmitting on a frequency which the space agency would like to free for other experiments.

Double Murderer Caught in London

LONDON (AP) — A double murderer who escaped from prison Monday night an hour before the House of Commons debated abolition of the death penalty was back behind bars today.

Frederick Arthur Smith, 38, known as the "babes in the woods" killer, did not resist when a lone officer captured him Tuesday night near the town where his mother lives.

Smith has been under psychiatric treatment at Wormwood Scrubs Prison since he won a reprieve from a death sentence in 1947. He was convicted of bludgeoning a 7-year-old girl; he also killed her 9-year-old brother.

ed at enlisting the support of the nation's Buddhists for anti-American and Taylor-go-home demonstrations. This would not be difficult since the Buddhist leadership also has a strong dislike for Taylor.

The sources which distributed this report always have been correct in the past. But recently they have shown a strong anti-Khanh bias. As a result, observers felt this bias could have exaggerated the Anti-American element of Khanh's reported plan at the expense of its anti-Taylor element.

However, following the meeting with the generals, Khanh issued an order of the day Tuesday in which he denounced the council and attacked the U.S. position on Sunday's partial coup.

He charged some council members were inciting revolt on the home front while the army was shedding its blood in the field.

Then, in two obvious barbs at the United States, Khanh also said:

"We make sacrifices for the country's independence and the Vietnamese people's liberty, but not to carry out the policy of any foreign country. . .

"Although the armed forces support a clean civilian government, when necessary they still have the task of acting as an intermediary to settle all disputes and differences if they create a situation favorable to the common enemies: Communism and colonialism in any form."

Following this, Khanh gave an interview to an American newspaper in which he said that unless Taylor "does not act more intelligently, the United States will lose Southeast Asia and we will lose our freedom."

Khanh accused Taylor of "unimaginable" political interference.

This brought a prompt statement from the U.S. government in Washington, warning that continued American support here was based on maintenance of a government free of "improper interference" by the military.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman today issued an icy denial of Khanh's charges that Taylor was hurting both the United States and Viet Nam by interfering in Saigon's politics.

"Ambassador Taylor has undertaken no activities which can be considered improper in any way in view of United States involvement and commitment in this country," the spokesman said. "All his activities are designed to serve the best interests of both Viet Nam and the United States."

mess halls, four headquarters and classroom buildings and four administrative and storage buildings.

All 26 buildings will be brick-faced masonry. The job will also include parking lots, roads, landscaping and utilities. The contractor will be required to start work within 10 days after notice to proceed and to complete the work within two years.

Next lowest bids came from Arthur Venneri, Westfield, N.J., $10,942,075; and Frank Brisco, Denver, $10,972,833.

Mayor Harry Hoth, who attended the opening, said the new construction would: "Emphasize the importance of making Ft. Carson a more permanent facility and show community interest in Carson and the individual soldier."

Col. A. H. Smith Jr., chief of staff, 5th Infantry Division (Mech.), represented Maj. Gen. A. J. Maroun, division and Carson commander, at the bid opening.

Viet's Military Leaders Study Stern U.S. Note

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Viet Nam's military leaders today studied their next move in their showdown with the United States.

There were indications that the military might reorganize the High National Council in the hope of at least partially satisfying the American demand for a return to civilian control of the government.

The Vietnamese had no immediate comment on the State Department statement Tuesday night demanding that the Saigon government be free of military interference. Otherwise, the statement seemed to hint, U.S. aid to the war against the Communist Viet Cong might be cut off.

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, commander of the Vietnamese armed forces, conferred at the presidential palace with civilian Premier Tran Van Huong. The U.S. statement came after a defiant broadcast by Khanh supporting the "Young Turk" generals who on Sunday dissolved the High National Council, Viet Nam's provisional legislature, and arrested most of its members.

The U.S. statement warned that continued U.S. support of the war in Viet Nam is based on existence of a Saigon government "free of improper interference."

"We must take a stand on this one," an American official said privately. "Otherwise we face the end of American influence here, and there is too much at stake for that."

Khanh in his broadcast earlier Tuesday declared the military had a right to take a hand in the government if disputes and differences created a climate favorable to communism and colonialism.

Obviously referring to the United States, which is puming more than $1.5 million a day into the war, he said: "We make sacrifices for the country's independence and the Vietnamese people's liberty, but not to carry out the policy of any foreign country."

New York Herald Tribune correspondent Beverly Deepe reported that Khanh during an interview accused U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor of "activities beyond imagination" in attempting to force restoration of the High National Council.

Miss Deepe said Khanh told her if Taylor "does not act more intelligently, the United States will lose Southeast Asia and we will lose our freedom."

The Washington statement said: "Ambassador Taylor has been acting throughout with the full support of the U.S. government."

The High National Council was set up three months ago as a 17-man body to serve as a legislature while South Viet Nam proceeded from military to civilian rule. The council appointed Phan Khac Suu as chief of state and Huong as premier. Dissension developed within the council, and by last weekend only nine members were still active in it.

Vandals Cause $50 Damage to Decorations

Christmas decorations placed in the front yard of a local residence were damaged by vandals to the extent of $50, police reported.

Albert F. Peterson, 1517 W. Kiowa St., told police that while he and his family were in the rear part of the house Tuesday, vandals broke two candles from the arms of an artificial angel, groke the angel's arm, and broke an artificial snowman. Peterson said the vandalism had been occurring for the past three days, but that he hadn't called police until Tuesday about it.

No Immediate Results Seen In Dock Talks

Bargining halted Saturday.

Longshoremen have continued work on a day to day basis since an 80-day no strike injunction obtained by the federal government expired Sunday.

Should the Gulf dock workers strike, there is a possibility of sympathy strikes which could paralyze shipping on the Eastern seaboard.

The dispute reportedly hinges on the size of work gangs. Houston- Galveston ILA locals have sought a minimum of 18 men to the gang. Presently there is no contract provision for any minimum.

The new agreement reached in New York would permit gradual reduction in the size of work gangs.

There also is an unsettled question of whether any pay increase would be retroactive to Oct. 1, when the old contract ran out.

Reynolds arrived Tuesday and went at once into a closed meeting with ILA officials. He conferred with shippers Tuesday night, again behind closed doors.

He told newsmen he is "no whip cracker" for the administration.

Reynolds came here on orders of Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz after Wirtz talked with Johnson at the President's Texas ranch Monday. Wirtz said the President "was very much concerned about seeing to it" there is a settlement.

"I will meet separately with the unions and the shippers and get their feelings about the situation," Reynolds said. "I think there has been a lot of misunderstanding that can be cleared up."

Asked if he thought a settlement was imminent, Reynolds said: "It won't be settled tomorrow."

He said he did not expect to stay here more than two days but he would return. David Stowe, director of longshore studies for the Labor Department, accompanied Reynolds.

Ralph W. Massey, president of the ILA's South Atlantic and Gulf Coast district, would not comment on progress of their meeting.

"That is up to Mr. Reynolds," Massey said.

Port officials in Galveston and Houston reported longshoremen apparently showed up for work only at their convenience Tuesday. Houston shippers said fewer than half the work gangs ordered to the docks appeared.

South California Is Rocked by Earthquake

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — An earthquake shook Southern California and adjacent areas of Mexico — with these results:

In San Diego — where the quake Tuesday did most of its minor damage — fire alarms rang all over the city, windows broke by the score, some penny arcade pinball machines flashed "tilt," skyscrapers rocked like ships at sea, and beds rolled about on casters at Scripps Hospital.

At nearby National City, Mrs. E. C. Davey was shaken out of bed.

At El Centro, inland, a newsman turned around to see who was shoving his chair.

At Palm Springs, on the desert, waves were observed on the city's hundreds of swimming pools.

In Tijuana, Mexico, Avenida Revolucion was jammed with people who fled from shops and restaurants.

To the north, in Los Angeles and Orange County coastal areas pictures danced on the walls and Christmas trees shimmied as their decorations tinkled to the floor.

In Pasadena, Dr. Charles Richter of the California Institute of Technology seismology lab looked at his graphs, clocked the quake at 12:55 p.m., and assigned it a tentative magnitude of 5.7 on the Richter scale — on which the 1906 San Francisco quake was 8.3 and the Alaskan Good Friday quake was 8.5.

He said the quake probably originated on Mexico's Baja California Peninsula.

Manpower Chief Quits His Post

The department said Tuesday that Donovan, who had held the post since March 29, was resigning to take a professorship in government at Bowdoin College.

Three Cubans Charged With U.N. Bomb Plot

Queens, from where the rocket was fired.

The missile from the World War II German-made rocket launcher soared over a tugboat and exploded in the river about 100 yards from the U.N. secretariat building on the Manhattan shore. No one was hurt.

Stanley Ross, editor of El Tiempo, a Spanish-language weekly newspaper, said the three men told him before their arrests that they had purchased a deactivated bazooka for $35 from a war surplus store in Manhattan and fashioned a firing pin out of an automobile ignition.

Ross said his reporters had asked the three to surrender. The three were planning to do that when police picked them up, he said.

Ross identified them as members of the Cuban Nationalist Movement, an anti-Castro group headquartered in Miami.

Police said the arrests resulted from painstaking work on their part, including checkups on the sale of bazookas.

There were unconfirmed reports the FBI would make further arrests in connection with the bazooka sale. The FBI declined comment.

The Cubans were booked as Julio Carlos Perez, 31, a Teletype repairman from the Bronx, and brothers Ignacio Novo, 26, a shoe salesman of Manhattan, and Guillermo Novo, 25, a doorman from North Bergen, N.J.

In Miami, Felipe Rivero, national director of the Cuban Nationalist Association (or Movement), said Ignacio Nova was his organization's national secretary general, that Guillermo Nova was its delegate for New Jersey and that Julio Perez was chief of its "naval department."

Alarm Scares Off Would-Be Burglar

A burglar alarm apparently scared two thieves away from a grocery store they had entered at 10:50 p.m. Tuesday, police reported.

Tony Krostoff, owner of Tony's Market, 628 E. Monument St., told police the buzzer which is operated when the front or back door of his market is opened after closing time, went off in his house. Krostoff said he turned on the lights in the store from the house, which is located directly behind the market, and at this time saw two men run from the rear door of the store and run south across Monument Street.

The burglars escaped with $23.20 worth of cigarettes, $2 worth of baking powder, and approximately $.80 worth of donuts, according to the report.

The intelligence experts point out that Mexico City is the Kremlin's headquarters for espionage operations in the Western hemisphere. Appearance of Vietnamese in Mexico could mean that these guerrillas are to be used in operations in Latin America and the U.S. in the near future.

It was just one year ago this week that the Federal Bureau of Investigation, striking swiftly and with good intelligence, smashed a Cuban Communist espionage ring planning to blow up several railroad bridges and buildings in the U.S.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover warned of possible new Castro espionage attempts in a speech in New York on December 12, stating:

"In Communist Cuba, less than 100 miles from our shores, Kremlin shakes a bloodstained fist at the U.S. while belligerently conspiring to spread violence and subversion throughout the Americas."

VIET NAM LINK

Another group of U.S. intelligence authorities believes the North Vietnamese troops have an even more sinister diplomatic-military mission in Cuba.

These experts, whose voices are suppressed by higher officials' efforts to reach accommodations with the new Soviet leaders, argue that the Communist troop arrivals may be linked to the Moscow - Hanoi strategy now unfolding in their war to tave over South Viet Nam.

If this build-up continues, the intelligence officials contend, it will signal a definite effort by Moscow-Hanoi to use "the presence" of North Vietnamese troops in Cuba as a major bargaining weapon to force U.S. troops out of South Viet Nam.

By sending missiles to Cuba in 1962, the Russians succeeded in getting the Kennedy-Johnson administration to withdraw its intermediate range ballistic missiles from Turkey and Italy.

With the Johnson administration hunting a way out of the South Viet Nam mess, a joint pull-out of U.S.-North Vietnamese troops isn't as fantastic as it might appear to anyone other than the authorities handling U.S. policy in those vital areas.

FOR THE RECORD

Senator Robert Kennedy, D-N.Y., had a lot more to do with the federal grand jury indictment of three former Pentagon officials on charges of embezzling confidential funds than the Johnson administration is publicly admitting.

The Justice Department investigation, launched while Kennedy was attorney general, was shelved during the presidential campaign following a White House conference attended by Defense Secretary McNamara and Justice Department officials.

When the story of the "missing" Defense Department funds was published in this column at the height of the Kennedy-Keating Senate battle, the former attorney general called McNamara protesting that he was being blamed for suppressing the scandal.

"There is a story appearing in a column from Washington blaming me for sitting on your missing fund scandal," Kennedy told McNamara. "I'm not going to take the blame for hiding your dirty linen. If there isn't an official statement out of the Defense Department on what is being done to clean up this mess, I'm going to make one up here."

McNamara promised to issue a statement to the press, revealing that three of the officials involved had resigned after being requested to do so.

After the Defense Department issued its statement, Acting Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach instructed the Justice Department's Criminal Division to proceed with its investigation and prepare its case for presentation to a grand jury.

If the case ever goes to trial, it could cause an international sensation as it will center around an alleged embezzlement of money from the most confidential fund in the Defense Department.

This secret Pentagon fund was used by other high government officials to pay South Vietnamese authorities for their roles in the overthrow of the late President Diem.

Israel Plans to Put Trunk Spy on Trial

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (AP) — The Israeli government plans to try Mordechai Louk, the man in the Egyptian trunk, on charges of spying for the United Arab Republic.

Dist. Atty. Ezra Hadaya filed charges Tuesday in Jerusalem District Court alleging that Louk, 30, a Moroccan-born linguist, conspired "with the enemy." He was accused of giving Egypt information likely to endanger Israel's security.

Louk also was charged with illegally crossing from Israel into the Egyptian-held Gaza Strip in 1961.

Two officials of the U.A.R. Embassy in Rome tried to ship Louk to Cairo Nov. 17 in a trunk labeled diplomatic baggage. Italian customs men heard Louk's cries and foiled the plot.

Louk has denied he is a traitor. He returned to Israel voluntarily.

chief by the Town Council to "reorganize" the department.

Until King assumes his duties, the town's police protection will be relief Patrolman Bud Tiche.

There were conflicting reports on why the police department was fired.

Said Nugent, "All they told me was that I was a victim of circumstances. There was absolutely no reason given." Nugent said he was on the force for seven years. He said he was not given two weeks' vacation pay when he was fired Tuesday morning.

Said Councilman Rufus Marshall, "Their work was not satisfactory."

"Does there have to be a reason?" asked Town Coordinator-Clerk Michael Rasher.

He was recently given a salary raise for his new duties as police coordinator.

Said Councilman Walter Fortman, "I wasn't satisfied."

All officials agreed they met in closed session Monday afternoon, discussed the police department, and decided to dismiss the three-man force Tuesday morning.

The dismissal time of 10 a.m. coincided with Chief Soltwedel's six-months' probationary period which started when he was hired.

Rasher said King will be given authority to pick his own staff.

"It (the dismissal) was done by the Council — not me," Rasher emphasized.

King has been a deputy sheriff for almost a year. His resignation was verified this morning by Sheriff Earl Sullivan.

Said former Chief Soltwedel, "They called us in Tuesday morning and gave us our checks. They didn't say why they fired us. I asked them for reasons but they didn't give us any."

More Students Plan Careers in Church

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Total enrollment of students preparing for full-time service careers in The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod has increased this year, while siminary enrollments are near the recent average, according to the Board for Higher Education.

The sharpest increase was in enrollments for teaching careers, which rose from 3,503 to 3,852. Students preparing for ministerial careers increased from 2,947 to 2,956 and seminary enrollments of 1,015 were slightly above the last four-year average of 1,003. Overall enrollment climbed from 7,284 to 7,721.

U.S. to Escape Major Flu Outbreak, Medics Think

feared type in recent years — the nation suffered widespread outbreaks in 1962-1963; and the West Coast and parts of southern Minnesota were hit hard by the same virus last winter. The experts feel the betting averages are against another major outbreak so soon after those.

2. As for influenza "type-B" — another major form —widespread epidemics are relatively rare anyway. The United States was hit by a tough one as recently as 1961-62.

The American Medical Association gives this advice regarding flu:

"Exercise general health precautions. If the flu breaks out in your neighborhood, do not enter any place where crowds congregate. Dress warmly for extremely cold weather and keep your body in shape so you can resist a virus infection. Finally, if you do get sick, call your doctor at once."

259 belong to the United States, 38 to the U.S.S.R.

Thirty of the American satellites still are beeping signals — transmitting weather pictures, communications signals, military information and a wealth of data on secrets of the universe.

The Russians don't say how many of their satellites are operating. They do say that their Zond-2 is beeping along toward Mars — as is the U.S. Mariner 4.

The figures reflect the greater number of successful American space shots. Since the space age began, the United States has orbited 236 earth satellites, six solar satellites and hit the moon three times. The Soviets have launched 76 successful earth satellites, five sun vehicles and hit the moon once. The United States has sent six astronauts into space; the Soviets have orbited nine.

The oldest satellites still in orbit are Explorer 1, launched Jan. 31, 1958, and Vanguard 1, sent aloft March 17, 1958. Both are American.

Vanguard 1 still is sending a stream of radio signals, and if Santa should encounter this grapefruit-sized chatterbox he could do rocketmen a favor by switching off its transmitter.

The radio, powered by solar cells which draw battery energy from the sun, is transmitting on a frequency which the space agency would like to free for other experiments.

Double Murderer Caught in London

LONDON (AP) — A double murderer who escaped from prison Monday night an hour before the House of Commons debated abolition of the death penalty was back behind bars today.

Frederick Arthur Smith, 38, known as the "babes in the woods" killer, did not resist when a lone officer captured him Tuesday night near the town where his mother lives.

Smith has been under psychiatric treatment at Wormwood Scrubs Prison since he won a reprieve from a death sentence in 1947. He was convicted of bludgeoning a 7-year-old girl; he also killed her 9-year-old brother.

Two Former Nazis Are Sent to Prison

TUEBINGEN, Germany (AP) — Prison sentences have been given two former Nazi sergeants convicted of murdering or helping murder more than 300 inmates of Stutthof concentration camp, near Danzig.

Presiding Judge Ludwig Kellermann sentenced Otto Haupt Tuesday to 12 years on one count of attempted murder and another of aiding in 220 murders. He sentenced Bernard Luedtke to six years for aiding in the murder of 91 inmates.

A third defendant, Otto Karl Knott, was acquitted.

Three Cranes End Up in River

ed at enlisting the support of the nation's Buddhists for anti-American and Taylor-go-home demonstrations. This would not be difficult since the Buddhist leadership also has a strong dislike for Taylor.

The sources which distributed this report always have been correct in the past. But recently they have shown a strong anti-Khanh bias. As a result, observers felt this bias could have exaggerated the Anti-American element of Khanh's reported plan at the expense of its anti-Taylor element.

However, following the meeting with the generals, Khanh issued an order of the day Tuesday in which he denounced the council and attacked the U.S. position on Sunday's partial coup.

He charged some council members were inciting revolt on the home front while the army was shedding its blood in the field.

Then, in two obvious barbs at the United States, Khanh also said:

"We make sacrifices for the country's independence and the Vietnamese people's liberty, but not to carry out the policy of any foreign country. . .

"Although the armed forces support a clean civilian government, when necessary they still have the task of acting as an intermediary to settle all disputes and differences if they create a situation favorable to the common enemies: Communism and colonialism in any form."

Following this, Khanh gave an interview to an American newspaper in which he said that unless Taylor "does not act more intelligently, the United States will lose Southeast Asia and we will lose our freedom."

Khanh accused Taylor of "unimaginable" political interference.

This brought a prompt statement from the U.S. government in Washington, warning that continued American support here was based on maintenance of a government free of "improper interference" by the military.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman today issued an icy denial of Khanh's charges that Taylor was hurting both the United States and Viet Nam by interfering in Saigon's politics.

"Ambassador Taylor has undertaken no activities which can be considered improper in any way in view of United States involvement and commitment in this country," the spokesman said. "All his activities are designed to serve the best interests of both Viet Nam and the United States."

mess halls, four headquarters and classroom buildings and four administrative and storage buildings.

All 26 buildings will be brick-faced masonry. The job will also include parking lots, roads, landscaping and utilities. The contractor will be required to start work within 10 days after notice to proceed and to complete the work within two years.

Next lowest bids came from Arthur Venneri, Westfield, N.J., $10,942,075; and Frank Brisco, Denver, $10,972,833.

Mayor Harry Hoth, who attended the opening, said the new construction would: "Emphasize the importance of making Ft. Carson a more permanent facility and show community interest in Carson and the individual soldier."

Col. A. H. Smith Jr., chief of staff, 5th Infantry Division (Mech.), represented Maj. Gen. A. J. Maroun, division and Carson commander, at the bid opening.

Viet's Military Leaders Study Stern U.S. Note

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Viet Nam's military leaders today studied their next move in their showdown with the United States.

There were indications that the military might reorganize the High National Council in the hope of at least partially satisfying the American demand for a return to civilian control of the government.

The Vietnamese had no immediate comment on the State Department statement Tuesday night demanding that the Saigon government be free of military interference. Otherwise, the statement seemed to hint, U.S. aid to the war against the Communist Viet Cong might be cut off.

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, commander of the Vietnamese armed forces, conferred at the presidential palace with civilian Premier Tran Van Huong. The U.S. statement came after a defiant broadcast by Khanh supporting the "Young Turk" generals who on Sunday dissolved the High National Council, Viet Nam's provisional legislature, and arrested most of its members.

The U.S. statement warned that continued U.S. support of the war in Viet Nam is based on existence of a Saigon government "free of improper interference."

"We must take a stand on this one," an American official said privately. "Otherwise we face the end of American influence here, and there is too much at stake for that."

Khanh in his broadcast earlier Tuesday declared the military had a right to take a hand in the government if disputes and differences created a climate favorable to communism and colonialism.

Obviously referring to the United States, which is puming more than $1.5 million a day into the war, he said: "We make sacrifices for the country's independence and the Vietnamese people's liberty, but not to carry out the policy of any foreign country."

New York Herald Tribune correspondent Beverly Deepe reported that Khanh during an interview accused U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor of "activities beyond imagination" in attempting to force restoration of the High National Council.

Miss Deepe said Khanh told her if Taylor "does not act more intelligently, the United States will lose Southeast Asia and we will lose our freedom."

The Washington statement said: "Ambassador Taylor has been acting throughout with the full support of the U.S. government."

The High National Council was set up three months ago as a 17-man body to serve as a legislature while South Viet Nam proceeded from military to civilian rule. The council appointed Phan Khac Suu as chief of state and Huong as premier. Dissension developed within the council, and by last weekend only nine members were still active in it.

Vandals Cause $50 Damage to Decorations

Christmas decorations placed in the front yard of a local residence were damaged by vandals to the extent of $50, police reported.

Albert F. Peterson, 1517 W. Kiowa St., told police that while he and his family were in the rear part of the house Tuesday, vandals broke two candles from the arms of an artificial angel, groke the angel's arm, and broke an artificial snowman. Peterson said the vandalism had been occurring for the past three days, but that he hadn't called police until Tuesday about it.

No Immediate Results Seen In Dock Talks

Bargining halted Saturday.

Longshoremen have continued work on a day to day basis since an 80-day no strike injunction obtained by the federal government expired Sunday.

Should the Gulf dock workers strike, there is a possibility of sympathy strikes which could paralyze shipping on the Eastern seaboard.

The dispute reportedly hinges on the size of work gangs. Houston- Galveston ILA locals have sought a minimum of 18 men to the gang. Presently there is no contract provision for any minimum.

The new agreement reached in New York would permit gradual reduction in the size of work gangs.

There also is an unsettled question of whether any pay increase would be retroactive to Oct. 1, when the old contract ran out.

Reynolds arrived Tuesday and went at once into a closed meeting with ILA officials. He conferred with shippers Tuesday night, again behind closed doors.

He told newsmen he is "no whip cracker" for the administration.

Reynolds came here on orders of Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz after Wirtz talked with Johnson at the President's Texas ranch Monday. Wirtz said the President "was very much concerned about seeing to it" there is a settlement.

"I will meet separately with the unions and the shippers and get their feelings about the situation," Reynolds said. "I think there has been a lot of misunderstanding that can be cleared up."

Asked if he thought a settlement was imminent, Reynolds said: "It won't be settled tomorrow."

He said he did not expect to stay here more than two days but he would return. David Stowe, director of longshore studies for the Labor Department, accompanied Reynolds.

Ralph W. Massey, president of the ILA's South Atlantic and Gulf Coast district, would not comment on progress of their meeting.

"That is up to Mr. Reynolds," Massey said.

Port officials in Galveston and Houston reported longshoremen apparently showed up for work only at their convenience Tuesday. Houston shippers said fewer than half the work gangs ordered to the docks appeared.

South California Is Rocked by Earthquake

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — An earthquake shook Southern California and adjacent areas of Mexico — with these results:

In San Diego — where the quake Tuesday did most of its minor damage — fire alarms rang all over the city, windows broke by the score, some penny arcade pinball machines flashed "tilt," skyscrapers rocked like ships at sea, and beds rolled about on casters at Scripps Hospital.

At nearby National City, Mrs. E. C. Davey was shaken out of bed.

At El Centro, inland, a newsman turned around to see who was shoving his chair.

At Palm Springs, on the desert, waves were observed on the city's hundreds of swimming pools.

In Tijuana, Mexico, Avenida Revolucion was jammed with people who fled from shops and restaurants.

To the north, in Los Angeles and Orange County coastal areas pictures danced on the walls and Christmas trees shimmied as their decorations tinkled to the floor.

In Pasadena, Dr. Charles Richter of the California Institute of Technology seismology lab looked at his graphs, clocked the quake at 12:55 p.m., and assigned it a tentative magnitude of 5.7 on the Richter scale — on which the 1906 San Francisco quake was 8.3 and the Alaskan Good Friday quake was 8.5.

He said the quake probably originated on Mexico's Baja California Peninsula.

Manpower Chief Quits His Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — John C. Donovan, manpower administrator of the Labor Department, has resigned effective Jan. 15.

The department said Tuesday that Donovan, who had held the post since March 29, was resigning to take a professorship in government at Bowdoin College.

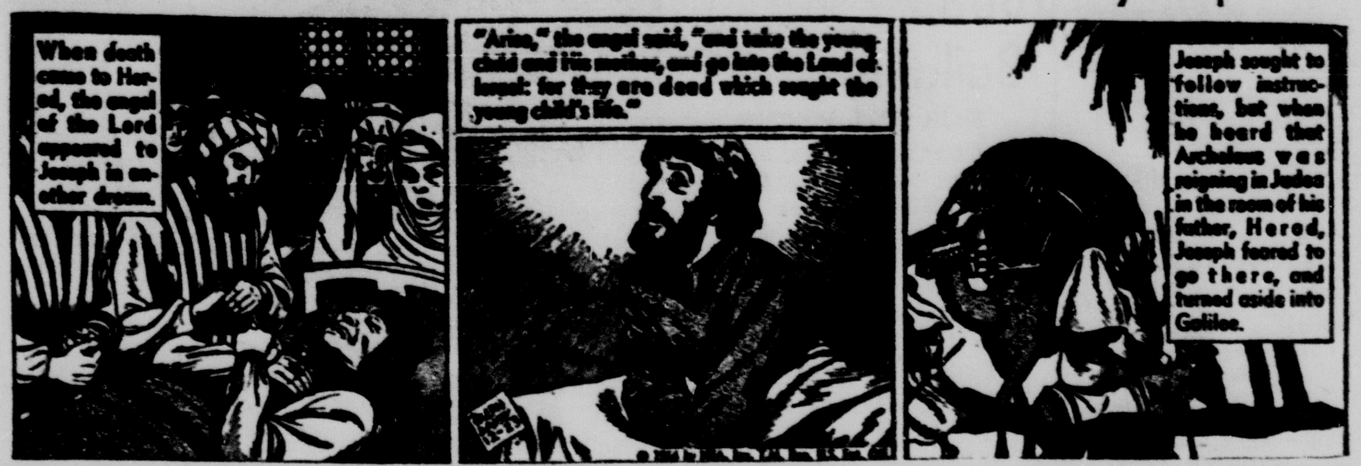
THE FIRST CHRISTMAS

By Ralph Lane



When death came to Herod, the angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in another dream.
"Arise," the angel said, "and take the young child and His mother, and go into the Land of Israel: for they are dead which sought the young child's life."
Joseph sought to follow instructions, but when he heard that Archelaus was reigning in Judea in the room of his father, Herod, Joseph feared to go there, and turned aside into Galilee.

Dog Trained to Obey His Command

NEW YORK (AP) — You couldn't really blame Dobie, the Doberman Pinscher, for just sitting there when a holdup man took $3,740 from his master Monday.

Dobie has been "trained" to protect Philip Terman, a Brooklyn furniture dealer, from robbers. But the dog also has been trained to obey Terman's commands — to the letter.

So when a robber walked up to Terman's car and ordered, "Tell the dog to lie still," how was Dobie to interpret Terman's command of "sit" as meaning, "sic 'em."

Dobie sat.

At a Brooklyn police station, Terman looked disgustedly at Dobie and commented: "I spent $500 training that mutt and what good did it do?"

At that moment the Doberman began to growl viciously and lunge at anyone who got too near.

Dick Van Dyke Believes in Old Christmas

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Everyone talks about having an old-fashioned Christmas, but few ever do anything about it. Exception: the Dick Van Dyke family.

For a guy who is as hep as any star in show business, Dick is a remarkably old-fashioned fellow. He believes in morality in movies, loyalty and — the spirit of Christmas.

"I think the wrong emphasis has been placed on Christmas," he said. "Now there is entirely too much obligatory giving. Christmas should be a time of giving to your family and close friends — the people you love. Instead, you're compelled to give to your customers, your boss, your employees, etc.

"I'm sure the average business man hates to see Christmas come around."

He added that there is entirely too much buildup of anticipation for children at Christmas time. "The solution would be to train our kids not to expect gifts," he said. But he is enough of a realist to know how impossible that would be.

The Van Dyke Christmas starts with picking out a tree. That's an all-family affair.

"Everybody goes along to the lot to make the choice, including the maid," Dick said. "We look at every tree until we find the one that suits everyone. Then we bring it home and everyone has a job to do in the decoration.

"The big kids (Chris, 14; Barry, 13) handle the breakable ornaments, the younger ones (Stacy, 10; Carrie, 3) take care of the less fragile things. We've built up quite a collection of ornaments they have made; I mean like clay balls with glitter. We save them all.

"Me, I take care of stringing the lights and hanging the angel on the top of the tree, which is usually a 12-footer."

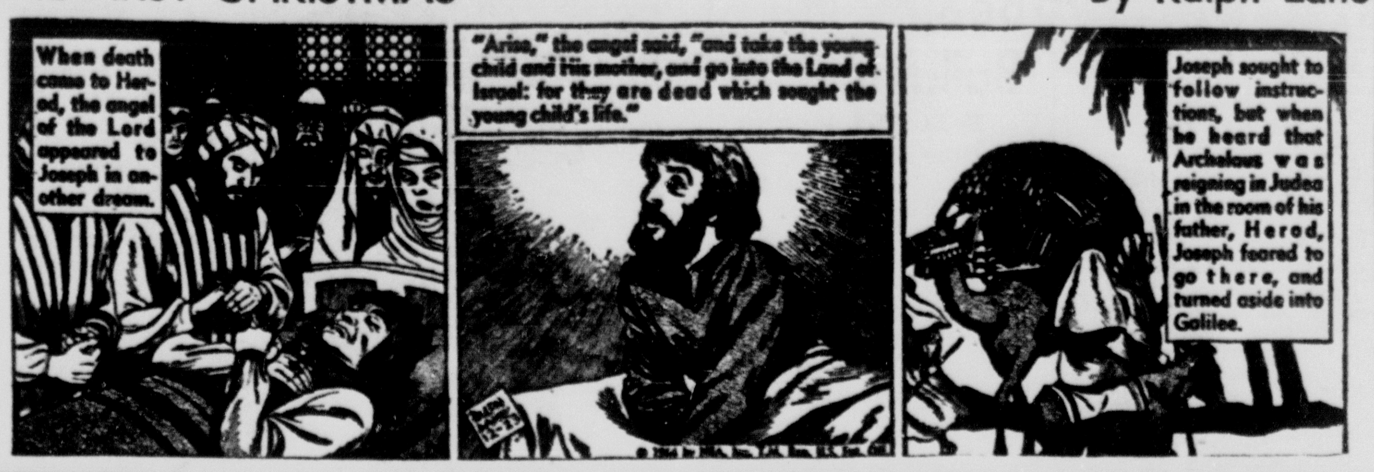
THE FIRST CHRISTMAS

By Ralph Lane



When death came to Herod, the angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in another dream.
"Arise," the angel said, "and take the young child and His mother, and go into the Land of Israel: for they are dead which sought the young child's life."
Joseph sought to follow instructions, but when he heard that Archelaus was reigning in Judea in the room of his father, Herod, Joseph feared to go there, and turned aside into Galilee.

Dog Trained to Obey His Command

NEW YORK (AP) — You couldn't really blame Dobie, the Doberman Pinscher, for just sitting there when a holdup man took $3,740 from his master Monday.

Dobie has been "trained" to protect Philip Terman, a Brooklyn furniture dealer, from robbers. But the dog also has been trained to obey Terman's commands — to the letter.

So when a robber walked up to Terman's car and ordered, "Tell the dog to lie still," how was Dobie to interpret Terman's command of "sit" as meaning, "sic 'em."

Dobie sat.

At a Brooklyn police station, Terman looked disgustedly at Dobie and commented: "I spent $500 training that mutt and what good did it do?"

At that moment the Doberman began to growl viciously and lunge at anyone who got too near.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pedro Gonzalez has two gloves. He uses one for playing third base, shortstop and second base. And the other he uses for playing first base.

"He'll be around for a long time," says Hector Lopez, his Yankee roommate for the World Series games in St. Louis. "He's a good boy and always ready to jump into any infield position."

Gonzalez, 24, is a Dominican Republic native who hit .277 in 80 games as a Yankee rookie.

Dick Van Dyke Believes in Old Christmas

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Everyone talks about having an old-fashioned Christmas, but few ever do anything about it. Exception: the Dick Van Dyke family.

For a guy who is as hep as any star in show business, Dick is a remarkably old-fashioned fellow. He believes in morality in movies, loyalty and — the spirit of Christmas.

"I think the wrong emphasis has been placed on Christmas," he said. "Now there is entirely too much obligatory giving. Christmas should be a time of giving to your family and close friends — the people you love. Instead, you're compelled to give to your customers, your boss, your employees, etc.

"I'm sure the average business man hates to see Christmas come around."

He added that there is entirely too much buildup of anticipation for children at Christmas time. "The solution would be to train our kids not to expect gifts," he said. But he is enough of a realist to know how impossible that would be.

The Van Dyke Christmas starts with picking out a tree. That's an all-family affair.

"Everybody goes along to the lot to make the choice, including the maid," Dick said. "We look at every tree until we find the one that suits everyone. Then we bring it home and everyone has a job to do in the decoration.

"The big kids (Chris, 14; Barry, 13) handle the breakable ornaments, the younger ones (Stacy, 10; Carrie, 3) take care of the less fragile things. We've built up quite a collection of ornaments they have made; I mean like clay balls with glitter. We save them all.

"Me, I take care of stringing the lights and hanging the angel on the top of the tree, which is usually a 12-footer."

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Government Policy— USA vs. USSR

Some years ago, Frank Chodorov wrote a little item entitled, "Flight To Russia." In it, he adopted the science - fiction technique and suggested that as things were doing, the day might come when the only freedom to produce would be in Russia and the mounting controls in America would make this a land of the non-free.

Satirically drawn and in the vein of fiction, most people took the article as being too far-fetched to be considered. But now we wonder. Ever since Khrushchev was given a one-way pass out of the Russian government, the Soviet Union has been turning more and more to profits as a better way of encouraging production than the expensive and inefficient method of central planning.

Actually, according to a recent issue of the Wall Street Journal, experiments with the use of profits rather than centralized bureaucratic management had been in vogue before the exit of Mr. K. But a 6,000-mile tour of the Russian terrain has convinced some journalists that the lure of profits is getting bigger in Russia.

To quote the Journal:

"The profit-motive experiment, which some Russian affairs experts believe could result in long-term changes in the whole Soviet system, is currently focused on two factories, a textile works in Gorki and a men's suit factory in Moscow. While more than 80 other Russian enterprises are using the profit concept in a limited way, the textile factory in Gorki and the suit plant (in Moscow) are gearing their entire operations to making a profit instead of simply turning out specified quotas of goods. Workers' bonuses are tied directly to profits in a way that encourages them to hustle without sacrificing quality. Production schedules are regulated by consumer demand, as in capitalist countries."

On nearly the same day and in the same publication came this article:

"'I don't want freedom,' says Harold D. Cooley, a North Carolina farmer who also happens to head the House Agriculture Committee. Without federal farm programs, he adds, 'we will produce ourselves into bankruptcy.' In his legislative role, farmer Cooley has had a lot to do with fighting off freedom in farming. And the report of the President's Agricultural Advisory Commission indicates that he still has allies in his battle."

The article goes on to show that in various agricultural areas of production, there really had been no problem until the government got into the act. Now, government regulations are tight and getting tighter. To quote again:

"So the commission suggests that each farmer be assigned a specific slice of the retail market. With the industry so rigidly frozen, the reasoning obviously goes, no producer could get overly optimistic about sales increases and thus over-produce.

"If the tighter controls still don't work, the planners presumably will be ready to tighten things up even more. They seem wholly undeterred by the fact that the whole process produces little but scandals, surpluses and outrageous waste. Or by the fact that their slap-dash schemes chiefly benefit only the bigger farmers, the ones who really need no help at all.

"The bankruptcy of federal policy is, however, worrying an increasing number of farmers and other citizens. In fact, some of them, unlike the regimenters, have long thought there must be nobler wars to wage than that against farm freedom."

Obviously, on the strength of these two reports in the same Journal, Frank Chodorov may not be so "far out" as some have thought. If Russia moves toward greater profit incentives while, at the same time, our government moves toward greater rigidity and price fixing in the market, the time may well approach when a "flight to Russia" will be the course taken by men who value their freedom and wish only to live their own lives and to make their own way.

At the moment, of course, Russia is no paradise, for workers or anyone else. We have a long head start on the Soviet Union, thanks to the many years of virtual freedom we did have.

But we should bear in mind that people want freedom, even if Harold Cooley is afraid of it. And when it comes to choosing between freedom and nationality, history shows that freedom wins.

Reputation

A good name is acquired day by day with consistent action. A bad name is obtained all at once by a single act.

Fear of Wealth

There seems to be a fear many people experience in relation to persons having considerable wealth. The fear seems to be based on what is called the "power" of money.

Let's examine this fear.

In order to examine it properly, we must view it within a framework of reference relating to a free market. Obviously, in a market that is not free, but exists in a distorted condition as a result of government interference, problems may arise as a result of this intervention.

A man or an organization equipped with ample funds can make an effort to influence government. This fact appears with every election.

Take a labor union as an example. Here is an organization operating in a tax-exempt status. This organization is politically oriented. It spends millions of dollars annually in an effort to influence legisation and to influence voting. This influence is invariably exerted in an effort to weaken property rights and to impose new burdens on producers. Actually, it is not the money or the wealth of the unions which is at fault. It is the manner in which this money is used to influence political decisions from which a fear can justifiably arise.

But now examine a labor union in a free market. In such a condition, the government would not be acting to impede or control market place decisions. Given that condition, we would have little to fear from labor unions, irrespective of their untold (unreported) wealth.

Take a private person of means and examine his situation in a free market. He, like the labor union, is no more than a customer. He may be an important customer because of his ability to buy a great deal. But he is no more than a customer. And in this respect, the person of considerable wealth is no different than a person of modest means. Both are customers. Both may influence the market on the strength of the purchases they make or refuse to make.

There is no such thing as a "power" in money, save in the role all of us play as customers. This "power" is the power each of us has when we are considered as demand units within a free market system. In a free market, the customer is "king" and makes the decisions which determine which businesses or enterprises will flourish and which will not.

But there is no justification for a fear in this connection. Indeed, the power each of us has over the market is the most valid power on earth. By means of this power we can and we do influence production and consumption. And this is the way it should be. In a free market, the producer has no power at all. Even if a producer is very wealthy, his wealth is used to extend and enhance his production.

As a man, a producer is only an individual consumer. He cannot and will not purchase, for himself, a great deal more than a person of very slim income. Each man, regardless of his personal income, will eat little more than three meals a day. Each man, regardless of his personal income, will sleep in only one bed. Each, regardless of his personal income, will wear only one suit of clothes at a time.

True enough, a man with large income may have more suits in his possession that he is not wearing. And he may eat more expensively. And his bed may be king size. But the difference here is only one of degree.

The "rich" man and the "poor" man compete with each other in the market place and the power each one exercises in fact, is only the power each has as a consumer.

If the "rich" man buys several suits a year and the "poor" man buys only one suit every other year, this merely indicates that the "rich" man has a little more potency as a consumer. But that is all. He has no POWER, as such.

True, the "rich" man will probably have a host of additional responsibilities. He may spend many thousands of dollars in improving his business or his income position. But this is to provide new and better products for the market, to provide new and better tools, to provide jobs for others and things others want.

This does not give him POWER. It equips him with responsibility. Even if he heads a giant corporation, as a man he consumes little more than one of the workers he hires.

Indeed, it is characteristic of "rich" men that they often consume LESS than persons of more modest means. That is what makes them "rich." They conserve and save, whereas most who are not "rich," consume right up to their ability to spend, and sometimes beyond.

In a free market, there is no reason to fear wealth. It is when wealth is used to influence legislation and to invoke the force of government in one place or another that fear may justifiably arise. But again, this should not be a fear of money; it should be a fear of the coercion and compulsion of government.

But this is a use of money that is impossible in a free market. So, in point of fact, we ought to concern ourselves with obtaining a free market. And the only thing to fear is a lack of a free market, for then all of us can be coerced and oppressed.

CHRISTMAS

To the Editor:

Once more the traditional Christmas season has come to give us new inspiration for worshipping God in spirit and in truth. Much buying and selling is the order of the day, stimulating business, which is not entirely to be despised. If all this commercial exchange is done just for its own sake, because the calendar says Christmas is here and without the faith and hope that belongs to this observance, most of our giving and receiving will not be much more than an additional burden.

The Christmas season is a distinctly Christian observance in which is rejoicing because of the fulfillment of the prophetic word; although it also has become a national holiday for unbelievers to celebrate in their own way. Even for the superficial Christian, who enjoys the pleasures and seasonal gift exchanges and who accepts the historical record of Christ's birth, Christmas has no vital significance unless he has accepted the incarnate son of man as his Redeemer and Lord — the eternal word of God's revelation for mankind's redemption.

In order to have a full measure of devotion and rejoicing, you and I must look to more than just the Bethlehem manger child. The message continues to be: "Behold! . . . unto you is born this day in the city of David, Christ the Lord."

A FABLE

To the Editor:

In view of our government's renewed interest in giving away money through foreign aid, the war on poverty and support of the English pound, let us recall one of Aesop's Fables.

"In the old days, when men were allowed to have many wives, a middle-aged man had one wife that was old and one that was young; each loved him very much, and desired to see him like herself. Now the man's hair was turning grey, which the young wife did not like, as it made him look too old for her husband. So every night she used to comb his hair and pick out the white ones. But the elder wife saw her husband growing grey with great pleasure, for she did not like to be mistaken for his mother. So every morning she used to arrange his hair and pick out as many of the black ones as she could. The consequence was the man soon found himself entirely bald."

Moral: Yield to all and you will soon have nothing to yield.

BOYS' RANCH

To the Editor:

The article in the December 14 issue of the Gazette Telegraph concerning Brockhurst Boys Ranch is factual and, sadly enough, characteristic of many other inexperienced private foundations.

However, without the well-meaning intent of earnest individuals, many of our successful private havens of today such as Boys Town and Cal Farley's would not be in existence. To keep one going until the right combination of qualified personnel and large endowments merge for success, the founders have a constant battle. Once in a while they get to win one.

Brockhurst Boys Ranch has one essential of success now in the person of Executive Director Matthew Duncan, a qualified, practical, dedicated man.

A second essential is perseverance on the part of the founders. But let us not forget those who also helped: the Woodland Park Lions Club and other Lions who have put thousands of dollars and man-hours into the project; let us not forget past directors; let us not forget the local citizenry and military who donated money and material; let us not forget the Brockhursts, who are still pouring money into their wish; let us not forget the few undefeated men and women of the old board of trustees or the new members of the present Brockhurst Boys Ranch Foundation to whom the Woodland Park Lions have deeded the property.

Until the third essential of enduring success is met, that of large endowments, appeal must still be made to the public for funds. Right here at our doors is a worthy project; you can come up and see where money is needed and where it goes. Unpaid, untiring individuals still are willing to donate their time for Brockhurst Boys Ranch and its needs; not a dollar is spent on expensive advertising or money raisers. You get more than a dollar's worth for every dollar donated. A dollar for any other purpose cannot do as much in these times!

On the money problem, and digressing slightly, it is frustrating to read that about $4,500 per boy per year will be spent to create the proposed Youth Corps of the national government. It is frustrating to hear that some public educational facilities cost as much as $10,000 per student per year! Yet, from the state, Brockhurst Boys Ranch receives but a little over a fourth of that amount per boy per year to feed, clothe, furnish special educational facilities, psychiatric help, medical attention, and trade schools. The state can afford to pay no more. The public, if it cares, must help.

There are some things money cannot buy: a Mom or Dad, perhaps; a healthy family life and ties; the care-free and happy exuberance of normal teenagers; no amount of money can buy those for unwanted children. Other values must be substituted. Love comes from the staff and from every individual who donates time or money. For these unwanted children there will be no motor bikes, no automobile, no senior proms, no fishing trips with a Dad, no "platter parties" or "pizza gorgings" — a lot of things will be denied many of the boys at Brockhurst Boys Ranch. And that denial of a normal existence is not the fault of the boy.

But, to sum up: A small but determined group of men and women still have the initiative and desire to push ahead; the Brockhurst Boys Ranch has a qualified and dedicated but practical director in the person of Mr. Matthew Duncan; despite faltering on the way, Brockhurst Boys Ranch is still in existence after three and a half years and the evidence of new construction behooves progress.

But money is still needed.

Brockhurst Boys Ranch cannot wait until faith and good fortune bring it a large endowment. It needs help today.

There are boys in Brockhurst Boys Ranch today. They need help today.

SEARCH FOR TRUTH

To the Editor:

Mr. Wes Lehmkuhl, writing under "Rip That Plan" (Open Parliament, Dec. 16) has taken the undersigned to task in connection with comment in reference to an earlier letter by Mr. Fred A. Lander.

Mr. Lehmkuhl's reactions are understood, appreciated, and deserving of reply. Writing, as I am, under recently applied external restraint — such restraint remaining in force until termination of the contract permitting it — that reply will be limited to this:

Any plan containing even the slightest vestige of aggressive force (implying a Godlike omniscience to its originator) can, and will, be torn apart by the reasoning mind. But the plan of natural law is not subject to ripping. One can, to paraphrase Cecil B. De Mille, only rip himself apart in the attempt. I would add only this bit of gentle advice. Let he beware who would search for truth UNLESS he be prepared to take the path his findings dictate.

In closing, let me wish without rancor or recrimination, to one and all, the Merriest Christmas ever!

Beauty in Buildings

By RUFUS L. PORTER

A friend of mine got a parking ticket (over-parking) the other day and went down to the police station to pay his fine. Know what he did, after paying a fine for parking on his "own" street (he owns property in town)? He came out singing the praises of the new police headquarters building, which he had never bothered to take a good look at before.

"It's really an elegant building," he said, "in the modern trend, perhaps. But, inside and out, it is a handsome structure and something we should all take pride in. It adds a lot to the city image and prestige to have public buildings of this sort."

"Beauty," I said, "elegance, handsomeness, magnificence, I can admire in whatever form it comes, even though I may deplore the methods by which a public (government) edifice was financed. I have stood and admired many a state capitol, county court house or city hall, not because they were public buildings, but because the architects and the contractors created a thing of splendor, even though the money for it was raised by immoral methods."

"What is immoral about beautiful public buildings?" he asked. "We needed a new police administration building. The authorities tell us that we need a new city hall and a new court house. All such things add to the beauty of the city."

"You own the streets," I said. "At least the politicians are forever telling the taxpayers they own them. And yet you had to go to the new police building, which, according to them, you also own, and pay a fine because a parking meter, which you didn't authorize, said you had over-parked on your own street. You also pay the salary of the policeman who ticketed you and the one who accepted your fine.

"The object of a police force is to protect you from the criminal element. But the police, in increasing numbers, spend more and more time ticketing more and more of their employers (taxpayers) for minor infractions of traffic regulations, while more and more criminals are committing more and more crimes against you and all the other taxpayers.

"Public (government) buildings are immoral because they are paid for by the taxpayers, but owned by the politicians. Thousands of taxpayers who can ill afford such luxuries as handsome city halls and police headquarters, and many who never use them or even see them, presumably own an interest in them. But just go into one of them and act as though you owned it and see what happens. You got fined for parking on a street you own, didn't you?"

"Well, yes," he said, "but that still doesn't detract from the beauty of the buildings. Aren't they just as handsome as if they had been built by private enterprise?"

"Not to me," I said, "because no matter how beautiful a government building may be, and no matter if I can't help admiring it, beneath the imposing structure I almost invariably see the bent shoulders of an over-burdened taxpayer — sort of like the pictures we used to see of Atlas supporting the world."

"You've got too much imagination," he said, "and you're opposed to progress."

"Progress does not spring from governmental spending," I said, "quite the contrary. The more a government spends, the less there will be for the individual citizens to spend, and they're the guys who have to pay for all the grandiose and unnecessary schemes of their 'servants,' the politicians. Progress is sparked by individuals and the less the government interferes with them, by way of taxes or direct competition, the more progress we are going to have. And the more handsome buildings to add glamor, beauty and prestige to the city."

"You know," he said, "you talk like a radical — you must be one of those right extremists — but sometimes you make sense."

These Days

The Russian Peasant Is Winning

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The officially sponsored news from the Soviet Union is that the 1964 harvest is substantial enough to get the country past the winter, even though it is admited that the grain yield has fallen short of the planned quota of 180 million metric tons. But, by piecing various stray items together, one gets a picture of a nation that is still staggering from pillar to post in the effort to feed itself without totally abandoning Communist forms of production.

To begin with, the prospects for a good Soviet crop in 1965 are not exactly bright. The Institute for the Study of the U.S.S.R. in Munich, which accurately predicted the disastrous harvest of a year ago, puts out the news that in September the sowing of winter crops for 1965 was 7.5 million acres behind the comparable sowing for 1964. Much of the winter sowing has been extremely late. What this means is that the shoots of young wheat could hardly be expected to be strong enough to withstand the frosts that come with the onset of a normal Russian winter.

AMERICAN CORN

Nikita Khrushchev is already receiving the blame for any possible failure of next year's crop. It seems that in his last spasm of enthusiasm for the growing of American corn, the now deposed dictator decreed that 80 million acres should be planted to it.

Before Khrushchev went off on this tangent, American corn was limited to 8 million Soviet acres, and this in the warmer parts of the country where it could be counted on to mature early. Under the conditions that prevail in most of Russia, American corn ripens late. The need to wait upon the corn harvest has kept the Russians from planting winter wheat in Khrushchev's chosen American corn acres.

Khrushchev's mistake can, of course, be rectified next year. But the troubles with Russian agriculture go way beyond the technical failures in planning. Almost everything the Soviets have done recently to jack up farm production constitutes an admission that individual incentives must be restored if food is to be conjured out of the Russian peasant.

For example, a new law will go into effect on January 1, 1965, granting pensions to collective farm workers. The pensions will not be as good as those going to retired industrial workers, but they are a beginning. Then there is President Anastas Mikoyan's recent sanction of a "revolution" in Soviet agriculture that is designed to restore a "mixed" farm system. The word has gone out that collective farm workers are to be allowed up to two acres each for their private use. And the private ownership of cows and pigs is being encouraged, with a promise that food and pasturage will be provided for them. The Soviets speak of all this as being "complementary farming."

Committed as they are to the shibboleths of socialism, the Soviets cannot officially admit that a return to the new economic policy of the nineteen twenties is contemplated. But when Mikoyan speaks of "revolution," that is what he obviously means to imply.

OVER A BARREL

To sum up, the Russian peasant is in the driver's seat, and the men in the Kremlin, who know they will stand or fall with the food supply, have had to admit as much. The fact that Leonid Brezhnev, the Communist party's first secretary, and Alexei N. Kosygin, the premier, are over a barrel is proved by their recent verbal concessions to the Russian consumer. Kosygin, in his speech at the opening of the Supreme Soviet, warned that the milk, butter and meat supply for 1965 would be poor. But he told the consumer that help would soon come from animal products obtained from private farm plots.

Meanwhile, in spite of the official proclamations that the 1964 harvests have been satisfactory, it is certain that the Soviets don't have enough grain to take care of the satellite countries of eastern Europe. Hungary has already bought 200,000 tons of grain from the West. Bulgaria has done the same. And the Czechoslovaks have said they must have 2,500,000 tons from one source or another. Russia itself has unsuccessfully tried to get 300,000 tons of pork from West Germany, which is a left-handed admission that it can't fatten up its own pigs.

With all the troubles down on the Soviet farm, is the Kremlin in any position to make an adventurous foreign policy stick? Not unless the West continues to play the patsy.

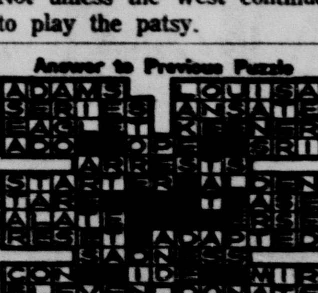
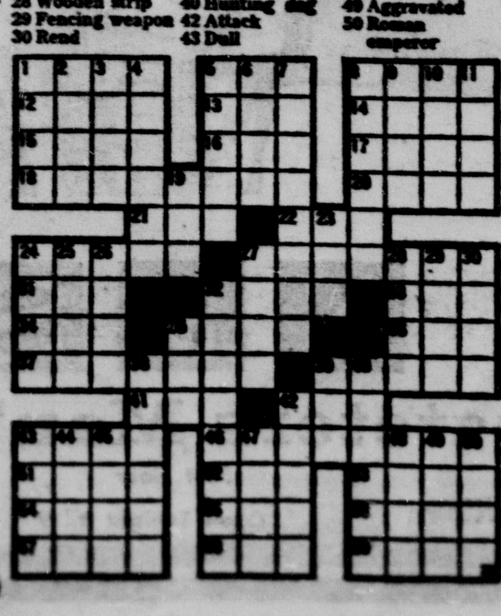
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Lawfully Irrational

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

Lately I have been taking quite a beating from a correspondent. In one sentence after another, paragraph by paragraph he hits me over the head with a specific line of sophistry which goes something like this: "Why do you continually wage a verbal war against actions which are lawfully and socially acceptable? I may lawfully claim unemployment payments from government. I do this in my own best interest. The farmer may lawfully claim certain payments from government by faithfully adhering to the laws which apply to such cases. The law makes it possible for me to purchase a home through a government-insured lending agency. Lawfully I may demand Social Security payments in my old age as a senior citizen and before that time, if I am in need, I may lawfully ask for and receive certain types of welfare aid. It is not only lawfully proper for me to accept aid in the education of my children but it is unlawful in this state for me to attempt to educate my children myself. You insist that certain actions I may take are immoral, irrational and that I become a willing receiver of stolen goods and I say I accept nothing which is not lawfully mine. One of us is wrong and it must be you since the law is on my side."

As you can see the young man does a pretty fair job of putting me in my place, whatever that is. He also, from time to time, adds insult to injury by quoting from the writings of many well known authors, among them several who are known as libertarians. I even suspect the young man of trying to get me involved in arguments with people who, from time to time, indicate a certain amount of opposition to the socialist conglomerate and at times, I have been sorely tempted. Fortunately, since I have publicly refused to accept any tag, I am in no way responsible for what others may write because I am not a member of the group, being simply, and without apology, an individual.

My correspondent is correct in enumerating many of the actions in which he may become a participant, lawfully. I call his attention to the fact that many laws have been enacted in this and other countries, with which I am certain he is not in sympathy.

I disagree, however, when he states that he may accept certain doles, lawfully, because the acceptance is in his own best interest. As I have written these columns, I have attempted to provide many examples of the horrible cost extorted when human beings believe they have a right to get something for nothing, lawfully or otherwise.

What the young correspondent is saying is that when socialism, with all of the ramifications the word implies, is enacted into law, socialism becomes socially acceptable, economically logical in his own best interest and completely respectable. I disagree on every count.

Finally, the young man insists that if what is lawfully proper is tainted with immorality, it is not his fault but the fault of the nation — the system, and that his voluntary participation is fine and dandy.

I find myself stuck with the idea that thievery does not become more or less moral depending upon the number of people who become thieves. I do not find the idea of killing other humans compatible regardless of the fact that such killing may be accomplished lawfully. I find no joy in the thought that I may be deprived of my earnings, my property, lawfully, or in the fact that I may be compelled to labor involuntarily for the support of your government or even foreign governments, lawfully.

When the Hitlerian society adopted a great number of new rules, the acceptance of those rules did not make the killing of innocent humans acceptable as respectable or moral behavior to me and I happen to know my correspondent agrees with me in this area. But, cynical acceptance of that which may be lawfully proper has no logical ending.

I will continue to contend that every human being is responsible for his or her actions and that this responsibility may not be sloughed off by blaming the nation, the country or the system itself. Quote me no quotes, young man, unless they be my own. Only for these am I responsible.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Government Policy—USA vs. USSR

Some years ago, Frank Chodorov wrote a little item entitled, "Flight To Russia." In it, he adopted the science - fiction technique and suggested that as things were doing, the day might come when the only freedom to produce would be in Russia and the mounting controls in America would make this a land of the non-free.

Satirically drawn and in the vein of fiction, most people took the article as being too far-fetched to be considered. But now we wonder. Ever since Khrushchev was given a one-way pass out of the Russian government, the Soviet Union has been turning more and more to profits as a better way of encouraging production than the expensive and inefficient method of central planning.

Actually, according to a recent issue of the Wall Street Journal, experiments with the use of profits rather than centralized bureaucratic management had been in vogue before the exit of Mr. K. But a 6,000-mile tour of the Russian terrain has convinced some journalists that the lure of profits is getting bigger in Russia.

To quote the Journal:

"The profit-motive experiment, which some Russian affairs experts believe could result in long-term changes in the whole Soviet system, is currently focused on two factories, a textile works in Gorki and a men's suit factory in Moscow. While more than 80 other Russian enterprises are using the profit concept in a limited way, the textile factory in Gorki and the suit plant (in Moscow) are gearing their entire operations to making a profit instead of simply turning out specified quotas of goods. Workers' bonuses are tied directly to profits in a way that encourages them to hustle without sacrificing quality. Production schedules are regulated by consumer demand, as in capitalist countries."

On nearly the same day and in the same publication came this article:

"'I don't want freedom,' says Harold D. Cooley, a North Carolina farmer who also happens to head the House Agriculture Committee. Without federal farm programs, he adds, 'we will produce ourselves into bankruptcy.' In his legislative role, farmer Cooley has had a lot to do with fighting off freedom in farming. And the report of the President's Agricultural Advisory Commission indicates that he still has allies in his battle."

The article goes on to show that in various agricultural areas of production, there really had been no problem until the government got into the act. Now, government regulations are tight and getting tighter. To quote again:

"So the commission suggests that each farmer be assigned a specific slice of the retail market. With the industry so rigidly frozen, the reasoning obviously goes, no producer could get overly optimistic about sales increases and thus over-produce.

"If the tighter controls still don't work, the planners presumably will be ready to tighten things up even more. They seem wholly undeterred by the fact that the whole process produces little but scandals, surpluses and outrageous waste. Or by the fact that their slap-dash schemes chiefly benefit only the bigger farmers, the ones who really need no help at all.

"The bankruptcy of federal policy is, however, worrying an increasing number of farmers and other citizens. In fact, some of them, unlike the regimenters, have long thought there must be nobler wars to wage than that against farm freedom."

Obviously, on the strength of these two reports in the same Journal, Frank Chodorov may not be so "far out" as some have thought. If Russia moves toward greater profit incentives while, at the same time, our government moves toward greater rigidity and price fixing in the market, the time may well approach when a "flight to Russia" will be the course taken by men who value their freedom and wish only to live their own lives and to make their own way.

At the moment, of course, Russia is no paradise, for workers or anyone else. We have a long head start on the Soviet Union, thanks to the many years of virtual freedom we did have.

Reputation

A good name is acquired day by day with consistent action. A bad name is obtained all at once by a single act.

Fear of Wealth

There seems to be a fear many people experience in relation to persons having considerable wealth. The fear seems to be based on what is called the "power" of money.

Let's examine this fear.

In order to examine it properly, we must view it within a framework of reference relating to a free market. Obviously, in a market that is not free, but exists in a distorted condition as a result of government interference, problems may arise as a result of this intervention.

A man or an organization equipped with ample funds can make an effort to influence government. This fact appears with every election.

Take a labor union as an example. Here is an organization operating in a tax-exempt status. This organization is politically oriented. It spends millions of dollars annually in an effort to influence legisation and to influence voting. This influence is invariably exerted in an effort to weaken property rights and to impose new burdens on producers. Actually, it is not the money or the wealth of the unions which is at fault. It is the manner in which this money is used to influence political decisions from which a fear can justifiably arise.

But now examine a labor union in a free market. In such a condition, the government would not be acting to impede or control market place decisions. Given that condition, we would have little to fear from labor unions, irrespective of their untold (unreported) wealth.

Take a private person of means and examine his situation in a free market. He, like the labor union, is no more than a customer. He may be an important customer because of his ability to buy a great deal. But he is no more than a customer. And in this respect, the person of considerable wealth is no different than a person of modest means. Both are customers. Both may influence the market on the strength of the purchases they make or refuse to make.

There is no such thing as a "power" in money, save in the role all of us play as customers. This "power" is the power each of us has when we are considered as demand units within a free market system. In a free market, the customer is "king" and makes the decisions which determine which businesses or enterprises will flourish and which will not.

But there is no justification for a fear in this connection. Indeed, the power each of us has over the market is the most valid power on earth. By means of this power we can and we do influence production and consumption. And this is the way it should be. In a free market, the producer has no power at all. Even if a producer is very wealthy, his wealth is used to extend and enhance his production.

As a man, a producer is only an individual consumer. He cannot and will not purchase, for himself, a great deal more than a person of very slim income. Each man, regardless of his personal income, will eat little more than three meals a day. Each man, regardless of his personal income, will sleep in only one bed. Each, regardless of his personal income, will wear only one suit of clothes at a time.

True enough, a man with large income may have more suits in his possession that he is not wearing. And he may eat more expensively. And his bed may be king size. But the difference here is only one of degree.

The "rich" man and the "poor" man compete with each other in the market place and the power each one exercises in fact, is only the power each has as a consumer.

If the "rich" man buys several suits a year and the "poor" man buys only one suit every other year, this merely indicates that the "rich" man has a little more potency as a consumer. But that is all. He has no POWER, as such.

True, the "rich" man will probably have a host of additional responsibilities. He may spend many thousands of dollars in improving his business or his income position. But this is to provide new and better products for the market, to provide new and better tools, to provide jobs for others and things others want.

This does not give him POWER. It equips him with responsibility. Even if he heads a giant corporation, as a man he consumes little more than one of the workers he hires.

Indeed, it is characteristic of "rich" men that they often consume LESS than persons of more modest means. That is what makes them "rich." They conserve and save, whereas most who are not "rich," consume right up to their ability to spend, and sometimes beyond.

In a free market, there is no reason to fear wealth. It is when wealth is used to influence legislation and to invoke the force of government in one place or another that fear may justifiably arise. But again, this should not be a fear of money; it should be a fear of the coercion and compulsion of government.

But this is a use of money that is impossible in a free market. So, in point of fact, we ought to concern ourselves with obtaining a free market. And the only thing to fear is a lack of a free market, for then all of us can be coerced and oppressed.

CHRISTMAS

To the Editor:

Once more the traditional Christmas season has come to give us new inspiration for worshipping God in spirit and in truth. Much buying and selling is the order of the day, stimulating business, which is not entirely to be despised. If all this commercial exchange is done just for its own sake, because the calendar says Christmas is here and without the faith and hope that belongs to this observance, most of our giving and receiving will not be much more than an additional burden.

The Christmas season is a distinctly Christian observance in which is rejoicing because of the fulfillment of the prophetic word; although it also has become a national holiday for unbelievers to celebrate in their own way. Even for the superficial Christian, who enjoys the pleasures and seasonal gift exchanges and who accepts the historical record of Christ's birth, Christmas has no vital significance unless he has accepted the incarnate son of man as his Redeemer and Lord — the eternal word of God's revelation for mankind's redemption.

In order to have a full measure of devotion and rejoicing, you and I must look to more than just the Bethlehem manger child. The message continues to be: "Behold! . . . unto you is born this day in the city of David, Christ the Lord."

A FABLE

To the Editor:

In view of our government's renewed interest in giving away money through foreign aid, the war on poverty and support of the English pound, let us recall one of Aesop's Fables.

"In the old days, when men were allowed to have many wives, a middle-aged man had one wife that was old and one that was young; each loved him very much, and desired to see him like herself. Now the man's hair was turning grey, which the young wife did not like, as it made him look too old for her husband. So every night she used to comb his hair and pick out the white ones. But the elder wife saw her husband growing grey with great pleasure, for she did not like to be mistaken for his mother. So every morning she used to arrange his hair and pick out as many of the black ones as she could. The consequence was the man soon found himself entirely bald."

BOYS' RANCH

To the Editor:

The article in the December 14 issue of the Gazette Telegraph concerning Brockhurst Boys Ranch is factual and, sadly enough, characteristic of many other inexperienced private foundations.

However, without the well-meaning intent of earnest individuals, many of our successful private havens of today such as Boys Town and Cal Farley's would not be in existence. To keep one going until the right combination of qualified personnel and large endowments merge for success, the founders have a constant battle. Once in a while they get to win one.

Brockhurst Boys Ranch has one essential of success now in the person of Executive Director Matthew Duncan, a qualified, practical, dedicated man.

A second essential is perseverance on the part of the founders. But let us not forget those who also helped: the Woodland Park Lions Club and other Lions who have put thousands of dollars and man-hours into the project; let us not forget past directors; let us not forget the local citizenry and military who donated money and material; let us not forget the Brockhursts, who are still pouring money into their wish; let us not forget the few undefeated men and women of the old board of trustees or the new members of the present Brockhurst Boys Ranch Foundation to whom the Woodland Park Lions have deeded the property.

Until the third essential of enduring success is met, that of large endowments, appeal must still be made to the public for funds. Right here at our doors is a worthy project; you can come up and see where money is needed and where it goes. Unpaid, untiring individuals still are willing to donate their time for Brockhurst Boys Ranch and its needs; not a dollar is spent on expensive advertising or money raisers. You get more than a dollar's worth for every dollar donated. A dollar for any other purpose cannot do as much in these times!

On the money problem, and digressing slightly, it is frustrating to read that about $4,500 per boy per year will be spent to create the proposed Youth Corps of the national government. It is frustrating to hear that some public educational facilities cost as much as $10,000 per student per year! Yet, from the state, Brockhurst Boys Ranch receives but a little over a fourth of that amount per boy per year to feed, clothe, furnish special educational facilities, psychiatric help, medical attention, and trade schools. The state can afford to pay no more. The public, if it cares, must help.

There are some things money cannot buy: a Mom or Dad, perhaps; a healthy family life and ties; the care-free and happy exuberance of normal teenagers; no amount of money can buy those for unwanted children. Other values must be substituted. Love comes from the staff and from every individual who donates time or money. For these unwanted children there will be no motor bikes, no automobile, no senior proms, no fishing trips with a Dad, no "platter parties" or "pizza gorgings" — a lot of things will be denied many of the boys at Brockhurst Boys Ranch. And that denial of a normal existence is not the fault of the boy.

But, to sum up: A small but determined group of men and women still have the initiative and desire to push ahead; the Brockhurst Boys Ranch has a qualified and dedicated but practical director in the person of Mr. Matthew Duncan; despite faltering on the way, Brockhurst Boys Ranch is still in existence after three and a half years and the evidence of new construction behooves progress.

But money is still needed.

Brockhurst Boys Ranch cannot wait until faith and good fortune bring it a large endowment. It needs help today.

There are boys in Brockhurst Boys Ranch today. They need help today.

SEARCH FOR TRUTH

To the Editor:

Mr. Wes Lehmkuhl, writing under "Rip That Plan" (Open Parliament, Dec. 16) has taken the undersigned to task in connection with comment in reference to an earlier letter by Mr. Fred A. Lander.

Mr. Lehmkuhl's reactions are understood, appreciated, and deserving of reply. Writing, as I am, under recently applied external restraint — such restraint remaining in force until termination of the contract permitting it — that reply will be limited to this:

Any plan containing even the slightest vestige of aggressive force (implying a Godlike omniscience to its originator) can, and will, be torn apart by the reasoning mind. But the plan of natural law is not subject to ripping. One can, to paraphrase Cecil B. De Mille, only rip himself apart in the attempt. I would add only this bit of gentle advice. Let he beware who would search for truth UNLESS he be prepared to take the path his findings dictate.

In closing, let me wish without rancor or recrimination, to one and all, the Merriest Christmas ever!

By RUFUS L. PORTER

A friend of mine got a parking ticket (over-parking) the other day and went down to the police station to pay his fine. Know what he did, after paying a fine for parking on his "own" street (he owns property in town)? He came out singing the praises of the new police headquarters building, which he had never bothered to take a good look at before.

"It's really an elegant building," he said, "in the modern trend, perhaps. But, inside and out, it is a handsome structure and something we should all take pride in. It adds a lot to the city image and prestige to have public buildings of this sort."

"Beauty," I said, "elegance, handsomeness, magnificence, I can admire in whatever form it comes, even though I may deplore the methods by which a public (government) edifice was financed. I have stood and admired many a state capitol, county court hourse or city hall, not because they were public buildings, but because the architects and the contractors created a thing of splendor, even though the money for it was raised by immoral methods."

"What is immoral about beautiful public buildings?" he asked. "We needed a new police administration building. The authorities tell us that we need a new city hall and a new court house. All such things add to the beauty of the city."

"You own the streets," I said. "At least the politicians are forever telling the taxpayers they own them. And yet you had to go to the new police building, which, according to them, you also own, and pay a fine because a parking meter, which you didn't authorize, said you had over-parked on your own street. You also pay the salary of the policeman who ticketed you and the one who accepted your fine.

"The object of a police force is to protect you from the criminal element. But the police, in increasing numbers, spend more and more time ticketing more and more of their employers (taxpayers) for minor infractions of traffic regulations, while more and more criminals are committing more and more crimes against you and all the other taxpayers.

"Public (government) buildings are immoral because they are paid for by the taxpayers, but owned by the politicians. Thousands of taxpayers who can ill afford such luxuries as handsome city halls and police headquarters, and many who never use them or even see them, presumably own an interest in them. But just go into one of them and act as though you owned it and see what happens. You got fined for parking on a street you own, didn't you?"

"Well, yes," he said, "but that still doesn't detract from the beauty of the buildings. Aren't they just as handsome as if they had been built by private enterprise?"

"Not to me," I said, "because no matter how beautiful a government building may be, and no matter if I can't help admiring it, beneath the imposing structure I almost invariably see the bent shoulders of an over-burdened taxpayer — sort of like the pictures we used to see of Atlas supporting the world."

"You've got too much imagination," he said, "and you're opposed to progress."

"Progress does not spring from governmental spending," I said, "quite the contrary. The more a government spends, the less there will be for the individual citizens to spend, and they're the guys who have to pay for all the grandiose and unnecessary schemes of their 'servants,' the politicians. Progress is sparked by individuals and the less the government interferes with them, by way of taxes or direct competition, the more progress we are going to have. And the more handsome buildings to add glamor, beauty and prestige to the city."

"You know," he said, "you talk like a radical — you must be one of those right extremists — but sometimes you make sense."

These Days

The Russian Peasant Is Winning

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The officially sponsored news from the Soviet Union is that the 1964 harvest is substantial enough to get the country past the winter, even though it is admited that the grain yield has fallen short of the planned quota of 180 million metric tons. But, by piecing various stray items together, one gets a picture of a nation that is still staggering from pillar to post in the effort to feed itself without totally abandoning Communist forms of production.

To begin with, the prospects for a good Soviet crop in 1965 are not exactly bright. The Institute for the Study of the U.S.S.R. in Munich, which accurately predicted the disastrous harvest of a year ago, puts out the news that in September the sowing of winter crops for 1965 was 7.5 million acres behind the comparable sowing for 1964. Much of the winter sowing has been extremely late. What this means is that the shoots of young wheat could hardly be expected to be strong enough to withstand the frosts that come with the onset of a normal Russian winter.

AMERICAN CORN

Nikita Khrushchev is already receiving the blame for any possible failure of next year's crop. It seems that in his last spasm of enthusiasm for the growing of American corn, the now deposed dictator decreed that 80 million acres should be planted to it.

Before Khrushchev went off on this tangent, American corn was limited to 8 million Soviet acres, and this in the warmer parts of the country where it could be counted on to mature early. Under the conditions that prevail in most of Russia, American corn ripens late. The need to wait upon the corn harvest has kept the Russians from planting winter wheat in Khrushchev's chosen American corn acres.

Khrushchev's mistake can, of course, be rectified next year. But the troubles with Russian agriculture go way beyond the technical failures in planning. Almost everything the Soviets have done recently to jack up farm production constitutes an admission that individual incentives must be restored if food is to be conjured out of the Russian peasant.

For example, a new law will go into effect on January 1, 1965, granting pensions to collective farm workers. The pensions will not be as good as those going to retired industrial workers, but they are a beginning. Then there is President Anastas Mikoyan's recent sanction of a "revolution" in Soviet agriculture that is designed to restore a "mixed" farm system. The word has gone out that collective farm workers are to be allowed up to two acres each for their private use. And the private ownership of cows and pigs is being encouraged, with a promise that food and pasturage will be provided for them. The Soviets speak of all this as being "complementary farming."

Committed as they are to the shibboleths of socialism, the Soviets cannot officially admit that a return to the new economic policy of the nineteen twenties is contemplated. But when Mikoyan speaks of "revolution," that is what he obviously means to imply.

OVER A BARREL

To sum up, the Russian peasant is in the driver's seat, and the men in the Kremlin, who know they will stand or fall with the food supply, have had to admit as much. The fact that Leonid Brezhnev, the Communist party's first secretary, and Alexei N. Kosygin, the premier, are over a barrel is proved by their recent verbal concessions to the Russian consumer. Kosygin, in his speech at the opening of the Supreme Soviet, warned that the milk, butter and meat supply for 1965 would be poor. But he told the consumer that help would soon come from animal products obtained from private farm plots.

Meanwhile, in spite of the official proclamations that the 1964 harvests have been satisfactory, it is certain that the Soviets don't have enough grain to take care of the satellite countries of eastern Europe. Hungary has already bought 200,000 tons of grain from the West. Bulgaria has done the same. And the Czechoslovaks have said they must have 2,500,000 tons from one source or another. Russia itself has unsuccessfully tried to get 300,000 tons of pork from West Germany, which is a left-handed admission that it can't fatten up its own pigs.

With all the troubles down on the Soviet farm, is the Kremlin in any position to make an adventurous foreign policy stick? Not unless the West continues to play the patsy.

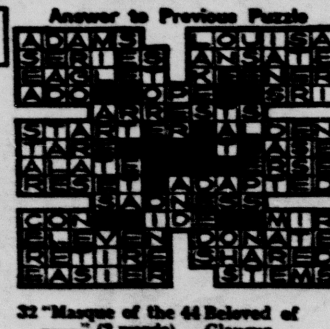
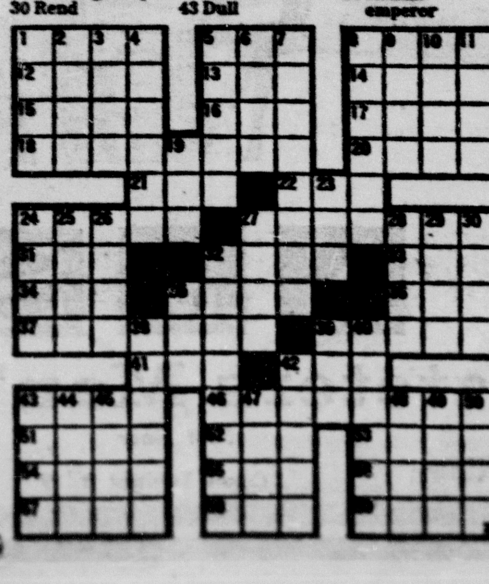
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Lawfully Irrational

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

Lately I have been taking quite a beating from a correspondent. In one sentence after another, paragraph by paragraph he hits me over the head with a specific line of sophistry which goes something like this: "Why do you continually wage a verbal war against actions which are lawfully and socially acceptable? I may lawfully claim unemployment payments from government. I do this in my own best interest. The farmer may lawfully claim certain payments from government by faithfully adhering to the laws which apply to such cases. The law makes it possible for me to purchase a home through a government-insured lending agency. Lawfully I may demand Social Security payments in my old age as a senior citizen and before that time, if I am in need, I may lawfully ask for and receive certain types of welfare aid. It is not only lawfully proper for me to accept aid in the education of my children but it is unlawful in this state for me to attempt to educate my children myself. You insist that certain actions I may take are immoral, irrational and that I become a willing receiver of stolen goods and I say I accept nothing which is not lawfully mine. One of us is wrong and it must be you since the law is on my side."

As you can see the young man does a pretty fair job of putting me in my place, whatever that is. He also, from time to time, adds insult to injury by quoting from the writings of many well known authors, among them several who are known as libertarians. I even suspect the young man of trying to get me involved in arguments with people who, from time to time, indicate a certain amount of opposition to the socialist conglomerate and at times, I have been sorely tempted. Fortunately, since I have publicly refused to accept any tag, I am in no way responsible for what others may write because I am not a member of the group, being simply, and without apology, an individual.

My correspondent is correct in enumerating many of the actions in which he may become a participant, lawfully. I call his attention to the fact that many laws have been enacted in this and other countries, with which I am certain he is not in sympathy.

I disagree, however, when he states that he may accept certain doles, lawfully, because the acceptance is in his own best interest. As I have written these columns, I have attempted to provide many examples of the horrible cost extorted when human beings believe they have a right to get something for nothing, lawfully or otherwise.

What the young correspondent is saying is that when socialism, with all of the ramifications the word implies, is enacted into law, socialism becomes socially acceptable, economically logical in his own best interest and completely respectable. I disagree on every count.

Finally, the young man insists that if what is lawfully proper is tainted with immorality, it is not his fault but the fault of the nation — the system, and that his voluntary participation is fine and dandy.

I find myself stuck with the idea that thievery does not become more or less moral depending upon the number of people who become thieves. I do not find the idea of killing other humans compatible regardless of the fact that such killing may be accomplished lawfully. I find no joy in the thought that I may be deprived of my earnings, my property, lawfully, or in the fact that I may be compelled to labor involuntarily for the support of your government or even foreign governments, lawfully.

When the Hitlerian society adopted a great number of new rules, the acceptance of those rules did not make the killing of innocent humans acceptable as respectable or moral behavior to me and I happen to know my correspondent agrees with me in this area. But, cynical acceptance of that which may be lawfully proper has no logical ending.

I will continue to contend that every human being is responsible for his or her actions and that this responsibility may not be sloughed off by blaming the nation, the country or the system itself. Quote me no quotes, young man, unless they be my own. Only for these am I responsible.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

ARADCOM Plans Holiday Cheer for Needy Families

Members of the Army Air Defense Command are saying "Merry Christmas" to the community this year by adopting 18 needy families.

Following a custom that originated at the headquarters early in the 1950s, ARADCOM will provide temporary assistance to the families, which otherwise would have little to be cheerful about at Christmas.

According to Chaplain (Col.) Arthur H. Marsh, the custom has contributed to the Christmas spirit among ARADCOM's own personnel.

Military and civilian members of the headquarters have been busy in the last week making preparations for meeting the needs of the families. Gifts of toys, clothing, appliances, food, money, and some luxury items, including fully decorated Christmas trees, have been prepared for delivery early next week to the families.

Most of the gifts are placed around trees in the areas where several Christmas section parties were held Friday in the headquarters, so that members of the command could view the final results.

Beginning Monday, the gifts and trees—complete with lights, bulbs and tinsel—were taken in trucks to the homes of the adopted families.

Chaplain Marsh reports that there are 87 children in the 18 needy families. They range from infancy on up. Needy families—some beset by unemployment, others by sickness or injury and others without a father — were selected from cases of people who are temporarily down and out referred to the ARADCOM chaplain by the El Paso County Department of Public Welfare. Some were recommended for help by members of the headquarters who had personal knowledge of families in need.

Representatives from each of the eight staff groupings designated to help the various families visited homes of the families to determine their special needs.

Some Colorado Springs merchants are making special contributions to the program. The assistance from such sources ranges from discount made on food and clothing to outright gifts of used appliances and furniture. One shoe store is selling shoes for children of needy families at cost, and ARADCOM representatives are taking the children to the store to arrange for fittings. A laundry reserved its unclaimed clothing for some of the ARADCOM—adopted families. An appliance company not only contributed a good, used washing machine for a needy family, but delivered and installed it at the home.

Among the gifts to be delivered to the families will be food baskets complete with turkeys and all the necessary trimmings, plus canned goods and other items that will provide a carry-over of food for several days.

While making sure that important needs of the families are met, ARADCOM is making sure that the children get toys as well as clothing and food. For example, one of the groups which adopted families has a doll to give to each of the 10, girls in three families.

Tea Rings Chime Out Holiday Hospitality

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Open house during the Christmas season afternoons means the welcoming aroma of extra special coffee cake, pots of clear strong coffee or tea and good will toward men.

That's where this new recipe fits. It has been tested and enjoyed by an old friend, Lois Ross, Chicago home economist.

Almond Crown Tea Ring
(Makes 1 large tea ring)
Dough

1 cake compressed or 1 pkg. dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
2-3 cup milk, scalded
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter
2½ to 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
¼ teaspoon mace
1 cup rolled oats (quick or old-fashioned, uncooked)

Filling

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, soft
¼ cup firmly-packed brown sugar
¼ cup almond paste, crumbled

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour scalded milk over sugar, salt and butter. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 1 cup flour and egg; add softened yeast, lemon rind, mace and oats. Stir in enough more flour to make a soft dough.

Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas; knead until smooth and satiny, about 10 minutes. Round dough into ball; place in greased bowl; brush lightly with melted shortening. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; cover; let rest 10 minutes. Roll dough to form a 17x9-inch rectangle. Spread with soft butter; sprinkle with brown sugar and almond paste which have been mixed together.

Roll up as with jelly roll. Form into circle on greased cooky sheet. Using kitchen scissors, start at outside of ring and cut about 2-3 way through ring toward center. Repeat every inch to form sections. Twist each section in the same direction, cut side up, overlapping sections slightly. Brush with melted butter; cover; let rise in warm place until nearly double in size, about 45 minutes.

Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 20 to 25 minutes. While warm, drizzle with thin confectioners' sugar frosting.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

A Bonfire?

DEAR ABBY: I have gone with this young man for a year and we have decided to be married. He told me that he wants me to make a big bonfire before we are married and I am to throw in all my old scrapbooks, letters, pictures and all the reminders of my past romances. He agreed that he would do the same, but he hasn't nearly the stuff to throw in that I have. Abby, what do you think of this Is this a general practice before marriage. Personally, I would like to keep these reminders of my past good times. —SENTIMENTAL

DEAR SENTIMENTAL: It is not a general practice, but if you were sure of your feelings for him you wouldn't question it. Tell him you'd like a little less heat and a little more light on the subject. He obviously is plagued by insecurity. Wait until you know him better before you go for the match.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please inform brides-to-be that most churches have rules and regulations about wedding procedure. I am tired of these young girls who come waltzing into my office to tell me what kind of "schmaltzy" songs they are going to have in the ceremony and all the other frills and gimmicks that are not in keeping with the church's long-standing ritual. I've seen weddings ruined because brides have insisted on having tiny flower girls and ringbearers, against the advice of their clergymen. Please, Abby, ask brides-to-be to include the clergyman while making their wedding plans instead of TELLING him what they are going to do in HIS church. —METHODIST MINISTER IN NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

DEAR ABBY: My husband is always telling old jokes. Should I, or shouldn't I, laugh. Not only that, but he tells the same old jokes to the same people. His feelings are easily hurt, and I wouldn't intentionally hurt him for the world. But I can see when he starts to tell a joke that everyone has heard it before and he is boring them. When the "joke" is over, he gets a few polite little laughs and he is laughing harder than anybody. What should I do, if anything. —NOT LAUGHING

DEAR NOT: Tell your husband that his jokes, though amusing to those who have not head them before, are growing whiskers for those who have—including you. But be gentle about it. He may be boring others, but he is obviously wowing himself. And not everybody can do that.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have just received a wedding invitation. We have never met the couple who are to be married. Our only connection with them is that the groom's mother lives across the street from us. I have a "waving" acquaintance with her and her husband, but my husband doesn't even know who they are.

Doesn't an invitation to the wedding ceremony ad reception call for a wedding gift. I feel that the only reason we were invited was forthe present they hoped we would bring. I resent being taken advantage of. To avoid being hypocrites, are we not entitled to decline the invitation? How should this be handled? —FEELS PUT UPON

DEAR FEELS: Decline the invitation and send the couple a congratulatory card.

ARADCOM Plans Holiday Cheer for Needy Families

Members of the Army Air Defense Command are saying "Merry Christmas" to the community this year by adopting 18 needy families.

Following a custom that originated at the headquarters early in the 1950s, ARADCOM will provide temporary assistance to the families, which otherwise would have little to be cheerful about at Christmas.

According to Chaplain (Col.) Arthur H. Marsh, the custom has contributed to the Christmas spirit among ARADCOM's own personnel.

Military and civilian members of the headquarters have been busy in the last week making preparations for meeting the needs of the families. Gifts of toys, clothing, appliances, food, money, and some luxury items, including fully decorated Christmas trees, have been prepared for delivery early next week to the families.

Most of the gifts are placed around trees in the areas where several Christmas section parties were held Friday in the headquarters, so that members of the command could view the final results.

Beginning Monday, the gifts and trees—complete with lights, bulbs and tinsel—were taken in trucks to the homes of the adopted families.

Chaplain Marsh reports that there are 87 children in the 18 needy families. They range from infancy on up. Needy families—some beset by unemployment, others by sickness or injury and others without a father — were selected from cases of people who are temporarily down and out referred to the ARADCOM chaplain by the El Paso County Department of Public Welfare. Some were recommended for help by members of the headquarters who had personal knowledge of families in need.

Representatives from each of the eight staff groupings designated to help the various families visited homes of the families to determine their special needs.

Some Colorado Springs merchants are making special contributions to the program. The assistance from such sources ranges from discount made on food and clothing to outright gifts of used appliances and furniture. One shoe store is selling shoes for children of needy families at cost, and ARADCOM representatives are taking the children to the store to arrange for fittings. A laundry reserved its unclaimed clothing for some of the ARADCOM—adopted families. An appliance company not only contributed a good, used washing machine for a needy family, but delivered and installed it at the home.

Among the gifts to be delivered to the families will be food baskets complete with turkeys and all the necessary trimmings, plus canned goods and other items that will provide a carry-over of food for several days.

While making sure that important needs of the families are met, ARADCOM is making sure that the children get toys as well as clothing and food. For example, one of the groups which adopted families has a doll to give to each of the 10, girls in three families.

Tea Rings Chime Out Holiday Hospitality

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Open house during the Christmas season afternoons means the welcoming aroma of extra special coffee cake, pots of clear strong coffee or tea and good will toward men.

That's where this new recipe fits. It has been tested and enjoyed by an old friend, Lois Ross, Chicago home economist.

Almond Crown Tea Ring
(Makes 1 large tea ring)
Dough

1 cake compressed or 1 pkg. dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
2-3 cup milk, scalded
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter
2½ to 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
¼ teaspoon mace
1 cup rolled oats (quick or old-fashioned, uncooked)

Filling

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, soft
¼ cup firmly-packed brown sugar
¼ cup almond paste, crumbled

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour scalded milk over sugar, salt and butter. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 1 cup flour and egg; add softened yeast, lemon rind, mace and oats. Stir in enough more flour to make a soft dough.

Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas; knead until smooth and satiny, about 10 minutes. Round dough into ball; place in greased bowl; brush lightly with melted shortening. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; cover; let rest 10 minutes. Roll dough to form a 17x9-inch rectangle. Spread with soft butter; sprinkle with brown sugar and almond paste which have been mixed together.

Roll up as with jelly roll. Form into circle on greased cooky sheet. Using kitchen scissors, start at outside of ring and cut about 2-3 way through ring toward center. Repeat every inch to form sections. Twist each section in the same direction, cut side up, overlapping sections slightly. Brush with melted butter; cover; let rise in warm place until nearly double in size, about 45 minutes.

Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 20 to 25 minutes. While warm, drizzle with thin confectioners' sugar frosting.

Dear Abby--

A Bonfire?

DEAR ABBY: I have gone with this young man for a year and we have decided to be married. He told me that he wants me to make a big bonfire before we are married and I am to throw in all my old scrapbooks, letters, pictures and all the reminders of my past romances. He agreed that he would do the same, but he hasn't nearly the stuff to throw in that I have. Abby, what do you think of this Is this a general practice before marriage. Personally, I would like to keep these reminders of my past good times. —SENTIMENTAL

DEAR SENTIMENTAL: It is not a general practice, but if you were sure of your feelings for him you wouldn't question it. Tell him you'd like a little less heat and a little more light on the subject. He obviously is plagued by insecurity. Wait until you know him better before you go for the match.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please inform brides-to-be that most churches have rules and regulations about wedding procedure. I am tired of these young girls who come waltzing into my office to tell me what kind of "schmaltzy" songs they are going to have in the ceremony and all the other frills and gimmicks that are not in keeping with the church's long-standing ritual. I've seen weddings ruined because brides have insisted on having tiny flower girls and ringbearers, against the advice of their clergymen. Please, Abby, ask brides-to-be to include the clergyman while making their wedding plans instead of TELLING him what they are going to do in HIS church. —METHODIST MINISTER IN NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

DEAR ABBY: My husband is always telling old jokes. Should I, or shouldn't I, laugh. Not only that, but he tells the same old jokes to the same people. His feelings are easily hurt, and I wouldn't intentionally hurt him for the world. But I can see when he starts to tell a joke that everyone has heard it before and he is boring them. When the "joke" is over, he gets a few polite little laughs and he is laughing harder than anybody. What should I do, if anything. —NOT LAUGHING

DEAR NOT: Tell your husband that his jokes, though amusing to those who have not head them before, are growing whiskers for those who have—including you. But be gentle about it. He may be boring others, but he is obviously wowing himself. And not everybody can do that.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have just received a wedding invitation. We have never met the couple who are to be married. Our only connection with them is that the groom's mother lives across the street from us. I have a "waving" acquaintance with her and her husband, but my husband doesn't even know who they are.

Doesn't an invitation to the wedding ceremony ad reception call for a wedding gift. I feel that the only reason we were invited was forthe present they hoped we would bring. I resent being taken advantage of. To avoid being hypocrites, are we not entitled to decline the invitation? How should this be handled? —FEELS PUT UPON

DEAR FEELS: Decline the invitation and send the couple a congratulatory card.

Opening lead: Jack of ♣

Although South misread the opponents' club holdings in today's hand, he effected a last minute recovery to salvage his six heart contract.

South's hand is worth 17 points counting high cards and distribution and North is known to have at least 16 for his notrump bid. The partnership is therefore assured of the 33 required for a slam undertaking and, when South's jump respon esin hearts was raised, he checked back for aces. Although one ace was missing, he decided to gamble out the club situation on the chance that either North had good clubs or sufficient side strength to provide discards.

West chose to open his singleton jack of clubs in the vague hope of obtaining a ruff. Declarer played the dummy's queen in order to retain a finessing position in either direction against the ten in the event one of his opponents held four clubs. Trumps were drawn in three rounds, as East discarded a spade on the last heart.

The moment of decision had arrived for South, and he decided to play West for a sequence in clubs headed by the jack-ten. He therefore cashed the ace, intending to finesse on the next round if East showed out. When West failed everything turned black, for it now appeared that declarer must lose a club trick as well as the ace of spades.

A moment's reflection convinced South that he still had a chance provided that East had the ace of spades. A diamond was led to North's ace and a small spade was returned. East was obliged to duck—so as not to establish both the king and queen — and South put up the king which held the trick.

Declarer now cashed his remaining hearts and the king of diamonds to produce this three card end position:

South led the three of spades in order to throw East in with the ace. The latter was obliged to surrender the last two tricks to North.

Spicy Christmas Present

Handsomely printed, bound and illustrated cookbooks, written by outstanding gourmets and food experts, make distinctive Christmas gifts. Besides being trustworthy guides to more enjoyable eating, they are a pleasure to look at and are regarded by many as status symbols in a gourmet-conscious society.

One of the most attractive of this year's crop is the 623-page "Spice Cookbook" by Avanelle Day and Lillie Stuckey. The 16 full-color pages and 350 color sketches by the Dutch artist Jo Spier were made on the spot in spice growing areas throughout the world. They have a bewitching delicacy and subtle authenticity that contrast happily with the splashing and sprawlin color pages in some contemporary food books.

We have respected the work of the two gifted authors for years. Their handsome book, bound in linen cloth with gold stamping, contains 1,400 original recipes using herbs in appetizers, main courses and desserts, plus sections on baking bread, jam and jelly, pickles and relishes. Furthermore, this working cookbook in royal clothing contains many imaginative menus for entertaining, spice and herb flavoring charts, and is skillfully indexed. It measures 10½x7¼ and is 1¾ inches thick, making a sizable and magical gift.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I bought some plastic foam rubber and cut a piece of it in the shape of a sponge, then hand-stitched three layers of net on one side only.

This makes the best dish sponge ever.

I use the foam side to wipe the table and the net side to scratch the "sticky" with (for those who have little ones who sometimes miss their mouths, as mine do).

"Len"

Dear Heloise:

Let's have pity on the optician and people's temple hinges:

Don't replace lost screws with tooth picks. We recommend that one merely join the temple hinge to the front hinge of the frame and sew through this little hole with a needle and thread, or use a tiny safety pin so as not to strip the threads.

Richards Optical

Dear Heloise:

The plastic baskets that strawberries, etc.; sometimes come in, are handy gadgets for the house.

I use one for the soap pads by the sink, one holds jar lids, another keeps my fingernail polish bottles in one spot, and one may be used as an extra colander.

At Christmas, I decorate the baskets by weaving red ribbon through the sides and filling them with candy or cookies totally wrapped in red nylon net.

Mrs. C. M. Green, Jr.

Dear Heloise:

This hint is for mothers whose children have soiled stuffed toys:

Buy a large bag of shredded foam, usually less than a dollar. When the toys become soiled, just rip out the closing seam, pull out all of the cotton stuffing and replace it with the chopped foam.

Sew up the seam again and the toys are ready to wash right in your washing machine.

They will come out nice and clean and always stay soft for the baby. The synthetic pile (NOT real fur) on the outside of the toy can be brushed beautifully with a vegetable brush. It is all nice and fulffy and like new again.

Reader

Dear Heloise:

The other night we had frozen dinners for the first time, and after we ate, I started to throw the foil plates away.

I decided they were exactly what I needed for my 18-month-old daughter. She loves to eat from them since each food has its own compartment!

If it drops on the floor it doesn't break; it is easily scalded for sanitary purposes, and the ridge is just perfect to keep the food in the tray when she uses her spoon.

Sandy Lockhart

Dear Heloise:

I find that if I rinse my plastic curtains, or other plastic articles, in warm water, then hang them to drip, they are much more pliable and less wrinkled when dry.

Mrs. A. Jinks

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

After five years of hard wear, our living room set, upholstered in nylon frieze, had fibers sticking up all over.

I hit upon the idea of shaving, yes shaving, off the fibers with electric clippers.

It worked wonderfully and the set looks like new again.

Living Room Barber

Dear Heloise:

When my father wanted to scrape the frost off the windshield, he couldn't find the scraper.

So he decided to try using the plastic cover from one of the new coffee cans and believe it or not, he found that it worked better than the regular scraper.

The cover bends in one's hand to fit the curve of the windshield and peels off a good wide swath of frost at each swipe.

Seems so many uses have been found for these new cans, but I bet no one else thought of using the cover as a scraper.

Serve Creamed Oysters

Oysters are eaten in every state of the union, not just along the coastal areas where they are grown. They are now available generally in all modern supermarkets and fish stores.

Combine them with rice. The bland flavor of cooked rice is a perfect foil for the delicate flavor of the plump and succulent oyster. Creamed oysters on rice is ideal for a buffet party since the creamed oysters may be prepared in a chafing dish.

Trace Ritual Beginnings From Trees to Santa

NEW YORK (UPI) — Have you ever wondered why you put ornaments on a Christmas tree or why stockings are hung by the fireplace. Or how the idea of a Yule tree got its start.

These and other Christmas customs are explained in a report from the Greeting Card Association.

The legend of the Christmas ornament dates to the 10th century when an Arabian geographer, Georg Jacob, brought to the people of Europe the tale that on the night of the Lord's nativity, all the trees burst forth with ripened fruits and blossoming flowers.

The story spread up and down the land until it was believed that this miracle had come to pass in memory of the birth of Christ.

This legend led to the Christmas ornament.

Martin Luther, meanwhile, some 400 years ago one beautifully clear cold Christmas eve, lifted his eyes to the sky in contemplation.

He saw that thousands of stars seemed to be clinging to the branches of the lofty pines by the wayside. His first thought was to share this inspiring spectacle with his family.

That night a glittering tree blazing with star-bright candles was Luther's gift to his loved ones — and a gift to the world. He is credited with cutting the first Yule tree and covering it with lights.

The custom of hanging stockings by the fireplace is traced to New Amsterdam. The Dutch settlers brought their Old World customs. Ever a people to play, they chose a burgher to dress as St. Nicholas and had him distribute toys and sweets to the children of the village. He also filled the stockings hung by the fireplace.

With him came his helper, Black Peter. The children shortened his name Nicholas to Ni'-Klaus or Claus. The Spanish influence in the Netherlands changed "saint" to "santa" — hence Santa Claus.

Mistletoe, meanwhile, became associated with Christmas in the days of the ancient Druids who populated Britain and Gaul before the time of Christ.

The Druids practiced mystic ceremonies deep within the forests. Atop the giant oaks they found a growing plant which drew its only life from the air—mistletoe. They said it was heaven - sent and designated purity and love.

They encouraged kissing under the mistletoe and used it in marriage ceremonies.

The original St. Nicholas, inspiration for the contemporary version of Santa Claus, was Archbishop of Myra in Asia Minor during the fourth century. This kindly bishop devoted his life to the welfare of children.

A once wealthy noble became destitute and was unable to provide dowries for his three young daughters. In answer to his prayers, St. Nicholas appeared on three successive nights, leaving bags of gold for each of the fortunate children.

Thus to St. Nicholas, the patron saint of all good children, has been ascribed the Christmas custom of parents bestowing gifts upon their children.

Punchy Cognac

Fruit flavors predominate in a holiday punch called cognac cheer. Slice 1 cucumber, unpeeled, into a punch bowl. Add 4 tablespoons of sugar, the grated rinds of 2 lemons, 1 cup of orange juice, ¼ cup of lemon juice and 1 bottle (fifth size) of cognac. Allow to blend for 1 hour. At serving time, add a large chunk of ice, 1 cup of orange - flavored liqueur, and 2 bottles of champagne. Serves about 20.

Cooling Drink

A refreshing party beverage combines 1 quart of apple juice with 6 tablespoons of lemon juice and ¼ cup of grenadine. Chill before serving. Garnish with lemon slices. Serves 6.

Wreath Decorates Dinner, Not Window

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Christmas wreaths are for windows, of course. But why not grace the festive dinner with one, too?

No cooking is involved and it can be made in advance to save last minute fuss. At serving time, all you have to do is to dip the mold into a bowl of warm water to the depth of its contents and run a small paring knife around the rim. Invert on a serving platter and shake. If it does not unmold readily, repeat the procedure. Once the mold is on the platter, garnish with cherries and bits of green angelica to simulate Yuletide berries and leaves.

Eggnog Wreath
(Six to eight servings)

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup sugar, divided
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1¼ cups milk
- 2 teaspoons rum flavoring
- ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup heavy cream
- Angelica
- Maraschino cherries

Mix together gelatin, ¼ cup of the sugar and salt in medium saucepan. Beat together egg yolks and milk; stir into gelatin mixture. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens slightly and gelatin is dissolved, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in rum flavoring and nutmeg. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gradually add and beat until very stiff. Fold in gelatin mixture. Whip 1 cup heavy cream; fold in. Turn into a 5-cup mold; chill until firm.

When ready to serve, unmold on serving platter. To make "wreath," top mold with spoonfuls of whipped cream and garnish with halved maraschino cherries and Angelica "holly leaves."

NOTE: Commercial eggnog may be used. Sprinkle 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin evenly on ½ cup water in a medium saucepan to soften. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat; stir in 2½ cups commercial eggnog. Chill until mixture is the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Fold in 1 cup heavy cream, whipped. Continue as directed in above recipe.

Santa Claus' Packing Monster Toys Along With Traditional Playthings

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The bulge in Santa's pack grows bigger every year in dollars and cents. This year keeps the pace, with predictions that total toy sales will set another record.

The Toy Manufacturers of the U.S.A., Inc., reported that sales for the first three quarters of 1964 were running 4.6 per cent ahead of the same period in 1963. And in 1963, toy sales — at the manufacturers' level — reached $1.141 billion for the biggest year up to that time in U.S. toy history.

L. John Swedlin, president of the manufacturers' group, predicted 1964 would top all other years when the final tallies are in. But he didn't want to speculate by how much.

Swedlin gave reasons for the optimistic picture — "There are more children around to buy toys for, and more money to buy toys with."

"And," said Swedlin, "there has been no major catastrophe as there was last year before the holidays. People are just in a better spending frame of mind."

Well, everything goes, from a toy gun called a one-man army (it performs as seven different play weapons) to a French guillotine complete with knife (this is play?) to the more standard games, dolls and wheel goods.

Frank Gavitt, at the Toy Information Bureau, a service of the manufacturers, put together, however, a list of the most numerous toys on the market for the holidays.

With the greatest number of toys in the top category, Gavitt's list went this way:

Autos and trucks, dolls, preschool games, doll toys, military toys, art toys, kits, mechanical toys, animal toys, monster toys, wheel toys, construction toys, car racing sets, and planes.

Gavitt also cited a list, selected by a "jury" of 12 experienced toy buyers, of the toys apt to be most popular this year.

These were toys the buyers felt would show the greatest sales gain and the list went: educational toys, military, hobby, auto racing sets, wheel toys and games.

Military toys long have enjoyed popularity and this year's children will be receiving such things as grenades that explode, rapid fire gatling guns, guerrilla scatter guns, to name a few. There also are clothes to make the pint-sized private look like the war hero of his dreams. One maker has created the monkey division battle jacket—"a would-be soldier pops it over his head, secures the belt, hitches his pants up a notch, and finds a miniature arsenal displayed on his chest," said the manufacturer.

In the monster toys about to be unleashed on the youngsters, there are exact replicas of the grotesque creatures who inhabit television shows, plus a group of giant insects who the maker said are "guaranteed to make the whole family squeal with pretended terror come Christmas dawn."

The leader is Horrible Hamilton, the Bela Lugosi of the insect world—"a vision of humps, bumps, legs and eyes all in living color." In the horror department also is the re-emergence of Frankenstein, King Kong, and the Hunchback of Notre Dame.

Dolls are of course the Christmas perennial, but this year added to the list are the mop-topped replicas of the Beatles. Add to other dolls which copy human behavior a new one called Weepsy Wiggles, who squirms and cries as she takes her bottle, and Baby Dollkins, so flexible of joint she can assume or hold almost any position her play mother can dream up.

But the more prosaic playthings still are around—some of them getting old in years although still young in heart. There's the Teddy Bear who long since has passed his 50th year.

And, celebrating their 50th birthdays this year are Tinkertoys and the Raggedy Ann, the oldest doll in toyland.

Although South misread the opponents' club holdings in today's hand, he effected a last minute recovery to salvage his six heart contract.

South's hand is worth 17 points counting high cards and distribution and North is known to have at least 16 for his no-trump bid. The partnership is therefore assured of the 33 required for a slam undertaking and, when South's jump respon esin hearts was raised, he checked back for aces. Although one ace was missing, he decided to gamble out the club situation on the chance that either North had good clubs or sufficient side strength to provide discards.

West chose to open his singleton jack of clubs in the vague hope of obtaining a ruff. Declarer played the dummy's queen in order to retain a finessing position in either direction against the ten in the event one of his opponents held four clubs. Trumps were drawn in three rounds, as East discarded a spade on the last heart.

The moment of decision had arrived for South, and he decided to play West for a sequence in clubs headed by the jack-ten. He therefore cashed the ace, intending to finesse on the next round if East showed out. When West failed everything turned black, for it now appeared that declarer must lose a club trick as well as the ace of spades.

A moment's reflection convinced South that he still had a chance provided that East had the ace of spades. A diamond was led to North's ace and a small spade was returned. East was obliged to duck—so as not to establish both the king and queen — and South put up the king which held the trick.

Declarer now cashed his remaining hearts and the king of diamonds to produce this three card end position:

South led the three of spades in order to throw East in with the ace. The latter was obliged to surrender the last two tricks to North.

Spicy Christmas Present

Handsomely printed, bound and illustrated cookbooks, written by outstanding gourmets and food experts, make distinctive Christmas gifts. Besides being trustworthy guides to more enjoyable eating, they are a pleasure to look at and are regarded by many as status symbols in a gourmet-conscious society.

One of the most attractive of this year's crop is the 623-page "Spice Cookbook" by Avanelle Day and Lillie Stuckey. The 16 full-color pages and 350 color sketches by the Dutch artist Jo Spier were made on the spot in spice growing areas throughout the world. They have a bewitching delicacy and subtle authenticity that contrast happily with the splashing and sprawlin color pages in some contemporary food books.

We have respected the work of the two gifted authors for years. Their handsome book, bound in linen cloth with gold stamping, contains 1,400 original recipes using herbs in appetizers, main courses and desserts, plus sections on baking bread, jam and jelly, pickles and relishes. Furthermore, this working cookbook in royal clothing contains many imaginative menus for entertaining, spice and herb flavoring charts, and is skillfully indexed. It measures 10½x7¼ and is 1¾ inches thick, making a sizable and magical gift.

Fishy Snacking

Some new ideas for an old snack favorite — herring. Serve herring in cream sauce in bite-size pastry tartlets baked from your favorite pie crust mix. Garnish each with chopped olives and pimiento. HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I bought some plastic foam rubber and cut a piece of it in the shape of a sponge, then hand-stitched three layers of net on one side only.

This makes the best dish sponge ever.

I use the foam side to wipe the table and the net side to scratch the "sticky" with (for those who have little ones who sometimes miss their mouths, as mine do).

"Len"

Dear Heloise:

Let's have pity on the optician and people's temple hinges:

Don't replace lost screws with tooth picks. We recommend that one merely join the temple hinge to the front hinge of the frame and sew through this little hole with a needle and thread, or use a tiny safety pin so as not to strip the threads.

Richards Optical

Dear Heloise:

The plastic baskets that strawberries, etc.; sometimes come in, are handy gadgets for the house.

I use one for the soap pads by the sink, one holds jar lids, another keeps my fingernail polish bottles in one spot, and one may be used as an extra colander.

At Christmas, I decorate the baskets by weaving red ribbon through the sides and filling them with candy or cookies totally wrapped in red nylon net.

Mrs. C. M. Green, Jr.

Dear Heloise:

This hint is for mothers whose children have soiled stuffed toys:

Buy a large bag of shredded foam, usually less than a dollar. When the toys become soiled, just rip out the closing seam, pull out all of the cotton stuffing and replace it with the chopped foam.

Sew up the seam again and the toys are ready to wash right in your washing machine.

They will come out nice and clean and always stay soft for the baby. The synthetic pile (NOT real fur) on the outside of the toy can be brushed beautifully with a vegetable brush. It is all nice and fulffy and like new again.

Reader

Dear Heloise:

The other night we had frozen dinners for the first time, and after we ate, I started to throw the foil plates away.

I decided they were exactly what I needed for my 18-month-old daughter. She loves to eat from them since each food has its own compartment!

If it drops on the floor it doesn't break; it is easily scalded for sanitary purposes, and the ridge is just perfect to keep the food in the tray when she uses her spoon.

Sandy Lockhart

Dear Heloise:

I find that if I rinse my plastic curtains, or other plastic articles, in warm water, then hang them to drip, they are much more pliable and less wrinkled when dry.

Mrs. A. Jinks

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

After five years of hard wear, our living room set, upholstered in nylon frieze, had fibers sticking up all over.

I hit upon the idea of shaving, yes shaving, off the fibers with electric clippers.

It worked wonderfully and the set looks like new again.

Living Room Barber

Dear Heloise:

When my father wanted to scrape the frost off the windshield, he couldn't find the scraper.

So he decided to try using the plastic cover from one of the new coffee cans and believe it or not, he found that it worked better than the regular scraper.

The cover bends in one's hand to fit the curve of the windshield and peels off a good wide swath of frost at each swipe.

Seems so many uses have been found for these new cans, but I bet no one else thought of using the cover as a scraper.

Serve Creamed Oysters

Oysters are eaten in every state of the union, not just along the coastal areas where they are grown. They are now available generally in all modern supermarkets and fish stores.

Combine them with rice. The bland flavor of cooked rice is a perfect foil for the delicate flavor of the plump and succulent oyster. Creamed oysters on rice is ideal for a buffet party since the creamed oysters may be prepared in a chafing dish

Creamed Oysters On Rice

1 pint raw oysters with liquor
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
Dash of Tabasco
1-3 cup chopped celery hearts
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 cups hot cooked rice
6 hard-cooked eggs, halved
Dash of paprika

Pick over oysters to remove any bits of shell. Cook oysters in liquor until their edges begin to curl. Melt butter, add flour and brown slightly. Drain liquor from oysters and add enough milk to liquor to make 2 cups liquid. Add liquid to flour mixture slowly. Simmer, stirring constantly until thickened. Add salt, pepper, and Tabasco. Add oysters, celery and parsley and cook only long enough to warm oysters. Place rice on serving platter. Arrange eggs on rice and pour creamed oysters over all. Sprinkle with paprika. Garnish with parsley if you wish.

Death Penalty Abolition Seen In Britain

By COLIN FROST

LONODN (AP) — Abolition of the death penalty in peacetime Britain is expected soon following a 2 to 1 vote in the House of Commons.

By a vote of 355-170, the House Monday night approved in principle a bill to end hanging as the penalty for murder. The 185-vote majority, boosted by the votes of some 60 Conservatives, was far larger than expected.

The bill still faces detailed committee examination and has to pass through the House of Lords, which has always thrown out antihanging measures. The Commons vote, however, was so decisive that parliamentary observers believed the Lords would either go along or the Commons would override an adverse vote by the upper house.

Two men are under sentence of death in Britain — a 26-year-mobster convicted of killing twice in one year. Although the Home Office announced Monday that one of them would be executed Jan. 5, it was assumed that both now would be spared.

Another double murderer, Frederick Allen Smith, 35, escaped from London's Wormwood Scrubs jail an hour before the Commons debate started.

Prison officers were critical of the Commons decision. Their general secretary, F. C. Castell, said "It seems clear that murderers already serving prison sentence can kill fellow prisoners or prison officers in the near future virtually with impunity since, as they will be already serving life sentences, it is difficult to see what further punishment can be imposed."

The Commons bill would abolish the homicide law of 1957, which provides hanging for capital murderers and life imprisonment — in practice seldom more than 10 years — for others. Capital murder includes killing to avoid arrest, in furtherance of theft, by shooting or explosives, of a police or prison office or for a second time.

Sir Frank Soskice, the Laborite home secretary, backed the abolition bill on behalf of the government. He warned that killers of inherent viciousness might have to be confined for the rest of their lives.

Soskice got unexpected support from Henry Brooke, home secretary in the last Conservative government, who said that he ruled a man must die six times. By the end of his Home Office service, he said, he was convinced that hanging no longer was justified as a deterrent.

Anti-Americanism Probed by Filipinos

MANILA (AP) — President Diosdado Macapagal ordered Justice Secretary Salvador Marino today to make an on-the-spot inquiry into three recent incidents at U.S. military bases which have touched off anti-American sentiment.

The incidents include the fatal shooting of two Filipinos by American guards and a reported attempt to bomb an American elementary school at Clark Air Base.

Opposition congressmen have called for a congressional investigation. Some demand that the U.S. waive jurisdiction so the guards can be tried in Philippine courts.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D.,Ph.D.

Earl indicates a very common secret sex worry of many intelligent widowers and old bachelors. So scrapbook this vital case and by all means send for the sex booklet mentioned below. For sex-scared husbands often try to drown their fears in whiskey!

CASE U-463: Earl B., aged 58, is a magazine editor.

Dr. Crane," he began, "I have been a widower for 7 years.

"But a few months ago I met a very attractive widow, aged 44, who is so charming and jolly that I have fallen in love with her.

"We have mutual friends, the same hobbies and belong to the same church, so it seems we are quite compatible.

"But, Dr. Crane, I am worried about sex, for I have lived alone for seven years.

"Would our marriage become platonic?"

Many intelligent Americans
ple medical facts.

For example, glands as well as muscles benefit from regular use.

And you can develop larger muscles at any time in your life just by regular exercise thereof.

For example, a man past 50 can decide to indulge in weight lifting or push-ups and other types of calisthenics till he enlarges his muscles very definitely.

By the same token, you can take a partially functional gland and make it enlarge and secrete more fully by similar regular exercise.

Sex appetite, like your gastric hunger, is something that is supposed to last all your lifetime.

"MARRIAGE?"
U-463

Just because you pass the age of 50, doesn't mean that you lose your desire for beefsteak or peach pie and other delicious viands.

Nor does it mean you should likewise lose your enjoyment of a wife or husband, IF.

And that big "IF" means, IF you realize the true medical facts about glandular function.

By many a man hamstrings himself by fears and doubts.

Actually, anybody in reasonably good health should be able to function in the marital relationship till the age of 100 years if he doesn't afflict himself with a sexual inferiority complex.

A Catholic priest recently asked me how to answer this question often presented to him in Cana Conferences:

"Is it true that there are only so many rounds of sexual ammunition in the male?"

And the answer is a great big "NO!"

So old bachelors and widowers need have no significant fear they are 50, 60 or even 75.

Even the retina of the eye remains healthier and more functional when it is used.

That is one reason why opthalmologists (eye surgeons) urge that cross-eyes be corrected early.

Otherwise, the retina of the unused eye may grow relatively inert and blind just from disuse!

Irregularity of milking a cow will also tend to reduce the milk secretion of her udder and make her go "dry."

So send for my booklet "How to Prevent Impotence," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

Low Cost Jet Rates Seen by Airline

WASHINGTON (AP) — O. Roy Chal, chairman of Trans Caribbean Airways, Inc., has offered to buy Northeast Airlines and operate its New York-Florida passenger service at low-cost jet rates.

His proposal was sent to the Civil Aeronautics Board Monday.

Both Eastern and National Air Lines currently operate the Florida route alongwithNorth-Florida route along with Northeast. Northeast has been fighting a CAB ruling that only two lines are needed on the route and that Northeast's authority be ended.

There have been reports National and Eastern have each offered $7.5 million to Northeast if it would give up its New York-Florida route.

Judge Grounds Young Scooter Driver Tuesday

"Who taught you how to drive?" asked Judge Allan Asher in Municipal Court Tuesday.

"Nobody," said David Erb, 14, 1124 W. Pikes Peak Ave., who had been charged with disobeying a stop sign and speeding.

"That's right," said Judge Asher. Noting that these were David's third and fourth offenses this year, he imposed a fine of $25 on each count. The $50 is to be suspended, however, on two conditions: that David is never again in any more trouble of this sort, and that he attend the traffic lecture Jan. 13 at the City Auditorium.

"The scooter has been sold," said David's mother.

Cris Martinez, 27, 325 S. 11th St., was found guilty of careless driving, and was fined $35. Officer Jerome Bussmeyer testified that a westbound car driven by Cris Martinez had collided with an eastbound car driven by Manuel Martinez Nov. 8, in the eastbound lane of 700 W. Colorado Ave. Manuel Martinez, 504 W. San Miguel, testified that several persons were injured in the accident. Cris Martinez testified that he had lost a cigarette and was reaching for it, when the car went onto the opposing lane. Cris Martinez was found innocent of charges of reckless driving. He was represented by attorney Ben Fann.

Marcell Goodrum, 29, Ent AFB, was found guilty of charges of careless driving and was fined $35. Judge Asher ordered Goodrum's right to drive in the city of Colorado Springs suspended for 15 days. Officer Bussmeyer testified that he had observed a car driven by Goodrum go through a stoplight, and had clocked it at speeds up to 40 mph in a 20 mph zone.

Alan Eikelberger, 18, 1814 Francis Place, was found guilty of speeding, and was fined $50. Judge Asher also suspended his right to drive in the city of Colorado Springs for 15 days, adding that this was Eikelberger's fourth offense this year.

Also found guilty of speeding was Lloyd Brown, 35, 2412 W. Pikes Peak Ave. Judge Asher said that this was Brown's third offense this year, and imposed a fine of $35.

Also found guilty of speeding, his fourth offense this year, was Thomas Pastore, 25, Fort Carson. He was fined $50.

Boyd Ellingson, 31, 2307½ W. Kiowa St., was found guilty of careless driving, and was fined $15. Charges against him of reckless driving were dismissed. He testified that a broken heater hose had resulted in a temporary loss of visibility through his windshield.

The case of Bernice Jones (Williams), 22, 825 S. Weber St., was continued to Dec. 28 for entry of a plea. She has been charged with soliciting for purposes of prostitution, and is represented by Attorney Heacox.

William Bodinson, 53, 120 S. Cascade Ave., was found guilty of drunkenness, and was fined $25.

Jean Carroll, 22, Omaha, Neb., was found guilty of vagrancy, and was sentenced to 10 days in county jail.

Uniform Building Code Tabled by City Council

Adoption of the 1964 Uniform Building Code was tabled for 60 days Tuesday by the City Council.

Councilmen said they needed additional time to study new requirements under the code.

One new provision would have required enclosed staircases in three-story buildings.

Council overroad the City Planning Commission recommendation to grant Everett Conover R-3 two family residential zoning for 1705-1808 Eagleview Dr. Instead they granted R-4 eight-family residential zoning for this area which is now R-2 single-family residential.

An area resident, Philip Blakely, 2502 Mt. Vernon, objected to the change because of additional population density and traffic. He has been a regular objector to Conover's requests for zone changes in this area. Councilwoman Betty Krouse tried to get R-3 zoning to "uphold the decision of the Planning Commission." She is the official City Council observer at CPC meetings.

In other business the council:

—Approved vacation of a portion of Railroad Street between Beacon Street extended south and Van Buren Street extended east (second reading).

— Granted Shepard Land Co.'s request with Roy Pring to change zoning on eight parcels of land in the vicinity of South Circle Drive and Airport Road (second reading).

—Annexed to the city Lots 1-8, Block 1, Calvert Heights Addition, by Frontier Refining Co. (second reading).

—Annexed to the city Lots 1-4, Block 22, Richner's Addition No. 1, by emergency ordinance (second reading).

— Approved changes in duties of the city auditor; assessments in Improvement District 64; and annexation of a two acre tract west of Academy Boulevard and about half a mile north of the old Maizeland Road intersection, (all on second reading).

— Granted city water and sewer to Superior Sanitation Inc., 150 E. Polk St., and water to Stevenson Produce Co., 3147 N. Century.

— Changed zoning from R-2 to R-5 for 430-442 Valley Hi Circle; R-2 to R-4 for north side of 3900 Bock of East Pikes Peak Ave.; R-2 to R-5 for 3002-3034 W. Bijou St.; 1.8 acres, northwest of Fountain Boulevard and South Circle Drive, R-2 to PBC-1 planned business center; R-3 and C-4 neighborhood business to C-5 intermediate business for 400 Block of West Bijou Street; and four acrse on the north side of the 2800 and 2900 Blocks of Airport Road from R-2 single-family residential to R-5 multi-family residential.

—Changed zoning requested by Mesa Terrace Corp. from A-1 garden homes to R-1 single family residential for 24.17 acres northeast of Mesa Road and Uintah Street; and a 166 by 305-foot lot in this tract from A-1 to R-5 multi-family residential; and a 110 by 203-foot lot in the parcel from A-1 to R-4.

—Granted a zoning change from R-3 and C-4 to C-5 intermediate business for the east side of the 1900 Block of North Weber Street.

— Accepted the preliminary and final plat of .7 acres southwest of West Fontanero and North Chestnut Streets.

— Vacated a 12-foot alley between Lots 14 and 15 in Harrison's Resubdivision.

— Gave Roy Print $16,141 in drainage credits for Pikes Peak Golf Course.

—Approved annexation of 2.8 acres east of Palmer Park by William B. Chapman.

— Tabled the preliminary and final plan of Thunderbird Estates by George Hutchinson, 100 acres between Monument Creek and Interstate 25 and south of the Air Force Academy.

This was sent back to the City Planning Commission by the council due to a question on the sanitation system. Hutchinson said re planned to connect with the North Suburban Sanitation System instead of having his own lagoon disposal system.

— Approved the final plat of Northglen Park Subdivision, 61.2 acres northwest of Palmer Park and Murray Boulevards, requested by Real Estate Management Corp.

—Approved a liquor license transfer for the Wigwam Lounge, 106 E. Pikes Peak Ave., from Harvey Swanson to Forest W. Cromwell.

— Approved a new beer, wine and liquor license for JA-CO Inc., for 517-19 E. Pikes Peak Ave. In a survey conducted by City Clerk-Treasurer Robert Parker, 98 persons favored the license, 98 opposed it and 164 had no opinion. The license was granted to Carl Jarvis.

— Renewed various existing licenses for 1965 and a contract between the city and two car rental agencies for space in the planned Peterson Field civilian terminal.

—Authorized the city clerk-treasurer to invest about $28,000 in cemetery endowment funds.

— Received two notices of injury on city property.

No-Account Check Charge Filed Here

A charge of no-account check was filed against Ervin Elmer Olson in District Court Tuesday.

Olson, 32, 107 Harvard Ave., is alleged to have written a $40 check Nov. 22, with intent to defraud Simms Super Markets.

Judge William M. Calvert set bond at $1,000.

Tools Valued at $550 Taken From Truck Lot

Tools worth $550 were stolen from the Poor Boys' Truck Lot, the sheriff's office said Tuesday.

According to Deputy Sheriff Bob Snuggs the tools were in a van belonging to Emmet Jones of the truck lot and were in the van at the time of the incident.

Astronaut Takes Soaring Trip At Local Club

The idea was the same — the motive power startlingly different!

Astronaut Neil Armstrong has guided the roaring, rocket powered X-15 to an altitude of 207,000 feet.

In Colorado this weekend, the astronaut coaxed a radically different type of aircraft to 23,500 feet with the same feeling of deep satisfaction experienced in his X-15 flight.

The astronaut was the guest of the Air Force Academy Soaring Club and the Pikes Peak Soaring Association during his stay in the Colorado Springs area.

Flying from the Black Forest Gliderport, Atronaut Armstrong rode the Pikes Peak wave to 23,500 feet. Although the Colorado flight missed the X-15 record by more than 180,000 feet, it produced an altitude gain of 11,500 feet — enough to qualify the astroanut for his Gold "C" Soaring Award.

To qualify for the award, a pilot must accomplish a 3,000 meter or 9,840 foot altitude gain.

The astronaut completed the other two Gold "C" required tasks of a 187 - mile flight and a five - hour duration flight at San Angelo, Tex. earlier this year.

The award to Astronaut Armstrong will bring the Gold "C" pilots in the U.S. to approximtely 200.

The use of the Black Forest Gliderport by out-of-state pilots is increasing, according to the Soaring Association.

Two members of the Houston Soaring Club accompanying the astronaut also made outstanding flights. C. C. Holt recorded an altitude gain of 12,050 feet and K. R. Taylor, a gain of 13,750 feet.

Astronaut Armstrong and his companions said they'll be heading back for the Pikes Peak area to earn their diamond altitude award, a gain of 5,000 meters or 16,404 feet.

Zoning Denial Upheld by City Council

A zoning denial by the City Planning Commission was upheld by the City Council Tuesday — despite charges the Commission acted in "an arbitrary and capricious manner."

This charge and others were made in a letter to the Council written by Attorney Ernest O. Tullis.

The City Council had set Tuesday as a public hearing on Tullis' request for C-6 general business zoning instead of R-5 multi-family residential zoning for two lots facing Marion Street and two lots facing San Miguel Street, immediately west of Academy Boulevard.

In appealing the Planning Commission's denial of C-6 Nov. 12, Tullis' letter said:

"The Planning Commission failed to recognize the . . . area sought to be rezoned has acquired a commercial character.

"The Planning Commission failed to properly consider the wishes of residents in the area, particularly adjoining residents, and denied rezoning despite the fact there was no objection by any resident in any area."

The attorney said the area was zoned on two sides as C-6 and intermediate business of multi - residential uses on all other sides.

Tullis said the owners of the property were not in a financial position to develop the property unless the C-6 zone can be obtained.

He commented that the Planning Commission ". . . should not be in the position of determining the success of a commercial zone."

Before the Council denied Tullis' request, Planning Commission Chairman Andrew Marshall said the zoning change was denied in an "effort by the Planning Commission to set some limit on the area of commercial expansion."

Tullis represented Donald R. Bruhn and other property owners.

Robert Jacques Home for Christmas After Ordeal

By SHARON ERVIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Robert Lee Jacques, 16, is home for Christmas. He is in a wheel chair, maybe only temporarily, but the important thing is he will spend Christmas with his family.

Bob, as he's better known, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Jacques, 121 E. Ohio Ave., Fountain. He was injured in a car accident Aug. 9. He and two friends were driving back to Fountain from Colorado Springs when the rear suspension of the car broke, throwing the vehicle out of control. The others received less serious injuries.

Bob spent several weeks in St. Francis Hospital here before his doctor had him moved to Craig Rehabilitation Hospital in Denver.

"I didn't know there was anything wrong with my legs for a long time," Bob said. He looks like most 16-year-olds. He has a shock of unruly black hair and dark eyes. He sits quietly in the wheel chair but, although he doesn't fidget, there is an air of restlessness about him.

"I thought I was just too tired to move them at first," he said. "Then, about the time they moved me to Craig, I started thinking something was wrong." With that, Mrs. Jacques broke in.

"Bobby never was afraid of anything in his life," she said. "And I don't really think he was afraid that day, but he asked me to go to Denver with him in the ambulance. I knew he was a little worried. I was too. We knew there was damage to some nerves in his back, but we didn't know how much.

"But when he got there, it was very nice. They let us visit him nearly every week end. Most of the time the whole family tried to go but Bobby is the second oldest of six children and it's hard for all of us to go anyplace altogether.

"I think Johnny (Bobs' 17-year-old brother) was the most upset about it all. He wanted to quit school and get a job to help out with the expenses. We had insurance to cover most of the expense and I talked him out of that. But Johnny took it pretty hard when he found out Bob was having trouble moving his legs. They are real close."

Bob got home Friday and the first reactions were mixed.

"I think we all wanted to ask a lot of questions at first," Mrs. Jacques said, "but we didn't know for sure how touchy he might be about them. But he never was the kind of boy you pampered. It didn't take long for things to get back to normal. The kids are fighting with him again despite the wheel chair and I treat him the same as I do the others.

"He seemed a little depressed about going back to school Monday morning, but the doctor had said he should get right back. He always was a rascal at school and he has lots of friends. I knew it would be hard for him. I called later in the morning to check on him, though, and he was doing fine." Bob picked up the story there.

"It was terrible at first," he said. "Johnny went with me. But all my friends said hello and maybe they were just being careful, but nobody said anything that hurt my feelings or anything like that. I was sure glad to get back."

Bob said he is beginning to get back some control of his legs.

"I can feel them now and can move them a little. The doctor said I might not be able to tell any difference for a long time—maybe never. But I think I'll be a lot better in six months or so."

Asked what he wanted for Christmas, Bob said he would like to have a car—with hand equipment until he gets the use of his legs back.

"There won't be a lot of money for Santa Claus this year," Mrs. Jacques said, pointedly, "but having the family back together again and everyone being healthy is enough for me." Bob nodded his understanding and agreement.

She is the official City Council observer at CPC meetings.

Astronaut Takes Soaring Trip At Local Club

The idea was the same — the motive power startlingly different!

Astronaut Neil Armstrong has guided the roaring, rocket powered X-15 to an altitude of 207,000 feet.

In Colorado this weekend, the astronaut coaxed a radically different type of aircraft to 23,500 feet with the same feeling of deep satisfaction experienced in his X-15 flight.

The astronaut was the guest of the Air Force Academy Soaring Club and the Pikes Peak Soaring Association during his stay in the Colorado Springs area.

Flying from the Black Forest Gliderport, Atronaut Armstrong rode the Pikes Peak wave to 23,500 feet. Although the Colorado flight missed the X-15 record by more than 180,000 feet, it produced an altitude gain of 11,500 feet — enough to qualify the astroanut for his Gold "C" Soaring Award.

To qualify for the award, a pilot must accomplish a 3,000 meter or 9,840 foot altitude gain.

The astronaut completed the other two Gold "C" required tasks of a 187 - mile flight and a five - hour duration flight at San Angelo, Tex. earlier this year.

The award to Astronaut Armstrong will bring the Gold "C" pilots in the U.S. to approximtely 200.

The use of the Black Forest Gliderport by out-of-state pilots is increasing, according to the Soaring Association.

Two members of the Houston Soaring Club accompanying the astronaut also made outstanding flights. C. C. Holt recorded an altitude gain of 12,050 feet and K. R. Taylor, a gain of 13,750 feet.

Astronaut Armstrong and his companions said they'll be heading back for the Pikes Peak area to earn their diamond altitude award, a gain of 5,000 meters or 16,404 feet.

Zoning Denial Upheld by City Council

A zoning denial by the City Planning Commission was upheld by the City Council Tuesday — despite charges the Commission acted in "an arbitrary and capricious manner."

This charge and others were made in a letter to the Council written by Attorney Ernest O. Tullis.

The City Council had set Tuesday as a public hearing on Tullis' request for C-6 general business zoning instead of R-5 multi-family residential zoning for two lots facing Marion Street and two lots facing San Miguel Street, immediately west of Academy Boulevard.

In appealing the Planning Commission's denial of C-6 Nov. 12, Tullis' letter said:

"The Planning Commission failed to recognize the . . . area sought to be rezoned has acquired a commercial character.

"The Planning Commission failed to properly consider the wishes of residents in the area, particularly adjoining residents, and denied rezoning despite the fact there was no objection by any resident in any area."

The attorney said the area was zoned on two sides as C-6 and intermediate business of multi - residential uses on all other sides.

Tullis said the owners of the property were not in a financial position to develop the property unless the C-6 zone can be obtained.

He commented that the Planning Commission ". . . should not be in the position of determining the success of a commercial zone."

Before the Council denied Tullis' request, Planning Commission Chairman Andrew Marshall said the zoning change was denied in an "effort by the Planning Commission to set some limit on the area of commercial expansion."

Tullis represented Donald R. Bruhn and other property owners.

"I think we all wanted to ask a lot of questions at first," Mrs. Jacques said, "but we didn't know for sure how touchy he might be about them. But he never was the kind of boy you pampered. It didn't take long for things to get back to normal. The kids are fighting with him again despite the wheel chair and I treat him the same as I do the others.

"He seemed a little depressed about going back to school Monday morning, but the doctor had said he should get right back. He always was a rascal at school and he has lots of friends. I knew it would be hard for him. I called later in the morning to check on him, though, and he was doing fine." Bob picked up the story there.

"It was terrible at first," he said. "Johnny went with me. But all my friends said hello and maybe they were just being careful, but nobody said anything that hurt my feelings or anything like that. I was sure glad to get back."

Bob said he is beginning to get back some control of his legs.

"I can feel them now and can move them a little. The doctor said I might not be able to tell any difference for a long time—maybe never. But I think I'll be a lot better in six months or so."

Asked what he wanted for Christmas, Bob said he would like to have a car—with hand equipment until he gets the use of his legs back.

"There won't be a lot of money for Santa Claus this year," Mrs. Jacques said, pointedly, "but having the family back together again and everyone being healthy is enough for me." Bob nodded his understanding and agreement.

Rescue of Flood Victims Told By Copter Pilot

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "Our part was small," said Maj. Jim Cochran of the U.S. Air Force.

Maj. Cochran is a helicopter pilot. He was talking about the job he and two crew members did on a rainy, dark windswept day. They picked up 21 men and women and a baby in the basket of their helicopter and carried them to safety from the floodwaters of the roaring Molalla River in western Oregon.

Maj. Cochran, 39, from Tacoma, Wash., is with Detachment 9 of the Western Air Rescue Center, based at Portland. His was one of two helicopters scanning the river for stranded people.

Let him tell it —

"We were in the air when we found out they needed us — some people caught by the rivers. The sheriff's people were trying to get boats in the water, but they just couldn't do it. It was too swift.

"We pushed on through some pretty bad weather. There they were on the roof of a house right at the 'Y' of the Molalla River.

"I had to stay right on the deck. Probably 200 feet. Just high enough to clear the trees and wires.

"We had a stiff wind there, probably 45 knots. I wasn't all sure we could get in over the trees. The water was rushing on both sides of the house. My hoist operator — Sgt. Charles Magatha said it was real critical. A log could have knocked the house off.

"We got nine people off there. One was a baby. And, yes, I guess there was a dog on that one. Well, we couldn't leave him.

"We just skipped over the trees. We had to go down pretty low in between the trees. I think the hoist operator had to let out about all the cable he had, 100 feet.

"It was kind of a bad situation. Because the house was so close to the trees. We had to kind of swing the basket in to let them grab it.

"When we got them off we didn't even pick the basket up we just flew them away from the flood and touched them down. Then we went back for the others. We only took one at a time because it was touchy. In the other cases, 10 miles up the river, we took off as many as three at a time.

There was one place where we took off a woman with one leg. It was hard for the older people to get in and out of the basket.

"There were three from another little house. They were no problem. I told them to bring the dog right along.

"No, I didn't get to talk to any of the people.

"We appreciated being called. Sometimes when they have an emergency they forget to call us."

Store Guardbox Wrecked by Fire

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — After his liquor store had been bombed twice and robbed once, Byron Gambulos constructed a pillbox atop the building and manned it with a shotgun-wielding guard.

The pillbox was destroyed by fire Tuesday. The blaze apparently started when the guard started to light a heater in the 6-by-6-foot bullet-proof structure.

Gambulos said he will build another pillbox.

'House Dick' Is Fast Fading From Scene

The house detective is rapidly becoming extinct.

According to Dan Pavis, general manager of O'Hare Inn, adjoining O'Hare International Airport in Chicago, only about five per cent of hotels and motels throughout the United States continue to employ that old Hollywood favorite, the "house dick."

Motels and credit cards are credited with all but eliminating the stock character in most hotels not too many years ago.

"In most cases the house detective has outlived his use. In the past, he kept general order within a hotel, checked up on suspicious guests, and made sure no one left without paying their bill. Even though there is more travelling than ever today and more crime, these problems have considerably lessened over the years," Pavis says.

"Actually, the boom in motels is one reason that there is so little need for the house detective," Pavis points out. "Large lobbies of centrally-located hotels used to be hangouts for pickpockets and various thieves, and the house detective was a means of checking on them and guarding against known criminals.

But now, with so many motels spread out across the country, the old-time hotel con games, like stripping rooms, lifting baggage or fixed card games have faded and there are very few incidents that require having a detective running around. The great majority of owners have found that they can run a motel with little or no trouble at all."

As for the problem of guests running out on their bills, Pavis says that he cannot even remember the last time it happened at O'Hare Inn. "I'm sure that everyone who ever ran a hotel or motel had a guest do it. But it's surprising how few times it has happened here," reports Pavis.

"Much of our clientele consists of businessmen, and many of them have their bills charged to various credit cards anyway. I believe that people are just more honest these days and to employ a house detective would be a complete waste of time and money."

A road map will keep an older child occupied quite a while when making long trips and prove valuable in an educational way as well.

Bulldog Mascot Gets Greetings From U.S.A.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Percy, the 9-year-old English bulldog mascot at the Municipal Animal Shelter, is getting Christmas cards from all over the nation.

A story about Percy was distributed by The Associated Press recently along with a picture and the old boy has a flock of pen pals already.

Bloody and mauled, Percy was half dead when he was found at the shelter as a young dog. He was nursed back to health and became a favorite with everyone in the area.

"I am mailing this to make sure you get a good dinner," wrote a nurse in Las Vegas, Nev., who enclosed $2.

"Hi Percy," an Omaha girl wrote. "I once had some beautiful dogs like you. I loved them so much. I wish I could spend the whole day with you."

Many of the cards are signed with the names of other dogs, such as Ling and Ching, two Pekingese in Pueblo, Colo.; Trinket, a miniature poodle in LaCrosse, Wis., and Hey-Boy Jacobs, a fox terrier in Murphysboro, Ill.

"This is from Cheri, our silver poodle puppy, and Nicodemus, our 17-year-old cat who came to breakfast 16 years ago and never left," wrote a Seattle woman. Two girls in Muscatine, Iowa, sent two cans of dog food.

"Percy, do you think I could have a picture sent to me? I know your keeper will read this letter to you. Also could you give your signature of a pawprint on the back of the picture? asked an 11-year-old Tulsa girl.

There also were amorous letters, containing pictures, from elderly bulldogs, who believed they and Percy could be happy together.

Ruth Coffee, the poundkeeper, said Percy has received about $6. Most of the donors asked that he be given a special Christmas dinner. But Mrs. Coffee said the municipal farm staff always takes care of the dinner.

"Years ago, when he was in his prime, he used to wear a big wide collar," Mrs. Coffee said. "We might just get him another collar with the money."

Percy posed for a picture, yawned, and waddled off for another nap.

Hughie Said Theatrical Curiosity

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — A theatrical curiosity is "Hughie," a play with a couple of special claims on audience attention which premiered Tuesday night at Broadway's Royale Theater.

Item one, it was written by Eugene O'Neill in 1942, but until now never has been shown in this country. Item two, a performance of glittering artistry by Jason Robards in what is virtually a 65-minute monologue.

Truth to tell, O'Neill is raking over a lot of familiar material in this hotel lobby yarn about the pipedreams which keep people going.

There are just two characters, and both of them would fit easily into O'Neill's other saga of skid-row disillusion, "The Iceman Cometh." The dialogue rings with echoes.

The story concerns a petty gambler-wise guy who compensates for failure by boasting to Hughie, a flophouse night clerk. That worthy is dead when the play begins, and the ensuing soliloquoy is a rambling reprise of the tinhorn's shabby life.

As Hughie's successor, who listens without hearing, Jack Dodson intersperses brief comments which effectively highlight Robards' harangue.

Director Jose Quintero, who has teamed with Robards in several other notable O'Neill presentations, goes about his work in a mood of subdued introspection. The 1928 setting by David Hays is realistically exact.

"Hughie" is minor O'Neill, but it is show-cased with great skill for admirers of that sometimes dated dramatist of tortured despair.

Visitors Watch Yule Tree Lighting Rites

A number of Colorado Springs visitors as well as several Pikes Peak region residents, now patients at Bella Vita Residential Nursing Home, viewed a tree-lighting ceremony at the nursing home Sunday afternoon.

The ceremony, marking the arrival of the holiday season at Bella Vita Towers, thrilled the hundreds in attendance. The sight of the 11-foot Douglas fir, decorated with more than 1,000 living Rambler Red and white carnations, was beautiful. The tree has been described as the most unusual Christmas tree in the world.

Donald G. Miller, administrator of Bella Vita Towers, explained that the carnations were developed and grown by R. G. Braun, an associate of Park Elitch Wholesale Florists, Denver.,

and furnished by Tom Eakins, head of that firm.

The tree-lighting ceremony was conducted by Dr. Frank Zarlengo, medical director and one of the owners of Bella Vita Towers. He proposed a champagne toast to the Bella Vita Tree, in which he expressed the hope that the holiday season would be a joyous one for all, and that peace and good will would prevail throughout the world.

At that point, the switch controlling the hundreds of tree lights was activated by Marcellus Merrill, president of Merrill Engineering Laboratories, Denver. Myriad white bud lights were illuminated, joining the thousands of blossoms in a dazzling red, white and green display of holiday splendor.

Of special significance were the words of Merrill, who designed and installed the precision balancing systems within the United States Orbital Solar Observatories, two of which are currently circling the earth, with a third scheduled to be launched in the near future from Cape Kennedy, Florida.

Merrill stated: "It's my sincere hope that the important symbolic meaning contained in the Bella Vita Tree will also circle the earth, not only during the holiday season, but for all days to come."

The public is cordially invited to see the Bella Vita tree. It is now on display at the nursing home, 4450 E. Jewell Ave., at Bellaire Street, Denver. It may be seen from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 6 to 9 p.m. daily.

Accept Life, Enjoy It, Says Bob Hope's Wife

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It's our life, and I'm used to it, I think a lot of people try to fight against the kind of life they have, and they end up making themselves miserable. It's much easier to accept the life you have, and enjoy it."

This was the philosophy of Dolores Hope as she faced another Christmas without her husband, the ubiquitous Bob. While he is entertaining American soldiers in South Viet Nam, she will be spending Christmas Day at their home in North Hollywood.

There will be no sighs, no regrets.

"Our holiday has pretty much fallen into a routine," Mrs. Hope explained.

"It's not like other people's, but it has its compensations."

The routine is this: before his departure overseas, Bob spends a half-day selecting gifts of fruit to send to friends all over the United States. About 10 days before Christmas, he departs with his troupe. Mrs. Hope completes the shopping, has Christmas Eve dinner with the children. In recent years, eldest son Tony also has been on the trip with Bob.

The stay-at-home Hopes attend midnight Mass and in the morning open a few of their gifts. Then they have Christmas dinner with close friends.

"Last year it was the Crosbys," Mrs. Hope said. "They wanted us to come up to their home at Burlingame this year, but it was too far for us."

Bob often calls home during his trips, but seldom on Christmas Day. "That's his busiest day; he does three or four shows in widely separated places," his wife explained. "The time difference also makes it difficult."

He returns a few days after Christmas and then the celebration really begins. Assorted Hopes come out from Cleveland to join the festivities. Last year the crowd for dinner numbered 32, only two of them non-Hopes. The family celebration continues until Epiphany, Jan. 6.

This week Mrs. Hope was busy with preparations for Christmas and Bob's return. One of her favorite chores is overseeing the setting up of the manger scene that overlooks the street in front of the house. Carved almost life-size in wood by Italian artists, it depicts three successive portions of the Christmas story.

I asked Mrs. Hope if she didn't regret not having her husband home for Christmas some years.

"Not any more," she replied. "I used to — until I went along on one of the tours. Since then I've had no reservations — as long as Bob is up to the trip."

"Regrets? Not a one. God has been awfully good to us. We've had a wonderful life."

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP)—Gains by selected blue chips again propped up market averages today. Trading was moderate early this afternoon.

Chemical blue chips and some of the top oils gained but the over-all list was ragged.

Motors, farm implements, aerospace issues, airlines, rails, utilities and cigarette stocks were mostly lower.

Brokers saw the list as continuing in a spate of yearend tax transactions and trading becoming more cautious as the Christmas weekend approached.

Comsat, down a couple of points, resumed its retreat, although it pared a point from its worst loss taken at the start.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at 323.4 with industrials up .7, rails off .2 and utilities off 3..

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .33 at 870.69.

Prices were irregularly higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were mostly unchanged.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—Trading in soybeans on the Chicago Board of Trade today was inhibited by wildcat strike news affecting East Coast dockworkers.

Most contracts were off late in the session despite strength in soybean oil and a bullish report on crushings.

There was commercial selling of wheat against a limited demand and corn went lower on sales by elevator houses. Oats and rye apparently followed the broad market influence.

Estimated carlot receipts were wheat 1, corn 52, oats 3, barley 30, soybeans 7 and rye none.

Accept Life, Enjoy It, Says Bob Hope's Wife

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It's our life, and I'm used to it. I think a lot of people try to fight against the kind of life they have, and they end up making themselves miserable. It's much easier to accept the life you have, and enjoy it."

This was the philosophy of Dolores Hope as she faced another Christmas without her husband, the ubiquitous Bob. While he is entertaining American soldiers in South Viet Nam, she will be spending Christmas Day at their home in North Hollywood.

There will be no sighs, no regrets.

"Our holiday has pretty much fallen into a routine," Mrs. Hope explained.

"It's not like other people's, but it has its compensations."

The routine is this: before his departure overseas, Bob spends a half-day selecting gifts of fruit to send to friends all over the United States. About 10 days before Christmas, he departs with his troupe. Mrs. Hope completes the shopping, has Christmas Eve dinner with the children. In recent years, eldest son Tony also has been on the trip with Bob.

The stay-at-home Hopes attend midnight Mass and in the morning open a few of their gifts. Then they have Christmas dinner with close friends.

"Last year it was the Crosbys," Mrs. Hope said. "They wanted us to come up to their home at Burlingame this year, but it was too far for us."

Bob often calls home during his trips, but seldom on Christmas Day. "That's his busiest day; he does three or four shows in widely separated places," his wife explained. "The time difference also makes it difficult."

He returns a few days after Christmas and then the celebration really begins. Assorted Hopes come out from Cleveland to join the festivities. Last year the crowd for dinner numbered 32, only two of them non-Hopes. The family celebration continues until Epiphany, Jan. 6.

This week Mrs. Hope was busy with preparations for Christmas and Bob's return. One of her favorite chores is overseeing the setting up of the manger scene that overlooks the street in front of the house. Carved almost life-size in wood by Italian artists, it depicts three successive portions of the Christmas story.

I asked Mrs. Hope if she didn't regret not having her husband home for Christmas some years.

"Not any more," she replied. "I used to — until I went along on one of the tours. Since then I've had no reservations — as long as Bob is up to the trip."

"Regrets? Not a one. God has been awfully good to us. We've had a wonderful life."

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP)—Gains by selected blue chips again propped up market averages today. Trading was moderate early this afternoon.

Chemical blue chips and some of the top oils gained but the over-all list was ragged.

Motors, farm implements, aerospace issues, airlines, rails, utilities and cigarette stocks were mostly lower.

Brokers saw the list as continuing in a spate of yearend tax transactions and trading becoming more cautious as the Christmas weekend approached.

Comsat, down a couple of points, resumed its retreat, although it pared a point from its worst loss taken at the start.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at 323.4 with industrials up .7, rails off .2 and utilities off 3..

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .33 at 870.69.

Prices were irregularly higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were mostly unchanged.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—Trading in soybeans on the Chicago Board of Trade today was inhibited by wildcat strike news affecting East Coast dockworkers.

Most contracts were off late in the session despite strength in soybean oil and a bullish report on crushings.

There was commercial selling of wheat against a limited demand and corn went lower on sales by elevator houses. Oats and rye apparently followed the broad market influence.

Estimated carlot receipts were wheat 1, corn 52, oats 3, barley 30, soybeans 7 and rye none.

Foundling Lion Will Get New Quarters

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Leo, once a foundling lion, will move into new $10,000 quarters at the Phoenix Zoo during the holiday season.

The 8-year-old king of beasts was acquired by the zoo through court proceedings after being abandoned by his original owner two years ago.

Zoo officials decided they could keep Leo after youngsters in the area adopted the lion and began a campaign to build him a new home. The youngsters held auctions and breakfasts, and did odd jobs to raise the $10,000.

Another Pet Nikita Scheme Is Junked

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government today announced the liquidation of another organizational scheme inherited from former Premier Khrushchev. A brief official bulletin invalidated the 1963 decree setting up the central Asian economic region.

The bulletin also announced the release of V. M. Gushchin from his duties as chairman of the State Production Committee for Construction of Central Asia.

Rescue of Flood Victims Told By Copter Pilot

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "Our part was small," said Maj. Jim Cochran of the U.S. Air Force.

Maj. Cochran is a helicopter pilot. He was talking about the job he and two crew members did on a rainy, dark windswept day. They picked up 21 men and women and a baby in the basket of their helicopter and carried them to safety from the floodwaters of the roaring Molalla River in western Oregon.

Maj. Cochran, 39, from Tacoma, Wash., is with Detachment 9 of the Western Air Rescue Center, based at Portland. His was one of two helicopters scanning the river for stranded people.

Let him tell it —

"We were in the air when we found out they needed us — some people caught by the rivers. The sheriff's people were trying to get boats in the water, but they just couldn't do it. It was too swift.

"We pushed on through some pretty bad weather. There they were on the roof of a house right at the 'Y' of the Molalla River.

"I had to stay right on the deck. Probably 200 feet. Just high enough to clear the trees and wires.

"We had a stiff wind there, probably 45 knots. I wasn't all sure we could get in over the trees. The water was rushing on both sides of the house. My hoist operator — Sgt. Charles Magatha said it was real critical. A log could have knocked the house off.

"We got nine people off there. One was a baby. And, yes, I guess there was a dog on that one. Well, we couldn't leave him.

"We just skipped over the trees. We had to go down pretty low in between the trees. I think the hoist operator had to let out about all the cable he had, 100 feet.

"It was kind of a bad situation. Because the house was so close to the trees. We had to kind of swing the basket in to let them grab it.

"When we got them off we didn't even pick the basket up we just flew them away from the flood and touched them down. Then we went back for the others. We only took one at a time because it was touchy. In the other cases, 10 miles up the river, we took off as many as three at a time.

There was one place where we took off a woman with one leg. It was hard for the older people to get in and out of the basket.

"There were three from another little house. They were no problem. I told them to bring the dog right along.

"No, I didn't get to talk to any of the people.

"We appreciated being called. Sometimes when they have an emergency they forget to call us."

Store Guardbox Wrecked by Fire

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — After his liquor store had been bombed twice and robbed once, Byron Gambulos constructed a pillbox atop the building and manned it with a shotgun-wielding guard.

The pillbox was destroyed by fire Tuesday. The blaze apparently started when the guard started to light a heater in the 6-by-6-foot bullet-proof structure.

Gambulos said he will build another pillbox.

'House Dick' Is Fast Fading From Scene

The house detective is rapidly becoming extinct.

According to Dan Pavis, general manager of O'Hare Inn, adjoining O'Hare International Airport in Chicago, only about five per cent of hotels and motels throughout the United States continue to employ that old Hollywood favorite, the "house dick."

Motels and credit cards are credited with all but eliminating the stock character in most hotels not too many years ago.

"In most cases the house detective has outlived his use. In the past, he kept general order within a hotel, checked up on suspicious guests, and made sure no one left without paying their bill. Even though there is more travelling than ever today and more crime, these problems have considerably lessened over the years," Pavis says.

"Actually, the boom in motels is one reason that there is so little need for the house detective," Pavis points out. "Large lobbies of centrally-located hotels used to be hangouts for pickpockets and various thieves, and the house detective was a means of checking on them and guarding against known criminals.

But now, with so many motels spread out across the country, the old-time hotel con games, like stripping rooms, lifting baggage or fixed card games have faded and there are very few incidents that require having a detective running around. The great majority of owners have found that they can run a motel with little or no trouble at all."

As for the problem of guests running out on their bills, Pavis says that he cannot even remember the last time it happened at O'Hare Inn. "I'm sure that everyone who ever ran a hotel or motel had a guest do it. But it's surprising how few times it has happened here," reports Pavis.

"Much of our clientele consists of businessmen, and many of them have their bills charged to various credit cards anyway. I believe that people are just more honest these days and to employ a house detective would be a complete waste of time and money."

A road map will keep an older child occupied quite a while when making long trips and prove valuable in an educational way as well.

Bulldog Mascot Gets Greetings From U.S.A.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Percy, the 9-year-old English bulldog mascot at the Municipal Animal Shelter, is getting Christmas cards from all over the nation.

A story about Percy was distributed by The Associated Press recently along with a picture and the old boy has a flock of pen pals already.

Bloody and mauled, Percy was half dead when he was found at the shelter as a young dog. He was nursed back to health and became a favorite with everyone in the area.

"I am mailing this to make sure you get a good dinner," wrote a nurse in Las Vegas, Nev., who enclosed $2.

"Hi Percy," an Omaha girl wrote. "I once had some beautiful dogs like you. I loved them so much. I wish I could spend the whole day with you."

Many of the cards are signed with the names of other dogs, such as Ling and Ching, two Pekingese in Pueblo, Colo.; Trinket, a miniature poodle in LaCrosse, Wis., and Hey-Boy Jacobs, a fox terrier in Murphysboro, Ill.

"This is from Cheri, our silver poodle puppy, and Nicodemus, our 17-year-old cat who came to breakfast 16 years ago and never left," wrote a Seattle woman. Two girls in Muscatine, Iowa, sent two cans of dog food.

"Percy, do you think I could have a picture sent to me? I know your keeper will read this letter to you. Also could you give your signature of a paw-print on the back of the picture?" asked an 11-year-old Tulsa girl.

There also were amorous letters, containing pictures, from elderly bulldogs, who believed they and Percy could be happy together.

Ruth Coffee, the poundkeeper, said Percy has received about $6. Most of the donors asked that he be given a special Christmas dinner. But Mrs. Coffee said the municipal farm staff always takes care of the dinner.

"Years ago, when he was in his prime, he used to wear a big wide collar," Mrs. Coffee said. "We might just get him another collar with the money."

Percy posed for a picture, yawned, and waddled off for another nap.

New Israel Cabinet Is Given Approval

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (AP) — The Israeli Parliament approved Premier Levi Eshkol's new Cabinet Tuesday night by a vote of 59-36. Nine members of the left-wing Mapam party abstained.

The new government is composed of the same three parties that formed Eshkol's last government. The Cabinet remained the same with the exception of Akiva Govrin, formerly a minister without portfolio, who was named to the new post of minister of tourism.

Hughie Said Theatrical Curiosity

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — A theatrical curiosity is "Hughie," a play with a couple of special claims on audience attention which premiered Tuesday night at Broadway's Royale Theater.

Item one, it was written by Eugene O'Neill in 1942, but until now never has been shown in this country. Item two, a performance of glittering artistry by Jason Robards in what is virtually a 65-minute monologue.

Truth to tell, O'Neill is raking over a lot of familiar material in this hotel lobby yarn about the pipedreams which keep people going.

There are just two characters, and both of them would fit easily into O'Neill's other saga of skid-row disillusion, "The Iceman Cometh." The dialogue rings with echoes.

The story concerns a petty gambler-wise guy who compensates for failure by boasting to Hughie, a flophouse night clerk. That worthy is dead when the play begins, and the ensuing soliloquy is a rambling reprise of the tinhorn's shabby life.

As Hughie's successor, who listens without hearing, Jack Dodson intersperses brief comments which effectively highlight Robards' harangue.

Director Jose Quintero, who has teamed with Robards in several other notable O'Neill presentations, goes about his work in a mood of subdued introspection. The 1928 setting by David Hays is realistically exact.

"Hughie" is minor O'Neill, but it is show-cased with great skill for admirers of that sometimes dated dramatist of tortured despair.

Visitors Watch Yule Tree Lighting Rites

A number of Colorado Springs visitors as well as several Pikes Peak region residents, now patients at Bella Vita Residential Nursing Home, viewed a tree-lighting ceremony at the nursing home Sunday afternoon.

The ceremony, marking the arrival of the holiday season at Bella Vita Towers, thrilled the hundreds in attendance. The sight of the 11-foot Douglas fir, decorated with more than 1,000 living Rambler Red and white carnations, was beautiful. The tree has been described as the most unusual Christmas tree in the world.

Donald G. Miller, administrator of Bella Vita Towers, explained that the carnations were developed and grown by R. G. Braun, an associate of Park Elitch Wholesale Florists, Denver., and furnished by Tom Eakins, head of that firm.

The tree-lighting ceremony was conducted by Dr. Frank Zarlengo, medical director and one of the owners of Bella Vita Towers. He proposed a champagne toast to the Bella Vita Tree, in which he expressed the hope that the holiday season would be a joyous one for all, and that peace and good will would prevail throughout the world.

At that point, the switch controlling the hundreds of tree lights was activated by Marcellus Merrill, president of Merrill Engineering Laboratories, Denver. Myriad white bud lights were illuminated, joining the thousands of blossoms in a dazzling red, white and green display of holiday splendor.

Of special significance were the words of Merrill, who designed and installed the precision balancing systems within the United States Orbital Solar Observatories, two of which are currently circling the earth, with a third scheduled to be launched in the near future from Cape Kennedy, Florida.

Merrill stated: "It's my sincere hope that the important symbolic meaning contained in the Bella Vita Tree will also circle the earth, not only during the holiday season, but for all days to come."

The public is cordially invited to see the Bella Vita tree. It is now on display at the nursing home, 4450 E. Jewell Ave., at Bellaire Street, Denver. It may be seen from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 6 to 9 p.m. daily.

Nationalist Chinese Pilot Is Captured

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China announced today it captured a Nationalist Chinese pilot whose reconnaissance plane was shot down over East China.

Peking radio said the pilot was Maj. Hsieh Hsiang-ho. The Nationalist air force announced Saturday that one of its RF101s was missing on a coastal mission.

Will Indonesia Mount a Serious Attack?

By RUSSELL KIRK

Indonesian commandos continue to land, in tiny parties, in the Malay Peninsula — where they are promptly killed or captured by the forces of Malaysia. Indonesian guerillas continue to raid the fronties of North Borneo and Sarawai — and are repulsed by Gurkhas in the service of Malaysia and Britain.

Does Sukarno, the master of the hundred million people of Indonesia, plan a serious attack upon the infant federation of Malaysia? He has the army and navy for it.

But a perceptive traveller to Indonesia, Jacques C. van Broekhuizen, argues that Sukarno's government does not actually mean to precipitate a war. Writing in the Paris journal Est et Ouest, he says that the Indonesian raids are only feints, to divert the Indonesian Communist party while Indonesia actually engages in economic reconstruction.

Interested American readers will find a translation of Broekhuizen's study in an unusual student - edited political magazine. Politeia (Box 372, Somerset, New Jersey).

Corruption, inflation, economic silliness, and sheer indolence have greatly diminished the prosperity of Indonesia, these past several years. In Java, the former Dutch plantations, "nationalized," produce only 20 to 30 per cent of their former yield. "No one can live on what he earns," Broekhuizen writes. "Each must do something else, have a second job, a third job, steal, or be bribed. Thievery reigns everywhere."

But there has arisen in Indonesia a new class which desires economic stability: a body of governmental administrators and sharp operators, eager to retain wha they have gained With them, military leaders agree that economic reconstruction is the prime necessity of this sprawling island nation.

The army is dominated by adherents of the Masjumi (Moslem) faction, and by those of the P.S.I. (Social Democrats). Allied with the new middle class, the army remains firmly anti - communist.

The PKI (Indonesian Communist Party) is bent upon destroying all "imperialistic" and "reactionary" elements in Asia, most notably in the new Malaysian federation. To divert the powerful Communists from domestic questions, the new middle class and the army indulge Sukarno in his verbal denunciations and his guerilla tactics against Malaysia.

But they do not mean to go to war. For this new class, as Broekhuizen puts it, "needs order, peace, work, investments, production. Nationalist policies will continue, but it is improbable that they will go so far as to accept the same risks as they did during the fight for New Guinea."

Sukarno, with his night - club existence and his harem of 50 Japanese women of easy virtue, can embark upon aggression against Malaysia only by delivering himself almost completely into the hands of the Indonesian Communists. He confronts the horns of a dilemma. "Either he will choose armed confrontation," Broekhuizen concludes, "and then the country will be plunged into the most absolute chaos (failing aid from abroad) which would give every chance to the Communists . . . unless the army deposes him. Or else he will choose peace and economic reconstruction. Then he would remain president, but by tamely listening to the will of general headquarters."

By bluff and aggressive gesture, Sukarno gained success upon success, during recent years. But if bluff and token raid will not suffice to intimidate Malaysia and her British allies, Sukarno probably must be content to turn, with a sigh, to the hard and (to him) boring riddles of domestic policy.

Student Group Works to Build Negro Church

By DON MCKEE

RIPLEY, Miss. (AP) — A determined band of college students worked hard today to put up the walls and roof of a Negro church in time for a Christmas sevrice.

The "Carpenters for Christmas," most of them from Oberlin College in Oberlin, Ohio, started Sunday on their project of rebuilding the rural Antioch Baptist church, destroyed by fire last Oct. 30 after a civil rights rally in the building.

Two of the white students working on the project spent the night in an auto parked at the church site — a lonely place bordered by a cotton patch and a wooded area. They said they were taking no chances on anything happening to their work.

Student workers, aided by several Negroes from the nearby area, laid a concrete foundation Monday and began the task of setting concrete blocks to support the framework.

White residents of this north Mississippi town, which is about seven miles from the church site, were somewhat resentful and puzzled by the project. There has been no serious racial troubles here and civil rights workers have held their program in the area without any major problems.

"There has never been any indication that the fire was set deliberately," said Mayor Lowrey Smith of Ripley. He said the townspeople did not understand why the Antioch church, which was not a clearcut arson case, was selected for the Oberlin project.

Sheriff Wayne Mauney also said there was no evidence of arson in the church fire.

Student Group Works to Build Negro Church

By DON MCKEE

RIPLEY, Miss. (AP) — A determined band of college students worked hard today to put up the walls and roof of a Negro church in time for a Christmas sevrice.

The "Carpenters for Christmas," most of them from Oberlin College in Oberlin, Ohio, started Sunday on their project of rebuilding the rural Antioch Baptist church, destroyed by fire last Oct. 30 after a civil rights rally in the building.

Two of the white students working on the project spent the night in an auto parked at the church site — a lonely place bordered by a cotton patch and a wooded area. They said they were taking no chances on anything happening to their work.

Student workers, aided by several Negroes from the nearby area, laid a concrete foundation Monday and began the task of setting concrete blocks to support the framework.

White residents of this north Mississippi town, which is about seven miles from the church site, were somewhat resentful and puzzled by the project. There has been no serious racial troubles here and civil rights workers have held their program in the area without any major problems.

"There has never been any indication that the fire was set deliberately," said Mayor Lowrey Smith of Ripley. He said the townspeople did not understand why the Antioch church, which was not a clearcut arson case, was selected for the Oberlin project.

Sheriff Wayne Mauney also said there was no evidence of arson in the church fire.

Members of the Oberlin group said that one of the main reasons they decided to rebuild this church was that some students from the Ohio college had taken this area. Some of them attended the last rally in the church.

Burrell L. Scott, masonry contractor from Cleveland, Ohio, said the schedule called for compleiton of the foundation and the initial phase of framing Tuesday. He was pleased that the concrete and lumber suppliers had agreed to give discounts.

"The concrete was sold to us at a 10 per cent discount," said Scott. He and the students laid the foundation Monday and worked until after dark.

Among the Negroes joining in the work was Amos Rogers, a civil rights worker, who said, "The Negro people here are very glad this work has started." Rogers said that many Negroes wanted to help but had to work at their own jobs during the week.

Five other students arrived Monday to join the 26 already here. The second group had been delayed near Paris, Tenn., after their car skidded off an icy highway and was heavily damaged.

One of the new arrivals, Roger Swan of Yankton College in Yankton, South Dakota, said his school raised about $150 last week when students sacrificed their lunches and donated the money to the church project.

Fountain Dairy Receives Two DHIA Awards

Wilson Dairy Inc., Fountain, received two awards at the first annual awards dinner of the Pikes Peak Dairy Herd Improvement Association,, held Dec. 16 at the Alamo Hotel. Presenting the awards was Forest McWilliams, El Paso County Extension Agent.

Wilson Dairy, Inc., received the high cow award for a cow which produced 23,950 pounds of milk and 740 pounds of butterfat. The company also received the award for a herd over 65 cows, with a herd average of 13,560 pounds of milk and 473 pounds of butterfat.

Production during the test year between Oct. 1, 1963 and Sept. 30, 1964 was considered for the awards, according to McWilliams.

Dan Jones, Larkspur, received the high first calf heifer award, for a cow which set a 305 day record of 15,800 pounds of milk and 562 pounds of butterfat.

Willard Dortch, Matheson, received the award for a herd under 65 cows. His cows produced an average of 14,591 pounds of milk and 516 pounds of butterfat.

Kenneth Hertneky, Ramah, received the award for the highest increase in butterfat. His herd average increased from 323 to 405 pounds of butterfat, and milk production average increased 2000 pounds per cow.

Dr. Dan Bullis, dairy professor at Colorado State University, spoke on high energy feeding, and Dawson Jordan, extension dairyman at CSU, also addressed the group.

The trophies were donated by: Farmers State Bank, Calhan; Denver Feed Company; Moorman Mineral Company; Robinson Grain Company; and Simpson and Company.

-Louis Helm, local DHIA supervisor presented nine certificates from CSU for herd average above 400 lb. of butterfat, McWilliams said.

Garden Supplies Many Greens For Christmas

The holiday season would not be half so festive were it not for the decorations and what could be more appropriate than decorations from your own garden, ask the garden experts of the Union Fork & Hoe Company of Columbus, Ohio.

The first thing that comes to one's mind, of course, is holly — English, American, and Chinese. The big-spined, very glossy leave belong to the first species. Usually smaller and less glossy leaves belong to the American holly, the hardiest of the group.

All three species stand severe cutting. The only thing to remember is that with the first two, especially, male and female flowers are borne on separate plants and to have berries plants of both sexes must be present — and both of the same species.

However, where there is room for only one plant berries can still be had. Spray the tiny blossoms each year when fully opened with a fruit-setting hormone spray available at most garden stores.

The only other thing to remember is that hollies need acid soil. If you have it, you should be able to grow hollies.

Among the needle-leaved sorts you can use pine branches, fir, spruce, red cedar, juniper, with blue berries like its relative the red cedar; yew, cryptomeria, true cypresses, and cunninghamia. The larches will have lost their needles, so they are our. Also, avoid using hemlock indoors. The needles dry and fall off much too readily.

In all cases, to make the greens last longer, keep them in water whenever possible. Another big help is spraying the foliage as soon as cut with an outdoor oil spray, any of the indoor plant shine materials, or an anti-desiccant.

Then, of course, there are cones, pods, and fruits, many of which can be gilded, colored, or used in their original state as well as berries like winter berries and nandina.

Well Drillers Propose Contractor Licensing Bill

The Colorado Water Well Contractors Association has urged the adoption of a "contractors' licensing law to upgrade quality of drilling and protect underground water from pollution," Bob Harding, 1307 N. Weber, has reported. Harding attended the group's convention Dec. 11-12 in Boulder.

"Current regulations require a contractor to be licensed, to file for a permit, and to make a log detailing water capacity and other information," Harding said, but construction is very little regulated now, he added.

"We want the regulation of construction to be separated from that of ground water," he explained.

The proposed bill urges, in the interests of public health, regulations concerning "the proper location, construction, repair, and abandonment of water wells"; "the proper installation and repair pumps and pumping equipment"; and "the licensing and regulation of persons engaging in the business of contracting either for the construction of water wells or for the installation of pumps or pumping equipment."

The bill urges the creation of a state board of examiners of water well and pump installation contractors. There would be five members of the board: "the state engineer or a representative designated by him; a representative of the state department of public health designated by the executive director of the department; and three members appointed by the governor," including two water well contractors, each with at least ten years' experience in the water well contracting business, and one engineer or geologist, with at least ten years' experience in water supply and water well construction. Board members would receive no compensation, but would be reimbursed for expenses. After 1969, they would serve for four-year terms. The board would meet at least once each three months.

"The board would be enabled to establish and amend rules and regulations for proper construction of wells; to approve or disapprove licensing of any driller or pump contractor upon application and examination; and to revoke or suspend a driller's license, or impose other penalities, for violitions of the provisions of law," Harding said.

Any person would have to be licensed before contracting to construct water wells or install pumping equipment; and each well drilling rig would have to be registered, under the proposed bill. For the license, a person would have to have had at least two years experience; and would have to pass an oral and written examination in "basics of drilling methods and basics of construction; state laws and local ordinances concerning the construction of water wells or the installation of pumps and pumping equipment" and associated rules.

Licenses would be for the period of one year, renewable each January. A contractor licensed for three years before July 1965 would be able to have his license renewed without the examination, if he applied in January 1966. Private drillers using their own equipment on their own land, would be exempted from the requirement for a license, but would have to abide by the same rules for construction, Harding said.

Fees for residents would be $10 for application, plus $25, plus the posting of a $5000 bond. Fees for non-residents would be $25 for application, plus $200 non-resident fee, plus the posting of a $10,000 bond. Renewal fee would be $25 annually, and annual registration fee for each well drilling rig would be $5.

Licenses could be denied, revoked or suspended, by the affirmative vote of three board members, if the application or examination were found to fraudulent; if the provisions of this act or the "Colorado Ground Water Law" were found to be violated; if a permit were not obtained to drill a new well or extend or increase the water supply from existing wells; or if minimum standards of construction were not complied with. The scope of the act would be limited to water before it levt the pressuretank or pump.

Minimum standards would require that wells be: located so that the well and its surroundings could be kept sanitary; adequate in size to permit installation of a pump large enough for the volume of water desired; and constructed so as to maintain natural protection against pollution of water-bearing formations and to exclude known sources of contamination.

Pumping equipment would have to be: located so that the pump and surroundings could be kept sanitary; selected, constructed and installed: to meet the water yield and drawdown characteristic of the well; to be durable and reliable, and of such material that no toxic effects would result; installed to permit continued operation without priming; and to provide adequate protection from subsurface or surface pollution.

Fines for the misdemeanor of violating this act would be: a fine of not more than $300; imprisonment in the county jail for not more than 90 days, or both. The board would be able to apply for an injuction through the attorney general of Colorado, and to conduct hearings on any alleged violation.

Effective date of the act would be July 1, 1965.

Harding and John Mateyka were members of the technical committee which helped formulate the bill for presentation. V. J. Stewart was a member of the advisory committee.

Broiler Prices To Be Up; Egg, Turkey, Down

U. S. farm broiler prices are expected to average near 14.5 cents during the first half of 1965 representing about a half cent increase over year earlier levels, according to the Poultry Survey Committee.

Co-sponsored by the American Feed Manufacturers Association and the National Turkey Federation, the committee also predicted that broiler prices during the latter half of 1965 would fall below those of the same period a year ago.

The committee expects the 1965 turkey crop to increase 4 to 5 per cent over 1964 with U.S. average farm prices to be about 20 cents during the September-December peak marketing period. This level would represent a decrese of about one cent from 1964.

Farm egg prices for the U.S. in 1965 are expected by the committee to be about two cents per dozen below a year ago. The egg-type chick hatch during the first half of 1965 is expected to be about the same as during a comparable period in 1964. These predictions were made in the Thirty-Second Quarterly Poultry Survey forecast. They are results of intensive tw day deliberation by the Committee which is composed of: Ralph L. Baker, Ohio State University; Dr. Olan D. Forker, University of California; Dr. William R. Henry, North Carolina State College; Dr. Richard L. Kohls, Purdue University; and Dr. Henry Larzelere, Michigan State University. Economists from industry and USDA serve ex-officio.

Consumers to Buy More Beef And Poultry

FORT COLLINS — Beef and poultry will take a larger share of the total meat budget of American consumers, if current market trends continue.

In the past 10 years there has been a major shift in meat expenditures of the public, says Richard Fenwick, research assistant with the Colorado State University Extension economics section. Expenditures for beef increased 46 per cent between 1954 and 1963. Poultry also gained a larger share of the market during this period.

Surprisingly, consumers purchased larger quantities of beef at higher retail prices. Poultry, however, gained its increased share of the market at lower retail prices.

Should these trends continue, there may be shifts in total livestock and poultry production to reflect changes in demand for these items, Fenwick notes.

Total food expenditures increased 19 per cent between 1954 and 1963. At the same time, total disposable income — that remaining after taxes — increased nearly 65 per cent.

As a result, the share of after-tax dollars going for food declined from about 25 per cent in 1954 to about 18 per cent last year. As national income increases, food expenditures can be expected to increase, but at a slower rate, Fenwick says.

There has been some variation in prices of food items, however. Some prices have remained table while others decreased. Some fruits, vegetables and cereal products have increased in price more rapidly than national income. But prices of several meat items have increased less rapidly than national income, and poultry prices have decreased during the past 10 years.

AMARYLLIS IN BLOOM—A blooming amaryllis isn't a rare thing, but the bulb is properly cared for, according to City plant won't produce blossoms unless it Forester Bill Schacht, shown here with one of the plants in the City Parks and Recreation Department Office. The secret is to bring the plant indoors when frost starts in the fall, and then let the leaves dry up. This rest period is needed to start the plant blooming between November and January. The blooms are a beautiful red, but after blooming strap-like leaves extend from the plant. The plant is a native of South Africa, but is raised extensively in greenhouses as an ornamental plant.

Credit Board Selects Rocky Ford Farmer

Harold W. Hancock, Rocky Ford, has been appointed to the District Board of Directors for the Farm Credit Banks of Wichita — Federal Land Bank, Federal Intermediate Credit Bank and Bank for Cooperatives — which loan over $650 million annually to farmers, ranchers and cooperatives in the Wichita District.

Kenneth M. Lyon, Chairman of the Presidents Committee for the Farm Credit Banks of Wichita, said Hancock's three-year term on the Board will begin Jan. 1. Hancock was appointed to the Board by Robert B. Tootell, Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D. C.

Hancock, a native of Colorado, presently operates a hog feeding operation, an irrigated farm, and a real estate and land development company, specializing in farms and ranches.

He is a director and Vice-President of the Pueblo Federal Land Bank Association, President of the Otero Board of Realtors, director of the Colorado Association of Real Estate Board and a member of the Arkansas Valley Co-op Association.

Winter Won't Exterminate Insect and Rodent Pests

Bugs which make their own anti-freeze, mice which grow specially thick fur coats, an insects which take a protective sleep when the temperature drops—these are among the reasons why even the coldest weather isn't always a real help in man's never—ending fight against insect and rodent pests.

While insect and rodent activity may be slowed down by sub-freezing temperatures, entomologists of the National Pest Control Association point out that cold weaher doesn't exterminate troublesome pests for which nature has worked out ingenious methods of beating the cold.

In fact, a winter of sustained cold weather may be more beneficial to man's insect foes than one of alternating cold and mild spells, say Dr. Philip J. Spear, Technical Director of NPCA.

One of the reasons why insects can withstand cold weather, Dr. Spear points out, is that many of the most troublesome, including flies, ants, beetles and mosquitoes have the unusual ability to manufacture their own anti-freeze.

Studies made by several entomologists, including Lauritz Somme of the Canadian Agriculture Research Station in Alberta, have demonstrated that a wide variety of insect pests can manufacture their own glycerol, an effective anti-freeze similar to the product made by man for the same purpose, when temperatures drop below the freezing point.

When the mercury goes down, these insects by some "exclusive" process not yet fully understood, gradually adjust to it. They manufacture glycerol which gives them the hardiness to withstand all but the most extreme cold weather. This isn't true of all insects, but it has been found among many troublesome pests including certain species of ants, beetles, aphids, cankerworms and flies.

Making their own anti-freeze, however, is only one of the methods insects have of beating the weather, Dr. Spear notes. Most insects also go through a metamorphosis which includes a dormant period or diapause. When the weather is severely cold, the dormant period often takes care of the weather problem and the insect population survives in pupal or larval stage through the cold weather.

Laboratory studies of insects under extremely cold conditions have been confirmed by findings of species in solid ice. Damp wood termites, for example, have been found in blocks of ice and thawed to full activity.

Animal pests, too, can survive extreme cold, says Dr. Spear. When mice settle down in such places as cold storage vaults, they simply grow thicker fur. Many species of squirrels, hamsters and other warm-blooded animals can hibernate when the mercury drops.

"Insect and animal pests," Dr. Spear says, "have learned, like man, to live within their environment and extremely cold weather is rarely an effective means of control."

More effective than cold weather, he added, are the modern pesticides handled by trained pest control operators.

Winter Is Time For Indoor Gardening

Winter gardening — indoors — has come a long way, say garden experts at the Union Fork & Hoe Co., Columbus, Ohio.

The row of common geraniums has given way to African violets, bell-like gloxinias, cyclamen which are now in full bloom, flaming anthuriums, or even orchids in the bedroom.

The ever-present Boston fern has given way to the fiddle-leaved fig and giant philodendrom or Swiss cheese plant, the colorful-eaved crotons, shrubby oleanders or Chinese hibiscus in the larger areas. All these, of course, are readily moved outdoors when summer comes — on the porch, under trees, or on a partially-shaded patio.

Except for African violets, gloxinias, episcias and their relatives which do well even in the basement under fluorescent light exclusively (1000 foot candles is enough), flowering plants need a fairly generous amount of light. Give them an east or west window. If only a southern one is available, shield them from excessive sun heat with thin curtains.

Non-flowering plants can do with less light, some being happy even in north windows. In any case, experiment until you find the right conditions for your plants.

When plants are in active growth water every couple of days or as often as needed and feed lightly every two to three weeks.

Soil, too, is important. Prepared potting soil can be purchased.

Indoor gardeners have great success with succulents such as bromeliads which are available in a great variety of exotic species. Cacti also thrive indoors with little care. All succulents require light and very little watering. They will prosper providing you use them in pairs or groups. Ordinary room temperature will do. Do not put indoor plants on top of radiators.

Spray occasionally with non-poisonous pyrethrum, rotenone or the still safer sevin according to the manufacturer's direction.

If your philodendrons get weaker and weaker, train them upward — their natural position — and only let them hang down when you want to create special effects, as on a mantel.

Canon City Rodeo Club Holds Practice

Making the trip were Darrell Lauterett, president; Mike Lowry, vice-president; Warner Davies, Gary Smith, Rex Kohl, and Paul and Nolan Calhoun.

GIFT HERBS FOR GOURMETS

For gourmet friends who perform culinary miracles with herbs, give Christmas gifts of living rosemary, chive and other herb plants in individual red clay pots.

Plants should be watered slowly, four or five hours at a time.

Traditional Poinsettia Requires Careful Care

FORT COLLINS — Along with the Christmas season are many age - old, established traditions. One of the more recent, and typically American, is the poinsettia.

This favored flower of the Christmas season blooms only on Christmas eve in its native Mexico according to legendary lore, states C. M. "Chuck" Drage, Colorado State University extension horticulturist. The modern poinsettia, dwarfed and bushy, with an abundance of stems and bloom is much improved over those available just a few years ago. Properly cared for it can be a source of lasting enjoyment for the home and garden, Drage continues.

Poinsettias are very sensitive plants. Drafts, too cool or too warm temperatues, sudden changes in temperatues, dry atmosphere and improper watering can all combine to cause loss and withering of leaves.

Strive for a uniform temperatures, 60 degrees F. at night and no warmer than 75 degrees during the day. Place the poinsettia in bright light, but not in direct sun — and try to find a place where the air is not too dry.

The poinsettia is difficult to rebloom, the horticulturist explains, many try it and few succeed. The plant blooms only once a year and after blooming it must be rested. Do this by gradually withholding water until the leaves turn yellow and fall.

Store the dried - off plant in a cool (50 to 60 degrees F.), dry, dark room until May. During the storage period, water lightly — just enough to keep the roots and stems from drying out.

When the plant is brought out of storage, cut the stems back to six inches and repot. Remove some of the old soil from the roots. A good potting mixture consists of three parts good garden soil, three parts peat and one part sand.

Be sure the pot is well drained and large enough to hold the roots without too much crowding, Drage advises. Water well and place in a warm, sunny location for renewed growth.

In June, after danger of frost is over, plunge the pot in an outdoor flower bed. Light shade during the hot part of the day is desirable. Water the plant regularly, feed every two or three weeks with a soluble fertilizer and lift the pot occasionally to prevent roots from growing down into the soil outside the pot. In early August, thin the shoots so only a few of the stronger ones will develop. Pinch back the stronger shoots.

Before cool weather, lift the plant, take it inside to a bright, sunny window. Try to provide the cool 60 degree F. night temperature and day temperatures 10 to 15 degrees warmer. With luck, you can repeat the bloom for Christmas 1965, Drage states.

Soil Conservationists to Hold 20th Annual Meeting

DENVER — Twenty years of growth and accomplishments will be reviewed when the Colorado Association of Soil Conservation Districts open its 20th annual meeting here Jan. 4.

The state organization is composed of 94 soil conservation districts and represents nearly 20,000 Colorado farmers and ranchers dedicated to improvement and preservation of soil and water resources. The annual meeting will be held in the Brown Palace Hotel and continues through Jan. 6, acocrding to Ross E. Chambers, Eagle, association president.

Delegates to the Denver meeting have been requested to bring a sample of soil from each of the 94 districts. The soil samples will be combined and this composite of Colorado's greatest natural resource —topsoil — will be used later in planting a tree on the state capitol lawn. The tree, to be planted in March, will be presented to Governor John A. Love during the January meeting.

Nationally prominent speakers to appear on the convention program include Gordon K. Zimmerman, Washington, D.C., executive secretary of the National Association Districts. Water Conservation Districts. Dr. Frank A. Court of Trinity Methodist Church, Denver, will speak at the annual banquet on Wednesday evening, Jan. 6.

Another innovation at the January sessions will be the first annual meeting of the state association's ladies auxiliary, which was formed last February. A special program of meetings, luncheons and entertainment is being planned by Mrs. L. B. Casselman, Mosca, auxiliary president.

Mrs. Adolph Hansen, Las Animas, is vice president, and Mrs. John Race, Parker, is secretary-treasurer of the women's group.

Special Train To Denver Stock Show Planned

A special train Jan. 15 to the opening day of the National Western Stock Show in Denver is being planned. Sponsor for the 12th annual running of the train is the Agriculture Committee.

The train will depart from the local Santa Fe Depot at 9:30 a.m., Jan. 15 and will return at approximately 7:30 p.m. that evening. Cost of the complete package deal will be the same as last year, $6.75 for adults, $4.50 for children. This includes round-trip rail transportation; free refreshments on the train; bus transportation from Denver Union Station to the stock show and return; a police escorted trip past Denver's beautifully lighted Civic Center; general admission to the coliseum and a reserve seat for the afternoon show.

Mrs. Wanetta Draper will again handle ticket sales. this year. She will be on duty at the Chamber office beginning Dec. 28. Tickets are now being printed and reservations may be made by telephone, 635-1551, Ext. 2.

In the past, six to eight hundred people from Colorado Springs, Pueblo, and the Arkansas Valley have ridden the train to the opening day of the stock show.

There are more than 100,000 secretaries in the nation, according to Mrs. Hazel Kellar, president of the National Secretaries Association.

Fertilizer Conference Slated at CSU

FORT COLLINS — The 13th annual Colorado Fertilizer Conference will be held on the Colorado State University campus here Jan. 5-6.

During the two-day session, CSU and U. S. Department of Agriculture scientists along with industry leaders will review the latest research, recommendations, and trends in fertilizer use. The conference, sponsored by CSU in cooperation with the Rocky Mountain Plant Food Association, is designed primarily for fertilizer dealers, manufacturers representatives, sugar beet and barley field men, county extension agents, vocational agriculture teachers and farmers.

Topics scheduled for discussion at teh January meeting include fertilizer-water relationships, marketing and advertising, liquid and slurry fertilizers, pesticide and fertilizer mixtures, soil compaction, micronutrient research and soil testing.

The annual conference banquet will be held Tuesday evening, with Dr. Warren H. Leonard, with Dr. Warren H. Leonard, CSU argonomist, speaking on Food and Population. The program begins at 9 a.m. Jan. 5.

Farm Bureau Local Members Discuss Issues

Nine persons from El Paso County attended a meeting of County Farm Bureau State and National Affairs Committee members from Adams, Douglas, Elbert and El Paso counties in Kiowa Dec. 17 to review the recently adopted policy of the Colorado and American Farm Bureaus and to lay plans to meet with their state and national legislators in an effort to get the new policies written into law.

Attending from El Pasp County were: Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Gieck, Robert Payne, Robert Rapp, Hubert Keeney, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Edwards, and Mr. an Mrs. Herman Bresser.

Top priority items reviewed by the State Affairs Committees were water laws, taxes for school support, the use of an income and-or sales tax, adjusted gross income tax, the ton-mile tax for trucks, the so called "Liberty Amendment," appropriations for state supported institutions of higher learning and apportionment of state legislatures.

At the Thursday meeting, the wraps were removed for the first time from the 1965 Farm Bureau recommendations for a general farm program for the nation. The program, which is expected to be introduced shortly after Congress convenes, will be known as the "Wheat and Feed Grain Act of 1965."

The proposed program places emphasis upon farmers (1) diverting a portion of cropland from production of excessive supplies of wheat, feed grains and other commodities; (2) carrying out a voluntary program of soil, water, forest and wildlife conservation; and (3) obtaining commodity prices in the market place higher than levels at which commodity loans are made available by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Emphasis is given in the cropland retirement portion of the proposal to the retirement of entire farms for a period of from three to five years with the selection of land to be placed under retirement contract being made on a bid basis. During the period when the land is under contract with the federal government, the farm or ranch operator must maintain a protective vegetative cover on the land and may not graze the land, nor harvest any crop from it except timber, but is required to control the noxious weeds and other objectionable weeds, according to the provisions of the proposed program.

Under this plan the support price for corn shall be set at 90 per cent of the average price received by farmers during the three immediate preceding calendar years, provided the level of price support shall not be less than 50 per cent of parity. The support price for other feed grains will be set in relation to the price on corn.

Wheat support prices will be set at a point equal to the average world price of wheat during the immediate preceding three years, by the Secretary of Agriculture, and shall not be allowed to drop below 50 per cent of parity.

A provision in the new proposal would prohibit the Commodity Credit Corporation from dumping surplus government stocks of wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley, grain sorghum, soybeans or flaxseed at prices less than 125 per cent of the current support price for the commodity.

Fountain Dairy Receives Two DHIA Awards

Wilson Dairy Inc., Fountain, received two awards at the first annual awards dinner of the Pikes Peak Dairy Herd Improvement Association., held Dec. 16 at the Alamo Hotel. Presenting the awards was Forest McWilliams, El Paso County Extension Agent.

Wilson Dairy, Inc., received the high cow award for a cow which produced 23,950 pounds of milk and 740 pounds of butterfat. The company also received the award for a herd over 65 cows, with a herd average of 13,560 pounds of milk and 473 pounds of butterfat.

Production during the test year between Oct. 1, 1963 and Sept. 30, 1964 was considered for the awards, according to McWilliams.

Dan Jones, Larkspur, received the high first calf heifer award, for a cow which set a 305 day record of 15,800 pounds of milk and 562 pounds of butterfat.

Willard Dortch, Matheson, received the award for a herd under 65 cows. His cows produced an average of 14,591 pounds of milk and 516 pounds of butterfat.

Kenneth Hertneky, Ramah, received the award for the highest increase in butterfat. His herd average increased from 323 to 405 pounds of butterfat, and milk production average increased 2000 pounds per cow.

Dr. Dan Bullis, dairy professor at Colorado State University, spoke on high energy feeding, and Dawson Jordan, extension dairyman at CSU, also addressed the group.

The trophies were donated by: Farmers State Bank, Calhan; Denver Feed Company; Moorman Mineral Company; Robinson Grain Company; and Simpson and Company.

Louis Helm, local DHIA supervisor presented nine certificates from CSU for herd average above 400 lb. of butterfat, McWilliams said.

Garden Supplies Many Greens For Christmas

The holiday season would not be half so festive were it not for the decorations and what could be more appropriate than decorations from your own garden, ask the garden experts of the Union Fork & Hoe Company of Columbus, Ohio.

The first thing that comes to one's mind, of course, is holly — English, American, and Chinese. The big-spined, very glossy leave belong to the first species. Usually smaller and less glossy leaves belong to the American holly, the hardiest of the group.

All three species stand severe cutting. The only thing to remember is that with the first two, especially, male and female flowers are borne on separate plants and to have berries plants of both sexes must be present — and both of the same species.

However, where there is room for only one plant berries can still be had. Spray the tiny blossoms each year when fully opened with a fruit-setting hormone spray available at most garden stores.

The only other thing to remember is that hollies need acid soil. If you have it, you should be able to grow hollies.

Among the needle-leaved sorts you can use pine branches, fir, spruce, red cedar, juniper, with blue berries like its relative the red cedar; yew, cryptomeria, true cypresses, and cunninghamia. The larches will have lost their needles, so they are our. Also, avoid using hemlock indoors. The needles dry and fall off much too readily.

In all cases, to make the greens last longer, keep them in water whenever possible. Another big help is spraying the foliage as soon as cut with an outdoor oil spray, any of the indoor plant shine materials, or an anti-desiccant.

Then, of course, there are cones, pods, and fruits, many of which can be gilded, colored, or used in their original state as well as berries like winter berries and nandina.

Well Drillers Propose Contractor Licensing Bill

The Colorado Water Well Contractors Association has urged the adoption of a "contractors' licensing law to upgrade quality of drilling and protect underground water from pollution," Bob Harding, 1307 N. Weber, has reported. Harding attended the group's convention Dec. 11-12 in Boulder.

"Current regulations require a contractor to be licensed, to file for a permit, and to make a log detailing water capacity and other information," Harding said, but construction is very little regulated now, he added.

"We want the regulation of construction to be separated from that of ground water," he explained.

The proposed bill urges, in the interests of public health, regulations concerning "the proper location, construction, repair, and abandonment of water wells"; "the proper installation and repair pumps and pumping equipment"; and "the licensing and regulation of persons engaging in the business of contracting either for the construction of water wells or for the installation of pumps or pumping equipment."

The bill urges the creation of a state board of examiners of water well and pump installation contractors. There would be five members of the board: "the state engineer or a representative designated by him; a representative of the state department of public health designated by the executive director of the department; and three members appointed by the governor," including two water well contractors, each with at least ten years' experience in the water well contracting business, and one engineer or geologist, with at least ten years' experience in water supply and water well construction. Board members would receive no compensation, but would be reimbursed for expenses. After 1969, they would serve for four-year terms. The board would meet at least once each three months.

"The board would be enabled to establish and amend rules and regulations for proper construction of wells; to approve or disapprove licensing of any driller or pump contractor upon application and examination; and to revoke or suspend a driller's license, or impose other penalities, for violitions of the provisions of law," Harding said.

Any person would have to be licensed before contracting to construct water wells or install pumping equipment; and each well drilling rig would have to be registered, under the proposed bill. For the license, a person would have to have had at least two years experience; and would have to pass an oral and written examination in "basics of drilling methods and basics of construction; state laws and local ordinances concerning the construction of water wells or the installation of pumps and pumping equipment" and associated rules.

Licenses would be for the period of one year, renewable each January. A contractor licensed for three years before July 1965 would be able to have his license renewed without the examination, if he applied in January 1966. Private drillers using their own equipment on their own land, would be exempted from the requirement for a license, but would have to abide by the same rules for construction, Harding said.

Fees for residents would be $10 for application, plus $25, plus the posting of a $5000 bond. Fees for non-residents would be $25 for application, plus $200 non-resident fee, plus the posting of a $10,000 bond. Renewal fee would be $25 annually, and annual registration fee for each well drilling rig would be $5.

Licenses could be denied, revoked or suspended, by the affirmative vote of three board members, if the application or examination were found to fraudulent; if the provisions of this act or the "Colorado Ground Water Law" were found to be violated; if a permit were not obtained to drill a new well or extend or increase the water supply from existing wells; or if minimum standards of construction were not complied with. The scope of the act would be limited to water before it levt the pressuretank or pump.

Minimum standards would require that wells be: located so that the well and its surroundings could be kept sanitary; adequate in size to permit installation of a pump large enough for the volume of water desired; and constructed so as to maintain natural protection against pollution of water-bearing formations and to exclude known sources of contamination.

Pumping equipment would have to be: located so that the pump and surroundings could be kept sanitary; selected, constructed and installed: to meet the water yield and drawdown characteristic of the well; to be durable and reliable, and of such material that no toxic effects would result; installed to permit continued operation without priming; and to provide adequate protection from subsurface or surface pollution.

Fines for the misdemeanor of violating this act would be: a fine of not more than $300; imprisonment in the county jail for not more than 90 days, or both. The board would be able to apply for an injuction through the attorney general of Colorado, and to conduct hearings on any alleged violation.

Effective date of the act would be July 1, 1965.

Harding and John Mateyka were members of the technical committee which helped formulate the bill for presentation. V. J. Stewart was a member of the advisory committee.

Broiler Prices To Be Up; Egg, Turkey, Down

U. S. farm broiler prices are expected to average near 14.5 cents during the first half of 1965 representing about a half cent increase over year earlier levels, according to the Poultry Survey Committee.

Co-sponsored by the American Feed Manufacturers Association and the National Turkey Federation, the committee also predicted that broiler prices during the latter half of 1965 would fall below those of the same period a year ago.

The committee expects the 1965 turkey crop to increase 4 to 5 per cent over 1964 with U.S. average farm prices to be about 20 cents during the September-December peak marketing period. This level would represent a decrese of about one cent from 1964.

Farm egg prices for the U.S. in 1965 are expected by the committee to be about two cents per dozen below a year ago. The egg-type chick hatch during the first half of 1965 is expected to be about the same as during a comparable period in 1964. These predictions were made in the Thirty-Second Quarterly Poultry Survey forecast. They are results of intensive tw day deliberation by the Committee which is composed of: Ralph L. Baker, Ohio State University; Dr. Olan D. Forker, University of California; Dr. William R. Henry, North Carolina State College; Dr. Richard L. Kohls, Purdue University; and Dr. Henry Larzelere, Michigan State University. Economists from industry and USDA serve ex-officio.

Consumers to Buy More Beef And Poultry

FORT COLLINS — Beef and poultry will take a larger share of the total meat budget of American consumers, if current market trends continue.

In the past 10 years there has been a major shift in meat expenditures of the public, says Richard Fenwick, research assistant with the Colorado State University Extension economics section. Expenditures for beef increased 46 per cent between 1954 and 1963. Poultry also gained a larger share of the market during this period.

Surprisingly, consumers purchased larger quantities of beef at higher retail prices. Poultry, however, gained its increased share of the market at lower retail prices.

Should these trends continue, there may be shifts in total livestock and poultry production to reflect changes in demand for these items, Fenwick notes.

Total food expenditures increased 19 per cent between 1954 and 1963. At the same time, total disposable income — that remaining after taxes — increased nearly 65 per cent.

As a result, the share of after-tax dollars going for food declined from about 25 per cent in 1954 to about 18 per cent last year. As national income increases, food expenditures can be expected to increase, but at a slower rate, Fenwick says.

There has been some variation in prices of food items, however. Some prices have remained table while others decreased. Some fruits, vegetables and cereal products have increased in price more rapidly than national income. But prices of several meat items have increased less rapidly than national income, and poultry prices have decreased during the past 10 years.

AMARYLLIS IN BLOOM—A blooming amaryllis isn't a rare thing, but the bulb is properly cared for, according to City plant won't produce blossoms unless it Forester Bill Schacht, shown here with one of the plants in the City Parks and Recreation Department Office. The secret is to bring the plant indoors when frost starts in the fall, and then let the leaves dry up. This rest period is needed to start the plant blooming between November and January. The blooms are a beautiful red, but after blooming strap-like leaves extend from the plant. The plant is a native of South Africa, but is raised extensively in greenhouses as an ornamental plant.

Credit Board Selects Rocky Ford Farmer

Harold W. Hancock, Rocky Ford, has been appointed to the District Board of Directors for the Farm Credit Banks of Wichita — Federal Land Bank, Federal Intermediate Credit Bank and Bank for Cooperatives — which loan over $650 million annually to farmers, ranchers and cooperatives in the Wichita District.

Kenneth M. Lyon, Chairman of the Presidents Committee for the Farm Credit Banks of Wichita, said Hancock's three-year term on the Board will begin Jan. 1. Hancock was appointed to the Board by Robert B. Tootell, Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D. C.

Hancock, a native of Colorado, presently operates a hog feeding operation, an irrigated farm, and a real estate and land development company, specializing in farms and ranches.

He is a director and Vice-President of the Pueblo Federal Land Bank Association, President of the Otero Board of Realtors, director of the Colorado Association of Real Estate Board and a member of the Arkansas Valley Co-op Association.

Winter Won't Exterminate Insect and Rodent Pests

Bugs which make their own anti-freeze, mice which grow specially thick fur coats, an insects which take a protective sleep when the temperature drops—these are among the reasons why even the coldest weather isn't always a real help in man's never—ending fight against insect and rodent pests.

While insect and rodent activity may be slowed down by sub-freezing temperatures, entomologists of the National Pest Control Association point out that cold weaher doesn't exterminate troublesome pests for which nature has worked out ingenious methods of beating the cold.

In fact, a winter of sustained cold weather may be more beneficial to man's insect foes than one of alternating cold and mild spells, say Dr. Philip J. Spear, Technical Director of NPCA.

One of the reasons why insects can withstand cold weather, Dr. Spear points out, is that many of the most troublesome, including flies, ants, beetles and mosquitoes have the unusual ability to manufacture their own anti-freeze.

Studies made by several entomologists, including Lauritz Somme of the Canadian Agriculture Research Station in Alberta, have demonstrated that a wide variety of insect pests can manufacture their own glycerol, an effective anti-freeze similar to the product made by man for the same purpose, when temperatures drop below the freezing point.

When the mercury goes down, these insects by some "exclusive" process not yet fully understood, gradually adjust to it. They manufacture glycerol which gives them the hardiness to withstand all but the most extreme cold weather. This isn't true of all insects, but it has been found among many troublesome pests including certain species of ants, beetles, aphids, cankerworms and flies.

Making their own anti-freeze, however, is only one of the methods insects have of beating the weather, Dr. Spear notes. Most insects also go through a metamorphosis which includes a dormant period or diapause. When the weather is severely cold, the dormant period often takes care of the weather problem and the insect population survives in pupal or larval stage through the cold weather.

Laboratory studies of insects under extremely cold conditions have been confirmed by findings of species in solid ice. Damp wood termites, for example, have been found in blocks of ice and thawed to full activity.

Animal pests, too, can survive extreme cold, says Dr. Spear. When mice settle down in such places as cold storage vaults, they simply grow thicker fur. Many species of squirrels, hamsters and other warm-blooded animals can hibernate when the mercury drops.

"Insect and animal pests," Dr. Spear says, "have learned, like man, to live within their environment and extremely cold weather is rarely an effective means of control."

More effective than cold weather, he added, are the modern pesticides handled by trained pest control operators.

Winter Is Time For Indoor Gardening

Winter gardening — indoors — has come a long way, say garden experts at the Union Fork & Hoe Co., Columbus, Ohio.

The row of common geraniums has given way to African violets, bell-like gloxinias, cyclamen which are now in full bloom, flaming anthuriums, or even orchids in the bedroom.

The ever-present Boston fern has given way to the fiddle-leaved fig and giant philodendrom or Swiss cheese plant, the colorful-eaved crotons, shrubby oleanders or Chinese hibiscus in the larger areas. All these, of course, are readily moved outdoors when summer comes — on the porch, under trees, or on a partially-shaded patio.

Except for African violets, gloxinias, episcias and their relatives which do well even in the basement under fluorescent light exclusively (1000 foot candles is enough), flowering plants need a fairly generous amount of light. Give them an east or west window. If only a southern one is available, shield them from excessive sun heat with thin curtains.

Non-flowering plants can do with less light, some being happy even in north windows. In any case, experiment until you find the right conditions for your plants.

When plants are in active growth water every couple of days or as often as needed and feed lightly every two to three weeks.

Soil, too, is important. Prepared potting soil can be purchased.

Indoor gardeners have great success with succulents such as bromeliads which are available in a great variety of exotic species. Cacti also thrive indoors with little care. All succulents require light and very little watering. They will prosper providing you use them in pairs or groups. Ordinary room temperature will do. Do not put indoor plants on top of radiators.

Spray occasionally with non-poisonous pyrethrum, rotenone or the still safer sevin according to the manufacturer's direction.

If your philodendrons get weaker and weaker, train them upward — their natural position — and only let them hang down when you want to create special effects, as on a mantel.

Traditional Poinsettia Requires Careful Care

FORT COLLINS — Along with the Christmas season are many age - old, established traditions. One of the more recent, and typically American, is the poinsettia.

This favored flower of the Christmas season blooms only on Christmas eve in its native Mexico according to legendary lore, states C. M. The modern poinsettia, dwarfed and bushy, with an abundance of stems and bloom is much improved over those available just a few years ago. Properly cared for it can be a source of lasting enjoyment for the home and garden, Drage continues.

Poinsettias are very sensitive plants. Drafts, too cool or too warm temperatues, sudden changes in temperatues, dry atmosphere and improper watering can all combine to cause loss and withering of leaves.

Strive for a uniform temperatures, 60 degrees F. at night and no warmer than 75 degrees during the day. Place the poinsettia in bright light, but not in direct sun — and try to find a place where the air is not too dry.

The poinsettia is difficult to rebloom, the horticulturist explains, many try it and few succeed. The plant blooms only once a year and after blooming it must be rested. Do this by gradually withholding water until the leaves turn yellow and fall.

Store the dried - off plant in a cool (50 to 60 degrees F.), dry, dark room until May. During the storage period, water lightly — just enough to keep the roots and stems from drying out.

When the plant is brought out of storage, cut the stems back to six inches and repot. Remove some of the old soil from the roots. A good potting mixture consists of three parts good garden soil, three parts peat and one part sand.

Be sure the pot is well drained and large enough to hold the roots without too much crowding, Drage advises. Water well and place in a warm, sunny location for renewed growth.

In June, after danger of frost is over, plunge the pot in an outdoor flower bed. Light shade during the hot part of the day is desirable. Water the plant regularly, feed every two or three weeks with a soluble fertilizer and lift the pot occasionally to prevent roots from growing down into the soil outside the pot. In early August, thin the shoots so only a few of the stronger ones will develop. Pinch back the stronger shoots.

Before cool weather, lift the plant, take it inside to a bright, sunny window. Try to provide the cool 60 degree F. night temperature and day temperatures 10 to 15 degrees warmer. With luck, you can repeat the bloom for Christmas 1965, Drage states.

Soil Conservationists to Hold 20th Annual Meeting

DENVER — Twenty years of growth and accomplishments will be reviewed when the Colorado Association of Soil Conservation Districts open its 20th annual meeting here Jan. 4.

The state organization is composed of 94 soil conservation districts and represents nearly 20,000 Colorado farmers and ranchers dedicated to improvement and preservation of soil and water resources. The annual meeting will be held in the Brown Palace Hotel and continues through Jan. 6, acocrding to Ross E. Chambers, Eagle, association president.

Delegates to the Denver meeting have been requested to bring a sample of soil from each of the 94 districts. The soil samples will be combined and this composite of Colorado's greatest natural resource —topsoil — will be used later in planting a tree on the state capitol lawn. The tree, to be planted in March, will be presented to Governor John A. Love during the January meeting.

Nationally prominent speakers to appear on the convention program include Gordon K. Zimmerman, Washington, D.C., executive secretary of the National Association Districts. Water Conservation Districts. Dr. Frank A. Court of Trinity Methodist Church, Denver, will speak at the annual banquet on Wednesday evening, Jan. 6.

Another innovation at the January sessions will be the first annual meeting of the state association's ladies auxiliary, which was formed last February. A special program of meetings, luncheons and entertainment is being planned by Mrs. L. B. Casselman, Mosca, auxiliary president.

Mrs. Adolph Hansen, Las Animas, is vice president, and Mrs. John Race, Parker, is secretary-treasurer of the women's group.

Special Train To Denver Stock Show Planned

A special train Jan. 15 to the opening day of the National Western Stock Show in Denver is being planned. Sponsor for the 12th annual running of the train is the Agriculture Committee.

The train will depart from the local Santa Fe Depot, at 9:30 a.m., Jan. 15 and will return at approximately 7:30 p.m. that evening. Cost of the complete package deal will be the same as last year, $6.75 for adults, $4.50 for children. This includes round-trip rail transportation; free refreshments on the train; bus transportation from Denver Union Station to the stock show and return; a police escorted trip past Denver's beautifully lighted Civic Center; general admission to the coliseum and a reserve seat for the afternoon show.

Mrs. Wanetta Draper will again handle ticket sales this year. She will be on duty at the Chamber office beginning Dec. 28. Tickets are now being printed and reservations may be made by telephone, 635-1551, Ext. 2.

In the past, six to eight hundred people from Colorado Springs, Pueblo, and the Arkansas Valley have ridden the train to the opening day of the stock show.

There are more than 100,000 secretaries in the nation, according to Mrs. Hazel Kellar, president of the National Secretaries Association.

Farm Bureau Local Members Discuss Issues

Nine persons from El Paso County attended a meeting of County Farm Bureau State and National Affairs Committee members from Adams, Douglas, Elbert and El Paso counties in Kiowa Dec. 17 to review the recently adopted policy of the Colorado and American Farm Bureaus and to lay plans to meet with their state and national legislators in an effort to get the new policies written into law.

Attending from El Pasp County were: Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Gieck, Robert Payne, Robert Rapp, Hubert Keeney, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Edwards, and Mr. an Mrs. Herman Bresser.

Top priority items reviewed by the State Affairs Committees were water laws, taxes for school support, the use of an income and-or sales tax, adjusted gross income tax, the ton-mile tax for trucks, the so called "Liberty Amendment," appropriations for state supported institutions of higher learning and apportionment of state legislatures.

At the Thursday meeting, the wraps were removed for the first time from the 1965 Farm Bureau recommendations for a general farm program for the nation. The program, which is expected to be introduced shortly after Congress convenes, will be known as the "Wheat and Feed Grain Act of 1965."

The proposed program places emphasis upon farmers (1) diverting a portion of cropland from production of excessive supplies of wheat, feed grains and other commodities; (2) carrying out a voluntary program of soil, water, forest and wildlife conservation; and (3) obtaining commodity prices in the market place higher than levels at which commodity loans are made available by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Emphasis is given in the cropland retirement portion of the proposal to the retirement of entire farms for a period of from three to five years with the selection of land to be placed under retirement contract being made on a bid basis. During the period when the land is under contract with the federal government, the farm or ranch operator must maintain a protective vegetative cover on the land and may not graze the land, nor harvest any crop from it except timber, but is required to control the noxious weeds and other objectionable weeds, according to the provisions of the proposed program.

Under this plan the support price for corn shall be set at 90 per cent of the average price received by farmers during the three immediate preceding calendar years, provided the level of price support shall not be less than 50 per cent of parity. The support price for other feed grains will be set in relation to the price on corn.

Wheat support prices will be set at a point equal to the average world price of wheat during the immediate preceding three years, by the Secretary of Agriculture, and shall not be allowed to drop below 50 per cent of parity.

A provision in the new proposal would prohibit the Commodity Credit Corporation from dumping surplus government stocks of wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley, grain sorghum, soybeans or flaxseed at prices less than 125 per cent of the current support price for the commodity.

Three Gunmen Sought in Church Robbery

By LEW HEAD

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — Two jackets, a pair of pants and a ski cap provided scant clues today in teh search for three gunmen who escaped Monday with more than a half million dollars in cash.

Police said they had no description of the men — except that they were white and, in the words of a witness "appeared to be past their youth."

The clothing, identified by the victims, was found lying on a road on the outskirts of this city 10 miles west of New York City.

The men, wearing Halloween masks, took over a church rectory during a church service, held four priests and a janitor at gunpoint, ambushed two bank messengers as they entered the rectory, and escaped with $511,000 in cash from the bank truck and $1,700 in church funds.

Working swiftly and speaking rarely, the trio vanished less than half an hour after they drove up to the rectory adjoining St. Anthony's church about 8:45 a.m.

Deputy Police Chief William Ludwig said the robbery, considered the biggest in New Jersey history, was the work of professionals well-versed in the route and schedule of the bank messengers.

The panel bank truck, equipped with an alarm system, was on its normal morning run from the main office of the National Bank of Passaic County to deliver cash to three branch banks. The schedule called for stops at three churches to pick up Sunday collection money before going to the branch banks. St. Anthony's church was the last one.

The bandits were discovered by the Rev. Attilio Giovannini, 54, who entered the rectory from the church after celebrating Mass.

"I didn't think they meant it. They were all wearing funny masks. But then I saw their guns and I knew it wasn't a joke," Father Giovannini said. He was handcuffed by the bandits.

A few minutes later the Rev. Cassian Kirk entered the rectory through the street door.

Father Kirk said it was like walking into "a world of make-believe, like seeing something on television."

He too was handcuffed, as were the Revs. James De Vita and Philip Passcussi, who had walked downstairs from the priests' residence.

Church custodian Matthew De Vita, father of a priest, also was captured and bound.

Bank messengers John Godley, 48, of Bloomingdale and Frank Fernandi, in his 50s, of Paterson, started to walk into the rectory to pick up the Sunday collection. They never had a chance to use their revolvers.

"Get inside fast or I'll kill you," one of the bandits told them.. Godley gave the bandits the key to the truck under questioning. The truck's alarm system would have sounded a siren if the door had been opened without the key, a bank official said.

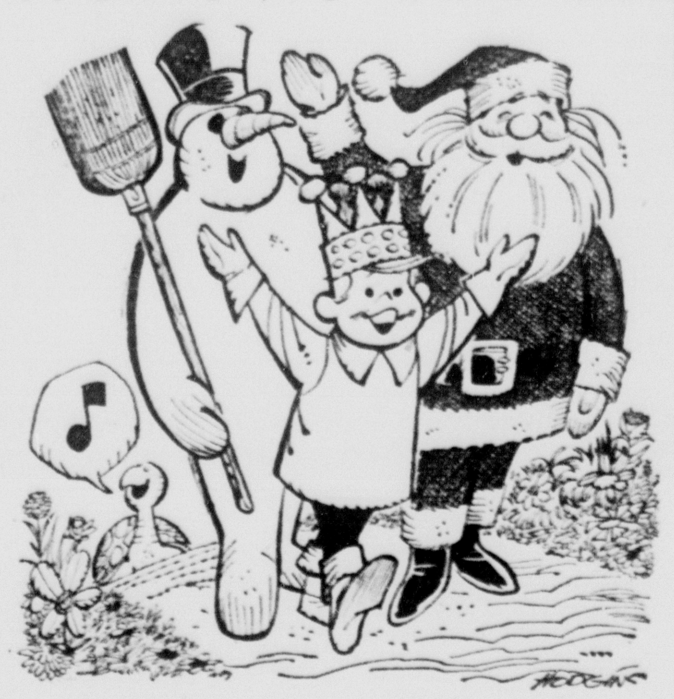
SANTA and the SINGING TURTLE

By LUCRECE BEALE
CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL



"Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas to all."

Womp stood in disgrace with the Snowman's hat down over his face. He could not escape, for all the Fairyland folk surrounded him.

"Now," said Santa. "Perhaps you will tell us what is going on."

"I'll tell you!" cried George. And he told Santa how Womp had left the Prince in an enchanted circle in the forest east of Santa Land and how he had come to Fairyland to bewitch Santa and all the fairy folk with his flute playing.

"Why is this?" Santa asked Womp sternly. "What have I done to you?"

Womp tried to blame it all on his master. "I am the servant of Kerchew, acting king of the Kingdom of Razenpie," he babbled in a muffled voice from inside the Snowman's hat. His nephew Prince Chad is to become the rightful king on Christmas Day. My master thought that if Christmas did not come to Razenpie, he would himself remain the king and I, of course, would remain his faithful servant."

Santa picked the manwitch's flute from the floor. "So," he said, "you planned to play a magic tune on this flute that would put us all to sleep? Well, I, too, can play a magic tune and it will be just for you."

Santa put the flute to his mouth and played a tune never heard before. Strange, spine-prickling notes filled the air, and, indeed, they were magic, for when it was over Womp was a manwitch no longer. He had been turned into a rubber doll!

"He caused harm," said Santa. "Now I shall put him in a child's Christmas stocking and he will cause pleasure for a change. When he is worn out and the child has thrown him away, I shall turn him back into himself and I think he will have learned to change his ways." He turned to George and said, "Will you sing now for the Festival?"

"Oh, no!" protested George reluctantly. "I must get to the Prince, for tomorrow is Christmas Day and his kingdom must be saved."

Santa smiled. "Sing first. Then we will go to the Prince."

So the turtle had his turn at last. He threw back his head and shut his eyes and sang from his heart. But, alas! He had suffered too much since the Festival began and his voice was out of sorts.

Nevertheless, when it was over, all the fairy creatures clapped and shouted "Bravo! Bravo!" and Santa said, "I would like for you to come to live with me and be my Singing Turtle."

This was even better than winning First Prize at the Festival. George said, "Hurrah!" and the Snowman said, "Can I come, too?"

"Indeed you can," said Santa, "and there will be plenty of snow to make you whole again."

Santa took the turtle and the Snowman in his sleigh and flew to the forest east of Santa Land where they found the Prince imprisoned inside the circle Womp had drawn in the snow.

"Brush away the line," said Santa.

The Snowman hopped on his one foot and swept away the line with his broom.

The Prince flew out of the circle and into Santa's arms crying, "Come to Razenpie! Oh, you must come to Razenpie with me!"

"I intend to," said Santa. "We will go this very night, for it is Christmas Eve. We'll put wicked Kerchew off the throne and Razenpie will have you for its proper king!"

The Prince rushed to pick up his crown which had fallen in the snow. He put it on his head and cried, joyfully, "From now on every day will be Christmas Day in Razenpie!"

Then he and the turtle and the Snowman marched with Santa to Santa Land singing "Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas to all."

Downing of U.S. Plane Is Probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — American and Egyptian officials are cooperating in the investigation of an incident Dec. 19 in which an American oil company plane was shot down near Alexandria by United Arab Republic jets, according to the State Department.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey said Monday that no diplomatic action has been taken.

The plane's American pilot, Hoyt Williams, 44, a Texan, and the Swedish flight mechanic, Kjell Grupp, 35, were killed.

McCloskey said an account of the incident, which combines details communicated to the U.S. Ebassy in Cairo by the UAR government and a report received from the American consul general in Alexandria, agreed in general with Egypt's cliam.

McCloskey said he did not know if the plane's owner, the John W Mecom Oil Co. of Houston, Tex., or the pilot had filed flight plans for the trip across UAR territory from Amman, Jordan, to Benghazi, Libya.

Although the soil of Guatemala is fertile, soil erosion is a major problem. Heavy rains often flood the fields, causing severe crop and soil losses.

Favored Russian Hockey Team Preps For International Games in Colorado

Russia's highly touted Olympic hockey team makes its final stop on an exhibition tour through Canada tonight before moving on to Colorado Springs and the International Tournament, Dec. 26 through 31.

Tonight the Soviets are to tackle a team at Trail, British Columbia, which concludes the warm-up for the double round-robin tourney at the Broadmoor World Arena here in the Springs. The game at Trail will be against an all-star squad from the Western International League, including several players who have been participating in professional hockey.

To date, the Russians have chalked up six victories and a tie on their tour into Canada, prior to the visit to the United States. The latest was against Edmonton, Alberta, in which the Russ turned back a determined last-period rally by the Canadians to win 7-5.

More than 6,500 fans screamed with delight as the Edmonton Oil Kings, beefed up with several professionals, charged from behind a 6-1 deficit in the final period with four goals.

Leading the Russian attack has been veteran Venianian Alexandrov, who scored on a empty net in the final minute of play against the Oil Kings to assure the win and also had three assists, and Victor Kuzin, who scored twice for the Olympic champions.

This Russian Olympic team should not be confused with another Soviet squad, tabbed the Nationals, which has been touring the midwest U.S. The team in Canada is considered the top outfit in the USSR and will be the one which plays here.

After the game tonight, the Russians goes on to Winnipeg on Thursday and then fly to Colorado Springs where they will workout at the Broadmoor World Arena for their opening game Saturday night.

The favored Russians, who easily swept to the Olympic title last winter at Innsbruck, Austria, will open the round-robin tourney here for the Walter A. Brown Memorial Trophy against Czechoslovakia. Game time this Saturday and for all the games during the six contests will be 8:15 p.m.

Canada's National team will fly to Colorado on Sunday and will have its first game against the Russians that same evening. Each team will play the other two twice during the week-long tournament.

The championship will be determined on a won-lost percentage basis, with any tie broken by most goals scored and if needed least goals allowed.

The rest of the schedule: Monday, Dec. 28, Canada vs. Czechoslovakia; Tuesday, Dec. 29, Russia vs. Czechoslovakia; Wednesday, Dec. 30, Canada vs. Russia; and Thursday, Dec. 31, Canada vs. Czechoslovakia.

Phrasings

BY MORRIS FRASER

By the Board

Texas, the land of the free and home of the brag, has done it.

Not "done it again", because nothing that state has ever accomplished, from the Alamo to Neiman-Marcus, can compare to the latest and most definitely largest stunt ever pulled.

The Houston Astros, late the Colts .45s, have THE Scoreboard. Not "a" scoreboard. THE scoreboard. Located in Houston's new domed stadium, THE Scoreboard cost $2 million. Its length is 474 feet and its height four stories (which is a lot of tall tales even in the Lone Star State.)

But a large scoreboard is not to be applauded, not in Texas, where everything is the biggest. THE Scoreboard makes note of home runs like no puny, fire work-flashing, rocket-shooting, horn-sounding scoreboard ever made note.

First, there is a television screen covering 1,800 square feet. When a ball goes over the fence, it shows five animated sequences. But that's just the beginning.

I quote:

"A lighted reproduction of the domed stadium will appear on the left of the board. The roof of the image will blow off with sound effects and flashing lights;

"A ball will appear in lights, travelling across the display, spouting fireworks.

"A large baseball will light up with the words 'home run' and more fireworks;

"Two cowboys in lights will enter the display, firing guns whose richochets will fill the area with light;

"Two gigantic steer heads will appear, snorting 'fire' and sprouting American and Texas flags at the horn tips;

"Images of a cowboy and horse will appear and gallop across in lights while the Cowboys attempts to rope a steer. He will be dumped and the roping at tempt will go awry;

"Finally, a multi-colored fireworks display in lights will cover the entire display area."

This contraption could be dangerous. Face it toward Cuba and the Bearded One might get the idea he's under attack.

Charles Finley's tremendous efforts at sounding off seem puny in comparison.

This greatest advance in the ever-marvelous world of sports has given me pause to consider — maybe my childhood was neglected by athletic leaders.

When I first learned to play baseball I once reached second base, whereupon I was stranded. We took our turn in the field, dutifully retired the other team, and I re-assumed my position at second base, thinking I had not scored and so should be entitled to another chance.

But even in that ignorance, I knew that when the ball was hit over the fence, I was home free.

Perhaps we were allowed too much initiative. The pros, who certainly should know how to run sports, must have the right idea in explaining to Mantle or Maris or Mays or Killebrew that when he hits the ball over the fence, he will know it is a home run by all the excitement out in left field — not in the stands, on the scoreboard.

That will take away some of the thunder from those hot-shot outfielders. All they have to do now is watch the scoreboard. If it lights up after a ball is hit, they won't have to start running. If it doesn't, then they can be assured it is a grounder or a routine fly ball. Just think — no more over-the-fence catches.

And think of all the wear and tear saved on umpires' arms, who now will not have to wave said limb a couple of times to denote the out-of-park blast.

Just leave it to the scoreboard operator.

But after all, something is needed to boost interest in sports. Anymore, you can't create enthusiasm by fielding the greatest team in the history of the game. You can't get people to watch the game by playing a hitter aiming for the league home run mark, or a quarterback nearing a passing record.

Basketball fans just won't watch Wilt Chamberlain or, in the past, Bob Cousy, run up high scores. Who cares if Jerry Rhome broke almost every record the NCAA has dreamed up? Who cares if Y. A. Tittle is struggling along?

How many kids — and adults — are going to watch Lakewood and Wasson play next season after Wasson had two near-misses this year? Not many. After all, neither Wasson Stadium or Jefferson County Stadium has a scoreboard which does anything much but tell the score, the quarter and the time.

And those basketball scoreboards, even in the pro field houses, just barely tell the score -- and even few of those can count above 100 points.

The game is not the thing, to paraphrase some dead playwright. Not anymore. Now it's the promotion. Gone are the afternoons and nights when Babe Ruth-like sluggers can thrill a crowd with one mighty swing. Forever into limbo are Saturdays when Grange sent 50,000 fans into a wild frenzy by scoring a breakaway touchdown.

Now there must be more. The stadium must be lifted off its foundations, not by cheers, but literal explosions. Whether they are or not, publicity men acclaim their teams as the greatest — if they don't meet a fired-up team this coming Saturday.

Even the coaches, who used to be concerned about developing talent, now bally-hoo certain players for All-American honors, so said coach can remark "he's the greatest player I ever coached," and maybe get a raise next year.

But the day is far past when fans could be chilled by a short line plunge or a single slapped through the middle. Many have become accustomed to the miraculous and they want it, regardless.

Nuts.

T-Birds' Hopes Lifted By Balance in Scoring

By TOM CUSHMAN

Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

If team balance is a step toward winning basketball Wasson's Thunderbirds should be headed toward one of their better seasons!

Despite a split in a pair of games last wekend that left the T-Birds still just under the .500 mark, the emergence of a couple of new standouts to join the corps of veterans has boosted spirits in the Wasson camp. Promise of better things to come was also signaled by a record 91 point scoring performance against South Denver and by a steady job against Lakewood that nevertheless ended in a 74-69 overtime loss.

One cause for increased optimism is the sudden rise of Randy Stanley, a rugged 6-4 junior who had been ticketed for spot duty as a reserve in pre-season calculations. But Stanley has come on to give the Thunderbirds not only badly needed strength in the rebound department, but a solid new scoring punch as well.

In fact, Stanley's work over the past weekend shot him to the top of Wasson's heap of closely packed point-makers. His 18 point job against South Denver was followed by a 13 point thrust the following evening, giving him a total of 57 for the season and an 11.4 average.

Still, the key word for Thunderbird point production is balance, and the latest statistics emphasize that fact. Although Stanley's 11.4 mean is tops among the regulars, five players are averaging over nine points a game and two more are hitting at a clip of better than six.

Following Stanley in the averages is another junior who has just moved into the picture. Bob Lynn, who started the season with the junior varisity but moved up after the T-Birds' first start, has now hit 40 points in four games for a 10.0 average. He has been the most consistent of the outside shooters so far and has thus strenthened the team in an area that appeared woefully weak earlier.

Following the two newcomers are the three veterans of the team, all off to slower than normal starts due to a prolonged football season that deprived them of the first several weeks of practice. Charlie Steel, one of the top scorers of a year ago, signaled that he is regaining the touch with an 18 point job at Lakewood Saturday that moved him into third place in the statistics with a 9.6 average. Jim Smith and Mike Martin, the other two returning lettermen, are both shooting at a 9.2 per game clip.

Back of this group come three other players who are also contributing regularly. Rick Pettigrew, a junior starter, has a 6.8 average; Rod Wells is at 6.0; and Craig Gillette at 4.0.

Despite the disappointing loss at Lakewood, which came after the Thunderbirds had constructed a seemingly safe nine point lead early in the fourth quarter, the team showed gradual strengthening in areas where it had been decidedly short the first two weekends of the campaign. The field goal percentage, still well below normal, was raised some four points to 34.4, mostly on the strenth of a superior night against South Denver. Free throw shooting also showed a slight increase but it was a lingering lack in that department which was responsible for the loss at Lakewood.

Wasson is currently on a holiday break which will be snapped next week when the Thunderbirds return to the local floor to wrap-up their nonleaue schedule in a Wednesday afternoon game against Laramie, Wyo.

Ermer Named Manager Of Twin-Connected Bears

DENVER (UPI)—The Pacific Coast League Denver Bears had a new baseball manager today —scrappy Cal Ermer, a 22-year veteran who worked in nearly every position conceivable while with the Baltimore Orioles and the old Washington Senators.

Ermer, 41, replaces Bill Adair, who resigned to manage Milwaukee's top minor league team, Atlanta of the International League.

Ermer, a second baseman, player, manager, coach, scout and trouble shooter at all levels of baseball, has been an Orioles scout for the past two years.

He started his baseball career with the Senators in 1942 as an infielder with their Orlando, Fla., farm club. In moving to Denver, he'll be returning to the former Senators organization for the first time since 1957.

The Senators moved to Minneapolis in 1957. This year the Bears and the Twins started a working agreement.

Ermer played and managed at Charlotte, S.C.; Hagerstown, Md.; Savannah, Ga.; Birmingham, Ala.; Columbus, Ohio and Richmond, Va., before moving into the Orioles chain in 1962.

Ermer, a native of Baltimore, now lives in Chattanooga, Tenn. where he managed from 1952 to 1957.

Denver announced this week that Texas League President Jim Burris would be general manager of the Bears next year. Burris replaces Eddie Glennon, who will be general manager of Atlanta.

CC Drops Another In Meet

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Colorado College was to battle to stay out of the cellar today in the fifth annual California Western Holiday Tournament and at the same time the Tigers from Colorado Springs are seeking their second win in six games this season.

CC was to play Hamilton Air Force Base of California today with the winner taking seventh place in the eight-team bracket.

The Tigers dropped their second game of the tournament here Tuesday as Southern Utah used its great height advantage in handing the Colorado five a 73-60 setback. In the opener of the three-day meet on Monday, CC was smothered by the host California Western club 69-36.

Tuesday's win gave Southern Utah the college division consolation championship and a chance to shoot today for the overall consolation title. The tourney is divided between four college teams and a like number of military service teams, including Hamilton AFB, which represents the Air Defense Command of the Air Force.

The Utes will take on the Marines Recruit Depot of San Diego, which won the service branch consolation of the tournament Tuesday by beating Hamilton 79-67.

Southern Utah led all the way in the game against Colorado College and had a 56-33 lead with eight minutes to go in the contest Steve Schilder hit 25 points for the Tigers to take team and game honors.

After today's game, Colorado College will host its own tournament in next action, Dec. 29-30. This Holiday Tournament involving CC, University of Chicago, Grinnell and Knox College, will be played in Colorado Springs at the Palmer High School gymnasium.

Cougars Curdle Ohio State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arizona State University lost 92-87 to University of Pacific and Brigham Young clobbered Ohio State 112-71 Tuesday night as Western Athletic Conference teams continued to win at home and lose on the road.

They have won all 29 of their home games, but have claimed victory in only one of an even dozen road encounters.

A-State, now 4-4, trailed 50-35 at the half and fell short in a second half rally. John Myers had one of his best nights as he canned 31 points for A-State. Dennis Dairman added 16.

Three Pacific players amassed 78 points, however, as their team went to 5-2. Don Odale had 27, Bob Krulish 26 and Keith Swagerty 25.

Brigham Young, 5-2, never trailed in its game with Big Ten Ohio State.

John Fairchild led scorers with 24 points, while Dick Nemelka had 20 and Gary Hill added 17.

The Cougars shot 51 per cent on field goals to 35 per cent for the Buckeyes, and had a 66-44 edge in rebounds.

Tonight's WAC action brings the defensive minded Texas Western Miners to Arizona and Howard Payne will be at New Mexico.

Pearson, Spear, Officials Shine As Palmer Defeats Academy High

By TOM CUSHMAN

Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The most unusual thing about the Palmer-Academy High basketball game Tuesday night was the fact that it was a basketball game!

If that sounds like some sort of mumbo-jumbo, produced by an overdose of holiday cheer, rest assured that it's not. It's simply a reference to one of those rare occasions when the game is a contest of speed and skill instead of just another night at the free throw line.

For instance, during the Terrors' 65-52 victory in the first meeting between the two local schools, there was a total of only 24 fouls whistled by officials Bud Langhardt and Jack Willie, a paltry figure that would cause the average referee to blush when picking up his paycheck. Even more astounding was the fact that neither team reached a one-and-one situation in the first half — and considering the recent trend in whistle-blowing, that is one of those little tidbits that would delight Mr. Ripley.

As a result, the crowd of 1,800 at the Palmer Gymnasium was treated to unusually lengthy stretches of continuous action, a refreshing innovation in the era of modern basketball. Spectators were further entertained by an outstanding display of individual ability on the part of two participants. Bob Pearson, a slow-starter for Palmer this winter, chose the evening to blossom into a fine all-around player as he delivered the clutch work that kept the Terrors moving every time the Kadets began nipping at their heels.

On the other hand, Academy High did not come without a hero of its own. Bert Spear, a 5-9 whiz of a basketball player, did everything but sell refreshments, and included in his chores was the rather burdensome task of keeping the Kadets in the game. Spear darted in and out of the Palmer defenses to deposit 27 points and overshadow the brilliant 25 points burst by the Terrors' Pearson.

For Palmer, Pearson's choice of an evening to shine was timely, to say the least. For it came on a night when the Tribe's usual star was having problems in establishing an understanding with the basket. Bill McCalvy, he of the smooth jump shot, finished with 16 points but he consumed 31 of the Terrors' 77 field goal attempts in compiling that total. That figures out to an un-McCalvy-like percentageof 25.8. Also helping to pull in the slack was 6-5 sophomore Ed Fitzgerald who tossed in 14 points and pulled down 19 rebounds in an excellent performance.

Despite the combination of Spear's heroics and McCalvy's problems, the Terrors were never really in serious danger throughout the evening. They jumped to a quick 6-0 lead in the first two minutes on a pair of long archers by Pearson and a follow shot by Fitzgerald. The Academy pulled to 8-7 at one point during the quarter but had faded to 20-13 by the start of the second period.

With that as a starter, the Terrors quickly boosted their margin to 13 points with slightly over two minutes gone in the second quarter and fought off a couple of brief Kadet flurries before taking a 38-27 lead to the dressing room. It was more of the same in the third period as Palmer extended its margin to as much as 15 points before watching it shrivel to 52-40 as the teams turned into the final eight minutes.

It was in that last quarter that the Kadets created a few minutes of light suspence. With Spear contributing two quick buckets and Vance Wilson one, they trimmed the Palmer bulge to eight points at 54-46 with 6:27 to go but the rally was abbreviated. The Terrors soared away again on a three point play by Pearson and with the lead at 59-48 and three minutes remaining, McCalvy came alive with three straight cripples to lock it away.

The win gave the Terrors a 3-2 record for the non-league campaign which concludes next Tuesday in an afternoon battle with Laramie, Wyo. Academy High, now 1-6, rests until 1965 while in the interim Coach John Delvanthal waits to see if Santa can come up with any more Spears for his stocking.

Intramural Player Boosts Missouri Past Rice Owls

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

Associated Press Sports Writer

Lightly regarded Missouri has the best won-lost percentage in Big Eight basketball and the major reason is Ned Monsees, a 6-foot-5, 220-pound refugee from the intramural ranks who has scored 56 points the last two games.

Monsees pumped in 32 points as Missouri clipped Rice 82-71 at Houston, leading a Tuesday night three-game sweep by Big Eight teams. Nebraska beat California 63-59 at Lincoln and Iowa State stopped Marquette 73-64 at Ames.

Monsees scored 24, and grabbed 15 rebounds in Missouri's 62 - 56 upset of highly rated St. Louis Dec. 12 at Columbia. His average is 17.5, best on the team.

Missouri has a 4-2 record heading into its game with SMU at Dallas tonight. Its the final game before the Big Eight pre-season tournament starting Saturday in Kansas City.

Nebraska, K-State, Kansas and Oklahoma State all stand 5-3.

The Huskers also are getting help from unexpected quarters. A pair of sophomores, Fred Hare and Nate Branch, were the top scorers in a two-game sweep over California. Hare had 40 points and Branch 39 in the two games.

The Huskers led 36-26 at halftime Tuesday and held off a Bear rally.

Iowa State hit 51 per cent from the field and was led by Bob Ziegler's 20 points. After Marquette wiped out a 10-point Cyclone lead with a full - court press, Ziegler's two quick goals broke a 52-52 tie.

It was Iowa State's second straight victory—the other over Drake—after five straight defeats.

Bruins Inaugurate New Win Streak

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

The UCLA basketball Bruins are off on another winning streak and no one knows where this one will end.

Coach Johnny Wooden's boys were unbeaten in 30 games last year in their march to the national collegiate championship. They opened this season with a road defeat to Illinois, but since then have racked up six straight victories.

Their latest was a 84-75 conquest of Southern California at Los Angeles Tuesday night. And just as he did in previous triumphs over Indiana State, Arizona State, Oklahoma State, Marquette and Boston College, southpaw Gail Goodrich spear-headed the attack.

Overshadowed by All-America Walt Hazzard a year ago, Goodrich has taken the center of the stage with Hazzard's graduation. His brilliant passing and shooting doomed the Trojans. He finished with 28 points, including three straight field goals that broke open the game in the first half.

The victory of the fourth-ranked Bruins highlighted the pre-holiday national card. Third-ranked Minnesota whipped Chicago Loyola 89-75, ninth-ranked St. Louis downed Kentucky 80-75 and 10th-ranked Davidson beat Virginia 86-74 in other games involving teams in the Associated Press top ten.

Playing at home, Minnesota had an easy time winning its sixth straight against the Ramblers from Chicago. Mel Northway and Archie Clark each scored 19 points for the Gophers.

A jump shot by sophomore Bob Cole broke a 63-63 tie and put St. Louis ahead for good as the Billikens, enjoying the home court advantage, beat Kentucky for the fifth time in six years.

Fred Hetzel's 27 points led Davidson to its victory over Virginia at Charlotte. Don Davidson and Dick Snyder added 22 and 16, respectively.

Vanderbilt knocked Miami of Ohio from the unbeaten ranks with a come-from-behind 74-68 victory at Nashville. A 16-10 spurt, led by Roger Schurig's five field goals, erased an 11-point Miami lead. Over-all, 6-foot-9 Clyde Lee paced the Commodores with 25 points.

Playing on the road, Oklahoma City won its seventh straight with an 82-79 verdict over Creighton at Omaha and Tennessee made it five in a row by crushing Florida State 65-43 on a neutral court in Memphis.

Brigham Young romped to an easy 112-71 triumph over touring Ohio State at Provo, Utah, paced by John Fairchild's 24 points.

In other road defeats, Colorado State U. lost to Detroit 75-73, Gonzaga lost to Duquesne 83-69 and Arizona State lost to U. of Pacific 92-87. In contrast, Nebraska returned home, after two road setbacks, and tripped California 63-59.

Western Kentucky beat Eastern Kentucky 82-73 and Murray State downed Tennessee Tech 79-75 in the semifinals of the hio Valley Conference Holiday Tourney at Louisville.

Akron edged Bucknell 65-63 and Westminster, Pa., whipped Capital, Ohio, 76-49 in the first round of the Rubber City Classic at Akron.

Phillies Brass, Crew Receive Record Bonus

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies, whose skidding finish cost them the National League pennant this year, have awarded their entire administrative staff and work crew a record Christmas bonus, club officials said today.

All non-playing personnel from the vice presidents down to the batboy last week received Christmas checks that ranged as high as over $1,500.

While club officials declined to reveal the figures, a spokesman said the bonuses reflected on of the best financial years in the history of the club. The Phillies drew more than 1,400,000.

It was the Phils' first year in the black since 1958. Since then, losses totaled almost $1 million.

Favored Russian Hockey Team Preps For International Games in Colorado

Russia's highly touted Olympic hockey team makes its final stop on an exhibition tour through Canada tonight before moving on to Colorado Springs and the International Tournament, Dec. 26 through 31.

Tonight the Soviets are to tackle a team at Trail, British Columbia, which concludes the warm-up for the double round-robin tourney at the Broadmoor World Arena here in the Springs. The game at Trail will be against an all-star squad from the Western International League, including several players who have been participating in professional hockey.

To date, the Russians have chalked up six victories and a tie on their tour into Canada, prior to the visit to the United States. The latest was against Edmonton, Alberta, in which the Russ turned back a determined last-period rally by the Canadians to win 7-5.

More than 6,500 fans screamed with delight as the Edmonton Oil Kings, beefed up with several professionals, charged from behind a 6-1 deficit in the final period with four goals.

Leading the Russian attack has been veteran Venianian Alexandrov, who scored on a empty net in the final minute of play against the Oil Kings to assure the win and also had three assists, and Victor Kuzin, who scored twice for the Olympic champions.

This Russian Olympic team should not be confused with another Soviet squad, tabbed the Nationals, which has been touring the midwest U.S. The team in Canada is considered the top outfit in the USSR and will be the one which plays here.

After the game tonight, the Russians goes on to Winnipeg on Thursday and then fly to Colorado Springs where they will workout at the Broadmoor World Arena for their opening game Saturday night.

The favored Russians, who easily swept to the Olympic title last winter at Innsbruck, Austria, will open the round-robin tourney here for the Walter A. Brown Memorial Trophy against Czechoslovakia. Game time this Saturday and for all the games during the six contests will be 8:15 p.m.

Canada's National team will fly to Colorado on Sunday and will have its first game against the Russians that same evening. Each team will play the other two twice during the week-long tournament.

The championship will be determined on a won-lost percentage basis, with any tie broken by most goals scored and if needed least goals allowed.

The rest of the schedule: Monday, Dec. 28, Canada vs. Czechoslovakia; Tuesday, Dec. 29, Russia vs. Czechoslovakia; Wednesday, Dec. 30, Canada vs. Russia; and Thursday, Dec. 31, Canada vs. Czechoslovakia.

Phrasings

BY MORRIS FRASER

By the Board

Texas, the land of the free and home of the brag, has done it.

Not "done it again", because nothing that state has ever accomplished, from the Alamo to Neiman-Marcus, can compare to the latest and most definitely largest stunt ever pulled.

The Houston Astros, late the Colts .45s, have THE Scoreboard. Not "a" scoreboard. THE scoreboard. Located in Houston's new domed stadium, THE Scoreboard cost $2 million. Its length is 474 feet and its height four stories (which is a lot of tall tales even in the Lone Star State.)

But a large scoreboard is not to be applauded, not in Texas, where everything is the biggest. THE Scoreboard makes note of home runs like no puny, fire work-flashing, rocket-shooting, horn-sounding scoreboard ever made note.

First, there is a television screen covering 1,800 square feet. When a ball goes over the fence, it shows five animated sequences. But that's just the beginning.

I quote:

"A lighted reproduction of the domed stadium will appear on the left of the board. The roof of the image will blow off with sound effects and flashing lights;

"A ball will appear in lights, travelling across the display, spouting fireworks.

"A large baseball will light up with the words 'home run' and more fireworks;

"Two cowboys in lights will enter the display, firing guns whose richochets will fill the area with light;

"Two gigantic steer heads will appear, snorting 'fire' and sprouting American and Texas flags at the horn tips;

"Images of a cowboy and horse will appear and gallop across in lights while the Cowboys attempts to rope a steer. He will be dumped and the roping at tempt will go awry;

"Finally, a multi-colored fireworks display in lights will cover the entire display area."

This contraption could be dangerous. Face it toward Cuba and the Bearded One might get the idea he's under attack.

Charles Finley's tremendous efforts at sounding off seem puny in comparison.

This greatest advance in the ever-marvelous world of sports has given me pause to consider — maybe my childhood was neglected by athletic leaders.

When I first learned to play baseball I once reached second base, whereupon I was stranded. We took our turn in the field, dutifully retired the other team, and I re-assumed my position at second base, thinking I had not scored and so should be entitled to another chance.

But even in that ignorance, I knew that when the ball was hit over the fence, I was home free.

Perhaps we were allowed too much initiative. The pros, who certainly should know how to run sports, must have the right idea in explaining to Mantle or Maris or Mays or Killebrew that when he hits the ball over the fence, he will know it is a home run by all the excitement out in left field — not in the stands, on the scoreboard.

That will take away some of the thunder from those hot-shot outfielders. All they have to do now is watch the scoreboard. If it lights up after a ball is hit, they won't have to start running. If it doesn't, then they can be assured it is a grounder or a routine fly ball. Just think — no more over-the-fence catches.

And think of all the wear and tear saved on umpires' arms, who now will not have to wave said limb a couple of times to denote the out-of-park blast.

Just leave it to the scoreboard operator.

But after all, something is needed to boost interest in sports. Anymore, you can't create enthusiasm by fielding the greatest team in the history of the game. You can't get people to watch the game by playing a hitter aiming for the league home run mark, or a quarterback nearing a passing record.

Basketball fans just won't watch Wilt Chamberlain or, in the past, Bob Cousy, run up high scores. Who cares if Jerry Rhome broke almost every record the NCAA has dreamed up? Who cares if Y. A. Tittle is struggling along?

How many kids — and adults — are going to watch Lakewood and Wasson play next season after Wasson had two near-misses this year? Not many. After all, neither Wasson Stadium or Jefferson County Stadium has a scoreboard which does anything much but tell the score, the quarter and the time.

And those basketball scoreboards, even in the pro field houses, just barely tell the score — and even few of those can count above 100 points.

The game is not the thing, to paraphrase some dead playwright. Not anymore. Now it's the promotion. Gone are the afternoons and nights when Babe Ruth-like sluggers can thrill a crowd with one mighty swing. Forever into limbo are Saturdays when Grange sent 50,000 fans into a wild frenzy by scoring a breakaway touchdown.

Now there must be more. The stadium must be lifted off its foundations, not by cheers, but literal explosions. Whether they are or not, publicity men acclaim their teams as the greatest — if they don't meet a fired-up team this coming Saturday.

Even the coaches, who used to be concerned about developing talent, now bally-hoo certain players for All-American honors, so said coach can remark "he's the greatest player I ever coached," and maybe get a raise next year.

But the day is far past when fans could be chilled by a short line plunge or a single slapped through the middle. Many have become accustomed to the miraculous and they want it, regardless.

Nuts.

T-Birds' Hopes Lifted By Balance in Scoring

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

If team balance is a step toward winning basketball Wasson's Thunderbirds should be headed toward one of their better seasons!

Despite a split in a pair of games last wekend that left the T-Birds still just under the .500 mark, the emergence of a couple of new standouts to join the corps of veterans has boosted spirits in the Wasson camp. Promise of better things to come was also signaled by a record 91 point scoring performance against South Denver and by a steady job against Lakewood that nevertheless ended in a 74-69 overtime loss.

One cause for increased optimism is the sudden rise of Randy Stanley, a rugged 6-4 junior who had been ticketed for spot duty as a reserve in pre-season calculations. But Stanley has come on to give the Thunderbirds not only badly needed strength in the rebound department, but a solid new scoring punch as well.

In fact, Stanley's work over the past weekend shot him to the top of Wasson's heap of closely packed point-makers. His 18 point job against South Denver was followed by a 13 point thrust the following evening, giving him a total of 57 for the season and an 11.4 average.

Still, the key word for Thunderbird point production is balance, and the latest statistics emphasize that fact. Although Stanley's 11.4 mean is tops among the regulars, five players are averaging over nine points a game and two more are hitting at a clip of better than six.

Following Stanley in the averages is another junior who has just moved into the picture. Bob Lynn, who started the season with the junior varisity but moved up after the T-Birds' first start, has now hit 40 points in four games for a 10.0 average. He has been the most consistent of the outside shooters so far and has thus strenthened the team in an area that appeared woefully weak earlier.

Following the two newcomers are the three veterans of the team, all off to slower than normal starts due to a prolonged football season that deprived them of the first several weeks of practice. Charlie Steel, one of the top scorers of a year ago, signaled that he is regaining the touch with an 18 point job at Lakewood Saturday that moved him into third place in the statistics with a 9.6 average. Jim Smith and Mike Martin, the other two returning lettermen, are both shooting at a 9.2 per game clip.

Back of this group come three other players who are also contributing regularly. Rick Pettigrew, a junior starter, has a 6.8 average; Rod Wells is at 6.0; and Craig Gillette at 4.0.

Despite the disappointing loss at Lakewood, which came after the Thunderbirds had constructed a seemingly safe nine point lead early in the fourth quarter, the team showed gradual strengthening in areas where it had been decidedly short the first two weekends of the campaign. The field goal percentage, still well below normal, was raised some four points to 34.4, mostly on the strenth of a superior night against South Denver. Free throw shooting also showed a slight increase but it was a lingering lack in that department which was responsible for the loss at Lakewood.

Wasson is currently on a holiday break which will be snapped next week when the Thunderbirds return to the local floor to wrap-up their nonleaue schedule in a Wednesday afternoon game against Laramie, Wyo.

Ermer Named Manager Of Twin-Connected Bears

DENVER (UPI)—The Pacific Coast League Denver Bears had a new baseball manager today—scrappy Cal Ermer, a 22-year veteran who worked in nearly every position conceivable while with the Baltimore Orioles and the old Washington Senators.

Ermer, 41, replaces Bill Adair, who resigned to manage Milwaukee's top minor league team, Atlanta of the International League.

Ermer, a second baseman, player, manager, coach, scout and trouble shooter at all levels of baseball, has been an Orioles scout for the past two years.

He started his baseball career with the Senators in 1942 as an infielder with their Orlando, Fla., farm club. In moving to Denver, he'll be returning to the former Senators organization for the first time since 1957.

The Senators moved to Minneapolis in 1957. This year the Bears and the Twins started a working agreement.

Ermer played and managed at Charlotte, S.C.; Hagerstown, Md.; Savannah, Ga.; Birmingham, Ala.; Columbus, Ohio and Richmond, Va., before moving into the Orioles chain in 1962.

Ermer, a native of Baltimore, now lives in Chattanooga, Tenn. where he managed from 1952 to 1957.

Denver announced this week that Texas League President Jim Burris would be general manager of the Bears next year. Burris replaces Eddie Glennon, who will be general manager of Atlanta.

CC Drops Another In Meet

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Colorado College was to battle to stay out of the cellar today in the fifth annual California Western Holiday Tournament and at the same time the Tigers from Colorado Springs are seeking their second win in six games this season.

CC was to play Hamilton Air Force Base of California today with the winner taking seventh place in the eight-team bracket.

The Tigers dropped their second game of the tournament here Tuesday as Southern Utah used its great height advantage in handing the Colorado five a 73-60 setback. In the opener of the three-day meet on Monday, CC was smothered by the host California Western club 69-36.

Tuesday's win gave Southern Utah the college division consolation championship and a chance to shoot today for the overall consolation title. The tourney is divided between four college teams and a like number of military service teams, including Hamilton AFB, which represents the Air Defense Command of the Air Force.

The Utes will take on the Marines Recruit Depot of San Diego, which won the service branch consolation of the tournament Tuesday by beating Hamilton 79-67.

Southern Utah led all the way in the game against Colorado College and had a 56-33 lead with eight minutes to go in the contest Steve Schilder hit 25 points for the Tigers to take team and game honors.

After today's game, Colorado College will host its own tournament in next action, Dec. 29-30. This Holiday Tournament involving CC, University of Chicago, Grinnell and Knox College, will be played in Colorado Springs at the Palmer High School gymnasium.

Cougars Curdle Ohio State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arizona State University lost 92-87 to University of Pacific and Brigham Young clobbered Ohio State 112-71 Tuesday night as Western Athletic Conference teams continued to win at home and lose on the road.

They have won all 29 of their home games, but have claimed victory in only one of an even dozen road encounters.

A-State, now 4-4, trailed 50-35 at the half and fell short in a second half rally. John Myers had one of his best nights as he canned 31 points for A-State. Dennis Dairman added 16.

Three Pacific players amassed 78 points, however, as their team went to 5-2. Don Odale had 27, Bob Krulish 26 and Keith Swagerty 25.

Brigham Young, 5-2, never trailed in its game with Big Ten Ohio State.

John Fairchild led scorers with 24 points, while Dick Nemelka had 20 and Gary Hill added 17.

The Cougars shot 51 per cent on field goals to 35 per cent for the Buckeyes, and had a 66-44 edge in rebounds.

Tonight's WAC action brings the defensive minded Texas Western Miners to Arizona and Howard Payne will be at New Mexico.

Pearson, Spear, Officials Shine As Palmer Defeats Academy High

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The most unusual thing about the Palmer-Academy High basketball game Tuesday night was the fact that it was a basketball game!

If that sounds like some sort of mumbo-jumbo, produced by an overdose of holiday cheer, rest assured that it's not. It's simply a reference to one of those rare occasions when the game is a contest of speed and skill instead of just another night at the free throw line.

For instance, during the Terrors' 65-52 victory in the first meeting between the two local schools, there was a total of only 24 fouls whistled by officials Bud Langhardt and Jack Willie, a paltry figure that would cause the average referee to blush when picking up his paycheck. Even more astounding was the fact that neither team reached a one-and-one situation in the first half — and considering the recent trend in whistle-blowing, that is one of those little tidbits that would delight Mr. Ripley.

As a result, the crowd of 1,800 at the Palmer Gymnasium was treated to unusually lengthy stretches of continuous action, a refreshing innovation in the era of modern basketball. Spectators were further entertained by an outstanding display of individual ability on the part of two participants. Bob Pearson, a slow-starter for Palmer this winter, chose the evening to blossom into a fine all-around player as he delivered the clutch work that kept the Terrors moving every time the Kadets began nipping at their heels.

On the other hand, Academy High did not come without a hero of its own. Bert Spear, a 5-9 whiz of a basketball player, did everything but sell refreshments, and included in his chores was the rather burdensome task of keeping the Kadets in the game. Spear darted in and out of the Palmer defenses to deposit 27 points and overshadow the brilliant 25 points burst by the Terrors' Pearson.

For Palmer, Pearson's choice of an evening to shine was timely, to say the least. For it came on a night when the Tribe's usual star was having problems in establishing an understanding with the basket. Bill McCalvy, he of the smooth jump shot, finished with 16 points but he consumed 31 of the Terrors' 77 field goal attempts in compiling that total. That figures out to an un-McCalvy-like percentageof 25.8. Also helping to pull in the slack was 6-5 sophomore Ed Fitzgerald who tossed in 14 points and pulled down 19 rebounds in an excellent performance.

Despite the combination of Spear's heroics and McCalvy's problems, the Terrors were never really in serious danger throughout the evening. They jumped to a quick 6-0 lead in the first two minutes on a pair of long archers by Pearson and a follow shot by Fitzgerald. The Academy pulled to 8-7 at one point during the quarter but had faded to 20-13 by the start of the second period.

With that as a starter, the Terrors quickly boosted their margin to 13 points with slightly over two minutes gone in the second quarter and fought off a couple of brief Kadet flurries before taking a 38-27 lead to the dressing room. It was more of the same in the third period as Palmer extended its margin to as much as 15 points before watching it shrivel to 52-40 as the teams turned into the final eight minutes.

It was in that last quarter that the Kadets created a few minutes of light suspence. With Spear contributing two quick buckets and Vance Wilson one, they trimmed the Palmer bulge to eight points at 54-46 with 6:27 to go but the rally was abbreviated. The Terrors soared away again on a three point play by Pearson and with the lead at 59-48 and three minutes remaining, McCalvy came alive with three straight cripples to lock it away.

The win gave the Terrors a 3-2 record for the non-league campaign which concludes next Tuesday in an afternoon battle with Laramie, Wyo. Academy High, now 1-6, rests until 1965 while in the interim Coach John Delvanthal waits to see if Santa can come up with any more Spears for his stocking.

Intramural Player Boosts Missouri Past Rice Owls

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lightly regarded Missouri has the best won-lost percentage in Big Eight basketball and the major reason is Ned Monsees, a 6-foot-5, 220-pound refugee from the intramural ranks who has scored 56 points the last two games.

Monsees pumped in 32 points as Missouri clipped Rice 82-71 at Houston, leading a Tuesday night three-game sweep by Big Eight teams. Nebraska beat California 63-59 at Lincoln and Iowa State stopped Marquette 73-64 at Ames.

Monsees scored 24, and grabbed 15 rebounds in Missouri's 62 - 56 upset of highly rated St. Louis Dec. 12 at Columbia. His average is 17.5, best on the team.

Missouri has a 4-2 record heading into its game with SMU at Dallas tonight. Its the final game before the Big Eight pre-season tournament starting Saturday in Kansas City.

Nebraska, K-State, Kansas and Oklahoma State all stand 5-3.

The Huskers also are getting help from unexpected quarters. A pair of sophomores, Fred Hare and Nate Branch, were the top scorers in a two-game sweep over California. Hare had 40 points and Branch 39 in the two games.

The Huskers led 36-26 at halftime Tuesday and held off a Bear rally.

Iowa State hit 51 per cent from the field and was led by Bob Ziegler's 20 points. After Marquette wiped out a 10-point Cyclone lead with a full - court press, Ziegler's two quick goals broke a 52-52 tie.

It was Iowa State's second straight victory—the other over Drake—after five straight defeats.

Bruins Inaugurate New Win Streak

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The UCLA basketball Bruins are off on another winning streak and no one knows where this one will end.

Coach Johnny Wooden's boys were unbeaten in 30 games last year in their march to the national collegiate championship. They opened this season with a road defeat to Illinois, but since then have racked up six straight victories.

Their latest was a 84-75 conquest of Southern California at Los Angeles Tuesday night. And just as he did in previous triumphs over Indiana State, Arizona State, Oklahoma State, Marquette and Boston College, southpaw Gail Goodrich spearheaded the attack.

Overshadowed by All-America Walt Hazzard a year ago, Goodrich has taken the center of the stage with Hazzard's graduation. His brilliant passing and shooting doomed the Trojans. He finished with 28 points, including three straight field goals that broke open the game in the first half.

The victory of the fourth-ranked Bruins highlighted the pre-holiday national card. Third-ranked Minnesota whipped Chicago Loyola 89-75, ninth-ranked St. Louis downed Kentucky 80-75 and 10th-ranked Davidson beat Virginia 86-74 in other games involving teams in the Associated Press top ten.

Playing at home, Minnesota had an easy time winning its sixth straight against the Ramblers from Chicago. Mel Northway and Archie Clark each scored 19 points for the Gophers.

A jump shot by sophomore Bob Cole broke a 63-63 tie and put St. Louis ahead for good as the Billikens, enjoying the home court advantage, beat Kentucky for the fifth time in six years.

Fred Hetzel's 27 points led Davidson to its victory over Virginia at Charlotte. Don Davidson and Dick Snyder added 22 and 16, respectively.

Vanderbilt knocked Miami of Ohio from the unbeaten ranks with a come-from-behind 74-68 victory at Nashville. A 16-10 spurt, led by Roger Schurig's five field goals, erased an 11-point Miami lead. Over-all, 6-foot-9 Clyde Lee paced the Commodores with 25 points.

Playing on the road, Oklahoma City won its seventh straight with an 82-79 verdict over Creighton at Omaha and Tennessee made it five in a row by crushing Florida State 65-43 on a neutral court in Memphis.

Brigham Young romped to an easy 112-71 triumph over touring Ohio State at Provo, Utah, paced by John Fairchild's 24 points.

In other road defeats, Colorado State U. lost to Detroit 75-73, Gonzaga lost to Duquesne 83-69 and Arizona State lost to U. of Pacific 92-87. In contrast, Nebraska returned home, after two road setbacks, and tripped California 63-59.

Western Kentucky beat Eastern Kentucky 82-73 and Murray State downed Tennessee Tech 79-75 in the semifinals of the hio Valley Conference Holiday Tourney at Louisville.

Akron edged Bucknell 65-63 and Westminster, Pa., whipped Capital, Ohio, 76-49 in the first round of the Rubber City Classic at Akron.

Phillies Brass, Crew Receive Record Bonus

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies, whose skidding finish cost them the National League pennant this year, have awarded their entire administrative staff and work crew a record Christmas bonus, club officials said today.

All non-playing personnel from the vice presidents down to the batboy last week received Christmas checks that ranged as high as over $1,500.

While club officials declined to reveal the figures, a spokesman said the bonuses reflected on of the best financial years in the history of the club. The Phillies drew more than 1,400,000.

It was the Phils' first year in the black since 1958. Since then, losses totaled almost $1 million.

Browns Will Run -- McPeak

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Washington's Bill McPeak, one of the NFL coaches who met both Baltimore and Cleveland in the regular season, thinks the Browns will run at the Colts Sunday and make things interesting in the title game.

"Cleveland's Jim Brown keeps them in the ball game," said McPeak in Washington. "He really can do the job. I think you have to run at Baltimore, but you need two to do that. Ernie Green is a vastly underrated back. It could be very interesting."

However, McPeak also sees perils for the Browns if they try to pass against the Colts' front four.

"Baltimore likes to turn loose that front four," said McPeak. "They turn them loose and often drop the linebackers and play one, like Cleveland. It's tough to pass against them except for screen and what we call delay flares."

Cleveland beat Washington twice, 27-13 and 34-24, during the National Football League season. Baltimore thumped the Redskins 45-17 in the final game.

"We played Cleveland twice when we were at full strength," said McPeak. "In the first game we outplayed them except for fumbles. In the second game we played our poorest defensive game of the year. Still,, Sonny Jurgensen got hot in the second half and passed for something like 240 yards.

"Against Baltimore were were minus two regular secondary man — Lonnie Sanders and Jim Steffen. Then we lost Charley Taulor in the third quarter. Until we lost Taylor we were giving them all they could hande. But when they finaly broke loose we haven't seen an avalanche like that all year."

McPeak said Baltimore red dogs about 20 to 25 times a game compared to Cleveland's more conservative eight or 10 times. Both did a good job of pass blocking.

"Jim Brown is in a class by himself," said McPeak. "So is John Unitas. Paul Warfield and Gary Collins have come on to match Baltimore's receivers. It should be a real good ball game. Baltimore probably has the edge in the defensive secondary and have a more diversified defense."

North Schedules Mixed Defense Against Pass

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Coaches for the North squad in the Christmas Day all-star football game are planning a mixed defense for the South strong-armed passers and fast receivers.

It's a combination man-to-man and zone defense and a lot of the burden will fall on Michigan State's Herman Johnson, a 6-foot-4 defensive specialist with range, speed and size.

North coaches regard Johnson as probably the only player who will be able to stay with the South's Bob Hayes of Florida A&M, the world's fastest human who won two gold medals in the Olympics.

than on man to watch."

of Notre Dame says Johnson barely missed qualifying for the Olympics himself — in the hurdles. "He's fast," Parseghian says.

Coach Paul Ditzel of Army also is worried about Hayes. But he says, "we have more like to throw to," Dietzel said.

He had in mind Jerry Rhome, the South's record shattering passer from Tulsa and Navy's Skip Orr.

"Orr is a fine receiver and he's the guy (Roger) Staubach likes to throw to," Dietzel said.

Staubach is the South's starting quarterback.

North coaches have another vexing problem to worry about — finding someone to kick off. Says Parseghian:

"It's hard to believe but we don't have anybody who kicked off for his team.."

Parseghian got several players taking a kick-off cram course.

But the North's use of the crying towel neglects to mention the potent offense it will mount, headed by Heisman Trophy winner John Huarte of Notre Dame at quarterback. In fact, the North is so rich in quarterbacks that Rollie Stichweh, Army's quarterback, has been converted to flankerback.

Richie Badar of Indiana will alternate with Huarte. The rest of the backfield is Gene Foster of Arizona State and Steve Murphy of Northwestern.

Poor Pats Must Send Back Cash

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Patriots made a sad announcement today. The American Football league team will start processing ticket refunds for the championship game it didn't make next Monday.

General Manager and Coach Mike Holovak said refund processing was put off until Monday to avoid clashing with the regular crush of Christmas mail.

Patrons who purchased tickets, excepting season ticket holders, are asked to mail in their tickets for a refund. Holovak said season ticket holders will be contacted directly.

The Patriots sold thousands of tickets to the AFL championship playoff with San Diego Dec. 26 but they lost out on a title game berth when they were beaten 24-14 by Buffalo last Sunday.

Knicks Hot Shooters Top SF

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Knickerbockers, whose victories come few and far between, have come up with a simple formula for success. All they have to do to win in the National Basketball Association is to hit on 50 per cent of their shots and display scoring balance.

The Knicks parlayed those ingredients, offset the ominous presence of Wilt Chamberlain and went on to upend the San Francisco Warriors 124-118 in Sacramento, Calif., Tuesday night.

The game between the tailend teams of the Eastern and Western divisions was the only one scheduled. It drew a crowd of 2,654 at the Sacramento High School Pavillion.

New York, in gaining only its ninth triumph in 32 starts, connected on 56 of 110 field goal attempts for a 50.9 per cent average. Seven Knicks hit double scoring figures, led by rookie Willis Reed's 25 points.

Chamberlain, who entered the game with a 39-point average for the Warriors, was high with 46 points. He also found time to grab 18 rebounds. Teammate Nate Thurmond topped the rebounders with 20 but the New Yorkers out-rebounded San Francisco, 74 to 73.

A torrid 45-point outburst in the second period carried the Knicks to their second victory over the Warriors in five meetings. Bob Boozer triggered the rampage with 14 points and Johnny Egan contributed nine as New York built a 65-50 bulge that was cut to 73-62 at halftime.

San Francisco surged back after the intermission and trimmed the deficit to 92-89 entering the final period. Three times the Warriors came within two points before Reed sealed the verdict with a pair of baskets with 2:20 left that put the Knicks safely in front 119-111.

Detroit Nips CSU With Buzzer Shot

DETROIT, Mich. (UPI)— John Watson hit a 40-foot jump shot just as the buzzer sounded Tuesday night to give a powerful Detroit club a 75-73 basketball victory over Colorado State University.

Detroit had a slim 35-34 lead at halftime and at one time had a 14 point edge over the Rams. However, CSU built up a nine-point lead and seemed assured of a victory until Detroit got hot.

Lou Hyatt, Detroit's big offensive and defensive gun, made two jump shots to tie the score at 73-73 with 1:28 left. CSU failed to score and Detroit took over, working for the last second shot which proved to be the winning margin.

Dorie Murrey had 21 points to lead Detroit. Lonnie Wright paced Colorado State, ranked 18th in United Press International's college basketball poll, with 23 points. Sonny Bustion, who was the only player to foul out, scored 18.

Maryland Players Honor Hurler Chance

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dean Chance, Los Angeles Angels' right-hander, will be honored Jan. 11 as the Major League Pitcher of the Year at the 11th annual Tops in Sports banquet sponsored by the Maryland Professional Baseball Players Association.

Already designated winner of the Cy Young Memorial Award, Chance won 20 games while losing nine last season and led the American League with 11 shutouts and a 1.65 earned run average.

All's Quiet on AFA Front As Falcons Take a Holiday

With the space of two and a half weeks between games, the Air Force basketball team is resting up for the rugged schedule ahead and taking time for infrequent visits home during the holiday season. This year even the freshmen have been allowed to leave the Academy for Christmas.

So about the only activity this week around the sprawling AFA is the work of Coach Bob Spear as he makes plans for his team's upcoming three-game road trip which will carry the Falcons into Arkansas, Nebraska and North Dakota before returning to Colorado for the next home contest.

The Cadets next will be in action against Arkansas State at Jonesboro, Ark., Dec. 30, and then on the following Saturday they'll travel on to meet Creighton and wind up the trip with a visit to Grand Forks to meet North Dakota University, Jan. 4.

And all the while, the Falcons will be pointing for a winning record coming back to the AFA gym, where they will entertain Denver University in the next home test, Jan. 9. They broke for the holidays with a 3-2 record — including victories in their last two outings against Big Eight Conference opponents Missouri and Iowa State. The other win was against Carroll in the opener and losses were College in the opener and losses were both in the Mile High Classic in Denver against Colorado State University and Colorado U.

Admittedly in a rebuilding year, Spear has experimented with several combinations of upperclassmen, in an attempt to come up with a smooth functioning five to carry the load throughout the remainder of the year.

And off the performances in the last two games, it appears as if he might have found the right combo. "Up - fronters" Sam Peshut (6-5), Ed Sullivan (6-4), and Fred Budinger (6-4), clicked in the Missouri and Iowa State wins, with the aid of back courtmen Scott Etnyre and Jerry Yankee.

The pleasing aspect of this group to the Air Force coaches is that none are seniors. All are juniors with the exception of Budinger who is a soph. Budinger won a starting assignment in the third game, and has been a mainstay ever since.

Balanced scoring, always a goal of most cage coaches, has been the order of the day for the Falcons. In fact, only 11 points separate the top four scorers, with all four averaging in double figures.

Yankee leads the point parade with 67 points and a 13.4 average through the first five games. Right behind him is Sullivan with 63 and a 12.6 mean, Etnyre with 57 and 11.4 and Budinger with 56 and 11.2. Peshut, who has come on strong in the past two games, has netted 44 points and a respectable 8.8 average.

Add to these figurse the fact that each of these five has been the leading scorer in one of the five games — and that's balance!

Spear's 12-man squad — which has disbanded for Christmas — will regroup at Blytheville, AFB, Ark., on Dec. 27. The squad will motor to Jonesboro the following day for two days' practice before the Arkansas State clash. The team will headquarter at the Holiday Inn.

In other limited activity until the first of the year, two AFA gymnastics participants will journey to warmer climate this month to engage in year-end competition. They are Lt. Gregor Weiss, freshman gym coach, and Cadet Terry Higgins, one of the Academy's all-time great gymnastics performers.

Weiss, who recently competed in the Olympics at Tokyo as a member of the United States' gymnastics team, will spend his holiday season at the International Tryouts being held in Sarasota, Fla., Dec. 26-31. From the tryouts, the United States will select the best performers to compete against foreign teams that visit, the U.S. next year. In addition, a three - man team will be selected for later competition in England and France.

The event is being sponsored by the National Gymnastics Clinic, and is open to all amateur athletes.

Higgins, a member of the varsity gymnastics team, will compete in the East vs. West All-Star Meet being held in Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 27, in conjunction with the Western Gymnastics Clinic. Higgins, now a junior, was a sensational performer last year as a sophomore on the parallel and high bars. In Tucson, he will compete in those same two events as well as the long horse. Joining him for the trip will be Capt. Carl Schwenzfeier, the Air Force gymnastics coach, who will be instructing at the clinic.

Dickens Joins Ranks Of Unemployed Coaches

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Phil Dickens, whose seven-year tenure at Indiana failed to lift the Hoosiers out of the Big Ten doldrums, has joined Wayne Hardin, Bill Barnes and John Stiegman among the major coaching casualties of the 1964 college football season.

Dickens, who learned his football at Tennessee under the late Gen. Robert Neyland and took over at Indiana in 1958, resigned his $17,500 a year post Tuesday and accepted a job as general manager of Hoosier off-campus activities.

His departure left four 1965 vacancies among major college teams. Navy, UCLA and Pennsylvania also are seeking new coaches. Hardin quit as the Middies' boss after failing to land an assistant athletic directorship at the Naval Academy. Barnes, anticipating the ax at UCLA, bowed out before the Bruins' athletic board could fire him. Stiegman was sacked at Penn.

The four schools have indicated there will be no hirings until the National Collegiate Athletic Association meets next month in Chicago.

More than a dozen other changes have been made since the end of the regular season. Hank Foldberg of Texas A&M and Bob Gibson of Bowling Green stepped out to devote full time as athletic directors. Gene Stallings, a Bear Bryant aide at Alabama last season, replaced Foldberg and Doyt Perry took over for Gibson.

Dr. Eddie Anderson,, dean of college coaches, resigned at Holy Cross after a 21-year reign. Mel Massucco replaced him. Bobby Dobbs, who coached Calgary of the Canadian professional league last season, took over at Texas Western after Warren Harper departed. Chelo Huerta left Wichita State and hooked on at Parsons, Iowa.

Davidson is looking for a successor to Bill Dole. Lehigh, Dayton and Bowdoin are among the other schools with openings.

CHSAA Begins Planning On State Cage Tourney

DENVER (UPI)— The Colorado High School Activities Association already is busy at work planning for the 1965 state high school basketball tournament which will be held March 11-13 in Denver.

Officials, however, will have to contend only with 24 teams instead of the 40 which took part in last year's action.

The association was able to reduce the number in the finals by cutting the number of classifications in the state from five to three—Class AAA, AA, and A.

The Class AAA field will consist of champions of the Denver Prep, Centennial, Jefferson County, Northern, Skyline, South Central and Southwestern Leagues and the winner of a Will Rogers - Southern League playoff.

Class AA will be made up of the Metropolitan, Northeastern, Northwestern, Pikes Peak, Southern Peaks, Weld County, and two teams from the Gunnison Valley League.

In Cass A, 16 subdistrict tournaments will be held followed by district tournaments and then the finals.

Coaches Slate Grid Workouts

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Both Northern and Southern coaches planned afternoon workouts today in preparation for Saturday's Blue-Gray football game.

Blue and Gray mentors put their respective squads through wide-ranging drills Tuesday as they neared the deadline for forming teams out of their multi-college charges.

Despite the short length of time available for preparation, head coaches for both sides seemed satisfied with their progress.

Coach Paul Davis of Mississippi State described his Grays Tuesday as "a fine group, fine players."

The opinion of North Coach Murray Warmath of Minnesota was similar. He said, "I think our guys should play a real good game."

All-City Team Program Slated

A spokesman for Channel 13 KRDO-TV has announced that the station will carry a 15-minute telecast introducing area coaches and players connected with the Gazette Telegraph - KRDO All City Football Team, which was announced last month.

The program, which was taped earlier, will be seen on the local channel at approximately 3:40 p.m. Dec. 31, following the afternoon movie.

Browns Will Run -- McPeak

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Washington's Bill McPeak, one of the NFL coaches who met both Baltimore and Cleveland in the regular season, thinks the Browns will run at the Colts Sunday and make things interesting in the title game.

"Cleveland's Jim Brown keeps them in the ball game," said McPeak in Washington. "He really can do the job. I think you have to run at Baltimore, but you need two to do that. Ernie Green is a vastly underrated back. It could be very interesting."

However, McPeak also sees perils for the Browns if they try to pass against the Colts' front four.

"Baltimore likes to turn loose that front four," said McPeak. "They turn them loose and often drop the linebackers and play one, like Cleveland. It's tough to pass against them except for screen and what we call delay flares."

Cleveland beat Washington twice, 27-13 and 34-24, during the National Football League season. Baltimore thumped the Redskins 45-17 in the final game.

"We played Cleveland twice when we were at full strength," said McPeak. "In the first game we outplayed them except for fumbles. In the second game we played our poorest defensive game of the year. Still,, Sonny Jurgensen got hot in the second half and passed for something like 240 yards.

"Against Baltimore were were minus two regular secondary man — Lonnie Sanders and Jim Steffen. Then we lost Charley Taulor in the third quarter. Until we lost Taylor we were giving them all they could handle. But when they finaly broke loose we haven't seen an avalanche like that all year."

McPeak said Baltimore red dogs about 20 to 25 times a game compared to Cleveland's more conservative eight or 10 times. Both did a good job of pass blocking.

"Jim Brown is in a class by himself," said McPeak. "So is John Unitas. Paul Warfield and Gary Collins have come on to match Baltimore's receivers. It should be a real good ball game. Baltimore probably has the edge in the defensive secondary and have a more diversified defense."

North Schedules Mixed Defense Against Pass

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Coaches for the North squad in the Christmas Day all-star football game are planning a mixed defense for the South strong-armed passers and fast receivers.

It's a combination man-to-man and zone defense and a lot of the burden will fall on Michigan State's Herman Johnson, a 6-foot-4 defensive specialist with range, speed and size.

North coaches regard Johnson as probably the only player who will be able to stay with the South's Bob Hayes of Florida A&M, the world's fastest human who won two gold medals in the Olympics.

than on man to watch."

of Notre Dame says Johnson barely missed qualifying for the Olympics himself — in the hurdles. "He's fast," Parseghian says.

Coach Paul Ditzel of Army also is worried about Hayes. But he says, "we have more like to throw to," Dietzel said.

He had in mind Jerry Rhome, the South's record shattering passer from Tulsa and Navy's Skip Orr.

"Orr is a fine receiver and he's the guy (Roger) Staubach likes to throw to," Dietzel said.

Staubach is the South's starting quarterback.

North coaches have another vexing problem to worry about — finding someone to kick off. Says Parseghian:

"It's hard to believe but we don't have anybody who kicked off for his team."

Parseghian got several players taking a kick-off cram course.

But the North's use of the crying towel neglects to mention the potent offense it will mount, headed by Heisman Trophy winner John Huarte of Notre Dame at quarterback. In fact, the North is so rich in quarterbacks that Rollie Stichweh, Army's quarterback, has been converted to flankerback.

Richie Badar of Indiana will alternate with Huarte. The rest of the backfield is Gene Foster of Arizona State and Steve Murphy of Northwestern.

Poor Pats Must Send Back Cash

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Patriots made a sad announcement today. The American Football league team will start processing ticket refunds for the championship game it didn't make next Monday.

General Manager and Coach Mike Holovak said refund processing was put off until Monday to avoid clashing with the regular crush of Christmas mail.

Patrons who purchased tickets, excepting season ticket holders, are asked to mail in their tickets for a refund. Holovak said season ticket holders will be contacted directly.

The Patriots sold thousands of tickets to the AFL championship playoff with San Diego Dec. 26 but they lost out on a title game berth when they were beaten 24-14 by Buffalo last Sunday.

Phil Dickens, whose seven-year tenure at Indiana failed to lift the Hoosiers out of the Big Ten doldrums, has joined Wayne Hardin, Bill Barnes and John Stiegman among the major coaching casualties of the 1964 college football season.

Dickens, who learned his football at Tennessee under the late Gen. Robert Neyland and took over at Indiana in 1958, resigned his $17,500 a year post Tuesday and accepted a job as general manager of Hoosier off-campus activities.

His departure left four 1965 vacancies among major college teams. Navy, UCLA and Pennsylvania also are seeking new coaches. Hardin quit as the Middies' boss after failing to land an assistant athletic directorship at the Naval Academy. Barnes, anticipating the ax at UCLA, bowed out before the Bruins' athletic board could fire him. Stiegman was sacked at Penn.

The four schools have indicated there will be no hirings until the National Collegiate Athletic Association meets next month in Chicago.

More than a dozen other changes have been made since the end of the regular season. Hank Foldberg of Texas A&M and Bob Gibson of Bowling Green stepped out to devote full time as athletic directors. Gene Stallings, a Bear Bryant aide at Alabama last season, replaced Foldberg and Doyt Perry took over for Gibson.

Dr. Eddie Anderson,, dean of college coaches, resigned at Holy Cross after a 21-year reign. Mel Massucco replaced him. Bobby Dobbs, who coached Calgary of the Canadian professional league last season, took over at Texas Western after Warren Harper departed. Chelo Huerta left Wichita State and hooked on at Parsons, Iowa.

Davidson is looking for a successor to Bill Dole. Lehigh, Dayton and Bowdoin are among the other schools with openings.

CHSAA Begins Planning On State Cage Tourney

DENVER (UPI)— The Colorado High School Activities Association already is busy at work planning for the 1965 state high school basketball tournament which will be held March 11-13 in Denver.

Officials, however, will have to contend only with 24 teams instead of the 40 which took part in last year's action.

The association was able to reduce the number in the finals by cutting the number of classifications in the state from five to three—Class AAA, AA, and A.

The Class AAA field will consist of champions of the Denver Prep, Centennial, Jefferson County, Northern, Skyline, South Central and Southwestern Leagues and the winner of a Will Rogers - Southern League playoff.

Class AA will be made up of the Metropolitan, Northeastern, Northwestern, Pikes Peak, Southern Peaks, Weld County, and two teams from the Gunnison Valley League.

In Cass A, 16 subdistrict tournaments will be held followed by district tournaments and then the finals.

1964 Skiers Hold Practices At Vail Camp

VAIL, Colo. (UPI)— A total of 102 skiers, including nine members of the U.S. 1964 Olympic ski team, were hard at work today at the National Alpine Training camp at Vail.

Olympic double medal-winner Jean Saubert of Oregon State University checked into the camp Monday. The camp will last until Jan. 1 when a three-day ski competition winds up events.

There were 74 men and 28 women at the camp, including six members of the men's Olympic team and three members of the women's team.

National Alpine coach Bob Beattie of the University of Colorado, who coached the Olympic team, is in charge of the camp. Working with him are coaches Chuck Ferries of Seattle, Jim Gaddis of Salt Lake City; John Cress of Wyoming University; Sven Wilk of Western State (Colo.); Marv Melville of Utah; and Willy Schaeffler of Denver University.

Coaches Slate Grid Workouts

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Both Northern and Southern coaches planned afternoon workouts today in preparation for Saturday's Blue-Gray football game.

Blue and Gray mentors put their respective squads through wide-ranging drills Tuesday as they neared the deadline for forming teams out of their multi-college charges.

Despite the short length of time available for preparation, head coaches for both sides seemed satisfied with their progress.

Coach Paul Davis of Mississippi State described his Grays Tuesday as "a fine group, fine players."

The opinion of North Coach Murray Warmath of Minnesota was similar. He said, "I think our guys should play a real good game."

All-City Team Program Slated

A spokesman for Channel 13 KRDO-TV has announced that the station will carry a 15-minute telecast introducing area coaches and players connected with the Gazette Telegraph - KRDO All City Football Team, which was announced last month.

The program, which was taped earlier, will be seen on the local channel at approximately 3:40 p.m. Dec. 31, following the afternoon movie.

Integration Steps Taken By Parishes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — As Christmas approaches, a pilot program linking a largely Negro Roman Catholic parish in North Philadelphia and a white parish in suburban Manoa is generating a spirit of joy, sharing and thankfulness.

The latest step in the program, which began two weeks ago, was an exchange of children's choirs Tuesday between the Sacred Heart parish in Manoa and St. Elizabeth's in North Philadelphia.

The Rev. Philip J .Dowling, executive secretary of the Archbishop's Commission on Human Relations, sponsoring the program, said the mothers of the Sacred Heart parish "feel their children are learning about children who are less fortunate."

"They feel their children are learning to be thankful for what they have," said Father Dowling. "The real goal of the program is to further the idea of sharing, to enable people to really get to know each other."

Earlier, the Sacred Heart parish had taken up an offering to purchase food certificates for needy families at St. Elizabeth's. Christmas baskets also were made from food collected by the children in the Sacred Heart School.

The Rev. John J. McHale, pastor of St. Elizabeth's, said there was a "tremendous emotional reaction" when the parishioners heard about the gifts of food. "Some began crying with joy," he said.

"We've always tried to take care of our own," Father McHale said, "but most of these people are very, very poor. It means a lot when people care about one another.

The parishes also have arranged an exchange of family visits, basketball games between the parish schools, and a mutual Holy Name Mass.

Despite the poverty of many of its members, St. Elizabeth's will exchange poor-box donations with Sacred Heart to do its share for any unfortunate Sacred Heart parishioners.

A similar program is under way in Chester, Pa., scene of civil-rights demonstrations during the past year.

The predominantly white parish of St. Michael's and the largely Negro parish of the Immaculate Heart of Mary have started a Christmas exchange program and plan to continue the project into 1965.

"AMICUS CURIAE AWARD" — Denver lawyer Albert B. Logan, who formerly practiced law in Colorado Springs for 25 years, was named recipient of the "Amicus Curiae Award" at the 1964 convention of the National Association of Municipal Judges in Los Angeles. The award was granted on the basis of "outstanding leadership as a founder and only executive director of this now international association. Pictured presenting a symbolic gavel to Logan at an awards luncheon in the Ambassador Hotel's Cocoanut Grove is NAMJ President Claude M. Owens of Anaheim (left), with Denver municipal judge Dan D. For some time now we've been puzzled by an apparent behavior reversal that hits many couples soon after engagemnt. Letters from girls complained that their fiances had grown "cold" since slipping their rings on their fingers, while engaged men expressed shock at their fiancees" new aggressiveness.

We couldn't explain why this reversal of traditional roles occurred, so we took our concern to our favorite expert in the field of courtship and marriage.

Dr. James Peterson, author of "Education for Marriage," and an old friend from Walt's alma mater, the University of Southern California.

Dr. Peterson smiled his familiar slow grin and nodded his head. "This conflict is a familiar one, an dit has its roots in the very different attitudes of American men and American women toward sex

"A number of studies have established the fact that boys have their maximum premarital sexual activity, not with girls they know and love, but with casual acquaintances and outright pick-ups whom they can 'use' and then forget without any sense of responsibility for the girls' future welfare.

"But when a boy finds himself deeply emotionally involved with a girl and he's thinking of marrying her, he tends to keep their lovemaking within conservative limits."

Dr. Peterson paused, then continued. "Girls, on the other hand, have just the opposite kind of feeling. They don't want to pet or be close to a boy they know only casually. But as they become more and more emotionally involved with a boy, thy feel more and more free to express themselves physically with that boy.

These differences in male and female attitudes result in a very strange contradictory pattern. In terms of maximum sexual activity, a boy is much more likely to go to bed with a casual pick-up than he is with his fiancee.

A girl on the other hand is just the opposite. She doesn't want to have anything to do with a casual acquainance. But with her engaged partner, she's likely to feel, 'We're already one in so many ways, why not sexually, too?' — and melt.

"Now, do you see the result of this attitude conflict between engaged men and women? Many women feel their fiances are acting 'cold' and 'neglectful' when the men are simply holding themselves back and obeying a 'hands off' policy out of love and respect.

"On the other hand, men often fear that their fiancees are unchaste or overly sexually aggressive when the women are merely following a natural instinct to express their feelings physically to the men they love."

Well, Dr. Peterson's explanation clarifies a confusing pattern.

Put very simply, men and women have a differnt attitude toward premarital sex. Understand the attitude of your sex, and the very different attitude of the opposite sex, and you'll be better able to deal with the problems of courtship and engagement. Just keep in mind that each is trying to show his love for the other in his own way!

Judy Gets Permission To Visit Children

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — A judge has granted Judy Garland permission to have her two children visit her in New York for the holidays. But there's a hitch: Sid Luft has them.

Luft is Miss Garland's estranged husband. The two are fighting over custody of Lorna, 12, and Joseph, 9, who are now assigned to their mother's technical custody at her home in nearby Brentwood.

Judge Edward R. Brand ruled Tuesday that Miss Garland's housekeeper could take them to join her in New York for the holidays. Then he learned they weren't home.

"I want to know where he is and where he has had the children," he told Luft's attorney, who said he didn't know Luft's whereabouts.

Judge Brand said Luft had violated his visitation rights by not returning the children to their home after taking them for a weekend outing. The judge said he would ask the sheriff to help him locate the children if they weren't returned to the Brentwood home promptly.

Brutality at Training Camp Is Investigated

OLDENBURG, Germany (AP) — The West German Army has disclosed a second case of training camp brutality and says disciplinary action is being taken against instructors of a paratroop unit at Wildeshausen, near Oldenburg.

Gen. Ulrich de Maiziere, arm commander-in-chief, said recruits at Wildeshausen were kicked in the stomach or forced to eat stinging nettles and one recruit who didn't like alcohol was forced to get drunk.

Similar incidents last year in a paratroop unit in Nagold, South Germany, aroused bitter criticism of army training methods. One lieutenant was sentenced to six months in jail.

Santa Will Get To Their House After All

MARLBORO, N.J. (AP) — "I guess Santa Claus will get to our house after all," this township's unsalaried mayor said Tuesday.

Mayor Walter C. Grubb Jr. won election last summer on a campaign platform which included a promise not to accept a salary. The mayor of this Monmouth County community of 8,000 usually received $1,000 a year.

Last July, a month after he was sworn in, and six days after his wife gave birth to their sixth child, Grubb was laid off his job as an electronics engineer with the Radio Corp. of America.

Because of various technicalities Grubb had to go through three elections before he was certified as mayor. When he lost his paying job he declared 'after all those elections, you can bet I won't move from this township until I get the job done that I promised all these people who voted for me."

So Grubb, 38, began job hunting while the family lived on his layoff pay, savings, and a $50-a-week unemployment check.

'The local people were wonderful. Farmers even brought produce and things to the house," Grubb said. Well-wishers across the country sent him letters.

Finally, on Dec. 14, Grubb started a full-time, paying job as an engineer, but he didn't tell anyone.

The secret came out Monday night at a Township Council meeting when a resident congratulated the mayor. A number of constituents knew about the mayor's secret, it developed.

One man told Grubb that a whole busload of people saw him leaving for work one morning last week. "He said they all cheered because the mayor had a job," Grubb recalled.

"I had wanted to keep it quiet a little while longer," the mayor explained, adding "I wanted to get adjusted to my new job before achieving any notoriety in it."

Italian Parliament Still Deadlocked

ROME (AP) —The Communists threw their big bloc of votes to Socialist Pietro Nenni today, and two rightist parties backed Christian Democrat Giovanni Leone. But neither won the parliamentary majority necessary for election as president of Italy to succeed Antonio Segni who resigned after being paralyzed by a stroke.

The 13th ballot in the Italian Parliament this morning carried the election into an unprecedented second week with no end to the deadlock in sight.

Leone still led but dropped from 401 votes to 393. He had no chance of reaching the 482 needed unless he could woo back the votes of Christian Democrat dissidents and the support of the Democratic Socialists, who are casting blank ballots.

The Communist backing shot Nenni into second place with 351, but he had no chance of the majority even if every leftist party rallied to him.

Communist Sen. Umberto Terracini had held second place through the 12th ballot Tuesday with his party's solid 250-vote support. Nenni was a latecomer, entering the lists only on the 10th ballot Monday.

Integration Steps Taken By Parishes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — As Christmas approaches, a pilot program linking a largely Negro Roman Catholic parish in North Philadelphia and a white parish in suburban Manoa is generating a spirit of joy, sharing and thankfulness.

The latest step in the program, which began two weeks ago, was an exchange of children's choirs Tuesday between the Sacred Heart parish in Manoa and St. Elizabeth's in North Philadelphia.

The Rev. Philip J .Dowling, executive secretary of the Archbishop's Commission on Human Relations, sponsoring the program, said the mothers of the Sacred Heart parish "feel their children are learning about children who are less fortunate."

"They feel their children are learning to be thankful for what they have," said Father Dowling. "The real goal of the program is to further the idea of sharing, to enable people to really get to know each other."

Earlier, the Sacred Heart parish had taken up an offering to purchase food certificates for needy families at St. Elizabeth's. Christmas baskets also were made from food collected by the children in the Sacred Heart School.

The Rev. John J. McHale, pastor of St. Elizabeth's, said there was a "tremendous emotional reaction" when the parishioners heard about the gifts of food. "Some began crying with joy," he said.

"We've always tried to take care of our own," Father McHale said, "but most of these people are very, very poor. It means a lot when people care about one another.

The parishes also have arranged an exchange of family visits, basketball games between the parish schools, and a mutual Holy Name Mass.

Despite the poverty of many of its members, St. Elizabeth's will exchange poor-box donations with Sacred Heart to do its share for any unfortunate Sacred Heart parishioners.

A similar program is under way in Chester, Pa., scene of civil-rights demonstrations during the past year.

The predominantly white parish of St. Michael's and the largely Negro parish of the Immaculate Heart of Mary have started a Christmas exchange program and plan to continue the project into 1965.

"AMICUS CURIAE AWARD" — Denver lawyer Albert B. Logan, who formerly practiced law in Colorado Springs for 25 years, was named recipient of the "Amicus Curiae Award" at the 1964 convention of the National Association of Municipal Judges in Los Angeles. The award was granted on the basis of "outstanding leadership as a founder and only executive director of this now international association. Pictured presenting a symbolic gavel to Logan at an awards luncheon in the Ambassador Hotel's Cocoanut Grove is NAMJ President Claude M. Owens of Anaheim (left), with Denver municipal judge Dan D. Diamond assisting. Logan currently serves in the office of the Solicitor, U.S. Department of the Interior.

For some time now we've been puzzled by an apparent behavior reversal that hits many couples soon after engagemnt. Letters from girls complained that their fiances had grown "cold" since slipping their rings on their fingers, while engaged men expressed shock at their fiancees" new aggressiveness.

We couldn't explain why this reversal of traditional roles occurred, so we took our concern to our favorite expert in the field of courtship and marriage.

Dr. James Peterson, author of "Education for Marriage," and an old friend from Walt's alma mater, the University of Southern California.

Dr. Peterson smiled his familiar slow grin and nodded his head. "This conflict is a familiar one, an dit has its roots in the very different attitudes of American men and American women toward sex

"A number of studies have established the fact that boys have their maximum premarital sexual activity, not with girls they know and love, but with casual acquaintances and outright pick-ups whom they can 'use' and then forget without any sense of responsibility for the girls' future welfare.

"But when a boy finds himself deeply emotionally involved with a girl and he's thinking of marrying her, he tends to keep their lovemaking within conservative limits."

Dr. Peterson paused, then continued. "Girls, on the other hand, have just the opposite kind of feeling. They don't want to pet or be close to a boy they know only casually. But as they become more and more emotionally involved with a boy, thy feel more and more free to express themselves physically with that boy.

These differences in male and female attitudes result in a very strange contradictory pattern. In terms of maximum sexual activity, a boy is much more likely to go to bed with a casual pick-up than he is with his fiancee.

A girl on the other hand is just the opposite. She doesn't want to have anything to do with a casual acquainance. But with her engaged partner, she's likely to feel, 'We're already one in so many ways, why not sexually, too?' — and melt.

"Now, do you see the result of this attitude conflict between engaged men and women? Many women feel their fiances are acting 'cold' and 'neglectful' when the men are simply holding themselves back and obeying a 'hands off' policy out of love and respect.

"On the other hand, men often fear that their fiancees are unchaste or overly sexually aggressive when the women are merely following a natural instinct to express their feelings physically to the men they love."

Well, Dr. Peterson's explanation clarifies a confusing pattern.

Put very simply, men and women have a differnt attitude toward premarital sex. Understand the attitude of your sex, and the very different attitude of the opposite sex, and you'll be better able to deal with the problems of courtship and engagement. Just keep in mind that each is trying to show his love for the other in his own way!

Judy Gets Permission To Visit Children

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — A judge has granted Judy Garland permission to have her two children visit her in New York for the holidays. But there's a hitch: Sid Luft has them.

Luft is Miss Garland's estranged husband. The two are fighting over custody of Lorna, 12, and Joseph, 9, who are now assigned to their mother's technical custody at her home in nearby Brentwood.

Judge Edward R. Brand ruled Tuesday that Miss Garland's housekeeper could take them to join her in New York for the holidays. Then he learned they weren't home.

"I want to know where he is and where he has had the children," he told Luft's attorney, who said he didn't know Luft's whereabouts.

Judge Brand said Luft had violated his visitation rights by not returning the children to their home after taking them for a weekend outing. The judge said he would ask the sheriff to help him locate the children if they weren't returned to the Brentwood home promptly.

Brutality at Training Camp Is Investigated

OLDENBURG, Germany (AP) — The West German Army has disclosed a second case of training camp brutality and says disciplinary action is being taken against instructors of a paratroop unit at Wildeshausen, near Oldenburg.

Gen. Ulrich de Maiziere, arm commander-in-chief, said recruits at Wildeshausen were kicked in the stomach or forced to eat stinging nettles and one recruit who didn't like alcohol was forced to get drunk.

Similar incidents last year in a paratroop unit in Nagold, South Germany, aroused bitter criticism of army training methods. One lieutenant was sentenced to six months in jail.

Santa Will Get To Their House After All

MARLBORO, N.J. (AP) — "I guess Santa Claus will get to our house after all," this township's unsalaried mayor said Tuesday.

Mayor Walter C. Grubb Jr. won election last summer on a campaign platform which included a promise not to accept a salary. The mayor of this Monmouth County community of 8,000 usually received $1,000 a year.

Last July, a month after he was sworn in, and six days after his wife gave birth to their sixth child, Grubb was laid off his job as an electronics engineer with the Radio Corp. of America.

Because of various technicalities Grubb had to go through three elections before he was certified as mayor. When he lost his paying job he declared 'after all those elections, you can bet I won't move from this township until I get the job done that I promised all these people who voted for me."

So Grubb, 38, began job hunting while the family lived on his layoff pay, savings, and a $50-a-week unemployment check.

'The local people were wonderful. Farmers even brought produce and things to the house," Grubb said. Well-wishers across the country sent him letters.

Finally, on Dec. 14, Grubb started a full-time, paying job as an engineer, but he didn't tell anyone.

The secret came out Monday night at a Township Council meeting when a resident congratulated the mayor. A number of constituents knew about the mayor's secret, it developed.

One man told Grubb that a whole busload of people saw him leaving for work one morning last week. "He said they all cheered because the mayor had a job," Grubb recalled.

"I had wanted to keep it quiet a little while longer," the mayor explained, adding "I wanted to get adjusted to my new job before achieving any notoriety in it."

Italian Parliament Still Deadlocked

ROME (AP) —The Communists threw their big bloc of votes to Socialist Pietro Nenni today, and two rightist parties backed Christian Democrat Giovanni Leone. But neither won the parliamentary majority necessary for election as president of Italy to succeed Antonio Segni who resigned after being paralyzed by a stroke.

The 13th ballot in the Italian Parliament this morning carried the election into an unprecedented second week with no end to the deadlock in sight.

Leone still led but dropped from 401 votes to 393. He had no chance of reaching the 482 needed unless he could woo back the votes of Christian Democrat dissidents and the support of the Democratic Socialists, who are casting blank ballots.

The Communist backing shot Nenni into second place with 351, but he had no chance of the majority even if every leftist party rallied to him.

Communist Sen. Umberto Terracini had held second place through the 12th ballot Tuesday with his party's solid 250-vote support. Nenni was a latecomer, entering the lists only on the 10th ballot Monday.

Efforts to desalt water go back many centuries. In 48 B.C., Julius Caesar needed fresh water for his troops during the siege of Alexandria. He used primitive solar evaporators to separate salt from sea water.

Art West towed his pick-up to Canon City last week. A week or so ago, he was returning to his home in Canon City and lost control of the pick-up when trying to avoid hitting some cattle which were in the road. As a result, the vehicle flipped over, doing quite a bit of damage to it , but the driver received just a small laceration on his head. It just so happens, that same evening was when he won the new car at the Florence Elks Club.

Ford's Candidacy Said Improvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John V. Lindsay of New York, spokesman for a group describing themselves as moderate-liberal House Republicans, says Rep. Gerald R. Ford's candidacy for the House GOP leadership "is a general improvement."

But Lindsay said his group, known as the Wednesday Club, took no position in the leadership fight between Ford of Michigan and Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, the present leader.

Lindsay said following Tuesday's meeting that his personal opinion is that Ford "presents more of an image of a new Republican than the Old Guard."

Lindsay said his group, composed of about 20 of the 140 House Republicans, may support a candidate of its own, such as Rep. Robert T. Stafford of Vermont. Lindsay said that Wednesday Club members were not acting as a unit and that there were differences of opinion.

Council Okays 1965 Budget As 'Emergency' Measure

The Colorado Springs City Council approved the 1965 tax levy and appropriation ordinance Tuesday as an emergency measure.

As a result of action earlier this month in rescinding the 2 per cent sales tax and establishing a tax levy of 17.44 mills, it was necessary to pass the appropriation ordinance on an emergency basis.

The total general city budget for tax supported departments was fixed at $4,811,755. This compares with the 1964 budget of $4,557,170 and the current tax levy of 17.11 mills. The 1965 levy is just .34 mills higher than the current levy.

Also included in the adopted ordinance is a budget of $33,761,600 for next year for the Department of Public Utilities and a $1,872,325 appropriation for self supporting departments and funds of the city.

When council rescinded the sales tax less than two weeks ago, it was also determined that the property tax levy should be increased slightly.

It was further determined that capital improvements could not be financed through a mill levy alone.

As a result, capital improvements were practically excluded from the 1965 general city budget. This budget is primarily for governmental operating expenses.

The new property levy of 17.44 mills, based on an assessed valuation of $131,795,320, should net the city $2,252,770 next year.

This compares with an estimated net to the city this year of $2,068,750, based on a 17.10 mill levy and an assessed valuation of $123,435,890.

The rest of the general city revenue next year will come from miscellaneous licenses and taxes and $800,000 from Utilities in lieu of taxes.

Included in the 1965 budget are merit salary adjustments and provisions to hire 18 additional men in the police department, an addition to the Planning Department and extra personnel for the Inspections Department.

Merit increases have been made to hold qualified personnel and after careful study and recommendations by the personnel director, and on the basis of a job classification study prepared by the Special Services Section of the Colorado Department of Employment.

Next year's budget also lists $246,835 for capital outlays, but about half of that is to pay for the city's share of the cost of arterial streets, and for partial repayment to Patty Jewett Golf Course for amount borrowed to build flood control reservoir.

Additionally, sizeable amounts listed under capital outlays include motor vehicle replacements for various departments, plus $27,000 for a start to improve the city's fire alarm system.

There are no capital outlay provisions for such things as storm sewers, fire station construction, park improvements in unimproved areas, the city's share of the 1965 improvement district, cooperative sidewalk repairs, a replacement pumper for the fire department and concrete plans for street intersections in older sections of the city.

Biggest single outlay in next year's budget is $1,047,370 for the police department and social investigator, followed by $795,385 for the fire department and $611,855 for the street department.

In next year's $33,761,600 budget for Utilities, there is a total appropriation of $19,629,585 for the water division, $7,440,850 for the electric division $5,800,083 for the gas division, $726,140 for the gas division and $75,000 for the common plant.

The 1964 appropriation for Utilities was $21,562,595, with $8,510,960 of that for the water division.

Next year's increase in the Utilities budget is necessitated by the multi - million dollar Homestake water project, which will insure the city's growth for many years to come. The water division's increase this next year will be more than $11 million above the 1964 appropriation. First water from the Homestake project, a joint venture with the City of Aurora, should reach the city in 1966.

The Utilities Department is self - supporting and next year will contribute to the general city $800,000 in lieu of taxes, which represents the equivalent of more than six mills in taxes.

Next year's total appropriation for other self - supporting departments and funds of the city will amount to $1,872,325. Included in this category are such things as the Patty Jewett Golf Course, airport, Pikes Peak Highway, cemeteries, equipment pool, and Memorial Hospital.

Quiet Christmas Is Planned on Maine Island

By KENNETH H. MORRISON

MONHEGAN ISLAND, Maine (AP) — Dreaming of the quaint Christmas celebration of yesteryear — far from jostling crowds, traffic jams and Santas here, there and everywhere?

If so, take a boat to Monhegan Island where Christmas has the old fashioned, sprightly charm of a Grandma Moses painting.

Monegan, wearing a winter cover of clean snow, is a sunglint in the sea 15 miles off Maine.

In summer, the island bustles with artists, summer residents and tourists. In winter the population shrinks to two dozen. The islanders celebrate Christmas like a large, close family.

Christmas Eve adults and children will set out from their homes across the crusted snow toward the village's non-denominational church, a 100-year-old white clapboard structure, aglow with gaslight and kerosene lamps.

"Everyone who can walk and even the babies who can't walk will be there," says Pastor Gertrude Anderson, a former missionary to the Belgian Congo and Burma.

The islanders come bearing baskets of gifts which they exchange.

At church, there will be readings of the Scriptures, carol singing and an appearance by Santa Claus, not to mention the decorating of the community Christmas tree.

"This year we have a full grown fir tree," says Pastor Anderson.

Monhegan is a picturesque place at Christmas, says the pastor. Its dark green spruce trees are set off and sculptured by white snow.

"It's like a Christmas card," she says.

How do you go about Christmas shopping when you're 15 miles at sea?

Some folk go to the mainland on the boat which runs to the island three days a week from Port Clyde. Small items may be picked up in the village. Mostly, shopping is done through mail order catalogs.

What happens if on the day before Christmas you find you've missed someone on your list?

Too bad. There's no boat on Thursday.

'Plain Republicans' Proposed by Ike

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, warning against classifying Republicans by their place in the political spectrum, told 1,000 guests at a fund-raising dinner here:

"I plead with you, let's become once again just plain Republicans."

Eisenhower was the featured guest at a $50-a-plate dinner Tuesday night honoring California's Sen.-elect George Murphy. Aides said Murphy was faced with last-minute campaign bills which created a deficit.

"We should think less of what divides us and think more of what binds us together," Eisenhower said.

He urged that the GOP "popularize the term 'common sense' and identify it with our party."

Ford's Candidacy Said Improvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John V. Lindsay of New York, spokesman for a group describing themselves as moderate-liberal House Republicans, says Rep. Gerald R. Ford's candidacy for the House GOP leadership "is a general improvement."

But Lindsay said his group, known as the Wednesday Club, took no position in the leadership fight between Ford of Michigan and Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, the present leader.

Lindsay said following Tuesday's meeting that his personal opinion is that Ford "presents more of an image of a new Republican than the Old Guard."

Lindsay said his group, composed of about 20 of the 140 House Republicans, may support a candidate of its own, such as Rep. Robert T. Stafford of Vermont. Lindsay said that Wednesday Club members were not acting as a unit and that there were differences of opinion.

Council Okays 1965 Budget As 'Emergency' Measure

The Colorado Springs City Council approved the 1965 tax levy and appropriation ordinance Tuesday as an emergency measure.

As a result of action earlier this month in rescinding the 2 per cent sales tax and establishing a tax levy of 17.44 mills, it was necessary to pass the appropriation ordinance on an emergency basis.

The total general city budget for tax supported departments was fixed at $4,811,755. This compares with the 1964 budget of $4,557,170 and the current tax levy of 17.11 mills. The 1965 levy is just .34 mills higher than the current levy.

Also included in the adopted ordinance is a budget of $33,761,600 for next year for the Department of Public Utilities and a $1,872,325 appropriation for self supporting departments and funds of the city.

When council rescinded the sales tax less than two weeks ago, it was also determined that the property tax levy should be increased slightly.

It was further determined that capital improvements could not be financed through a mill levy alone.

As a result, capital improvements were practically excluded from the 1965 general city budget. This budget is primarily for governmental operating expenses.

The new property levy of 17.44 mills, based on an assessed valuation of $131,795,320, should net the city $2,252,770 next year.

This compares with an estimated net to the city this year of $2,068,750, based on a 17.10 mill levy and an assessed valuation of $123,435,890.

The rest of the general city revenue next year will come from miscellaneous licenses and taxes and $800,000 from Utilities in lieu of taxes.

Included in the 1965 budget are merit salary adjustments and provisions to hire 18 additional men in the police department, an addition to the Planning Department and extra personnel for the Inspections Department.

Merit increases have been made to hold qualified personnel and after careful study and recommendations by the personnel director, and on the basis of a job classification study prepared by the Special Services Section of the Colorado Department of Employment.

Next year's budget also lists $246,835 for capital outlays, but about half of that is to pay for the city's share of the cost of arterial streets, and for partial repayment to Patty Jewett Golf Course for amount borrowed to build flood control reservoir.

Additionally, sizeable amounts listed under capital outlays include motor vehicle replacements for various departments, plus $27,000 for a start to improve the city's fire alarm system.

There are no capital outlay provisions for such things as storm sewers, fire station construction, park improvements in unimproved areas, the city's share of the 1965 improvement district, cooperative sidewalk repairs, a replacement pumper for the fire department and concrete plans for street intersections in older sections of the city.

Biggest single outlay in next year's budget is $1,047,370 for the police department and social investigator, followed by $795,385 for the fire department and $611,855 for the street department.

In next year's $33,761,660 budget for Utilities, there is a total appropriation of $19,629,585 for the water division, $7,440,850 for the electric division $5,890,083 for the gas division, $726,140 for the gas division and $75,000 for the common plant.

The 1964 appropriation for Utilities was $21,562,595, with $8,510,960 of that for the water division.

Next year's increase in the Utilities budget is necessitated by the multi - million dollar Homestake water project, which will insure the city's growth for many years to come. The water division's increase this next year will be more than $11 million above the 1964 appropriation. First water from the Homestake project, a joint venture with the City of Aurora, should reach the city in 1966.

The Utilities Department is self - supporting and next year will contribute to the general city $800,000 in lieu of taxes, which represents the equivalent of more than six mills in taxes.

Next year's total appropriation for other self - supporting departments and funds of the city will amount to $1,872,325. Included in this category are such things as the Patty Jewett Golf Course, airport, Pikes Peak Highway, cemeteries, equipment pool, and Memorial Hospital.

Quiet Christmas Is Planned on Maine Island

By KENNETH H. MORRISON

MONHEGAN ISLAND, Maine (AP) — Dreaming of the quaint Christmas celebration of yesteryear — far from jostling crowds, traffic jams and Santas here, there and everywhere?

If so, take a boat to Monhegan Island where Christmas has the old fashioned, sprightly charm of a Grandma Moses painting.

Monegan, wearing a winter cover of clean snow, is a sunglint in the sea 15 miles off Maine.

In summer, the island bustles with artists, summer residents and tourists. In winter the population shrinks to two dozen. The islanders celebrate Christmas like a large, close family.

Christmas Eve adults and children will set out from their homes across the crusted snow toward the village's non-denominational church, a 100-year-old white clapboard structure, aglow with gaslight and kerosene lamps.

"Everyone who can walk and even the babies who can't walk will be there," says Pastor Gertrude Anderson, a former missionary to the Belgian Congo and Burma.

The islanders come bearing baskets of gifts which they exchange.

At church, there will be readings of the Scriptures, carol singing and an appearance by Santa Claus, not to mention the decorating of the community Christmas tree.

"This year we have a full grown fir tree," says Pastor Anderson.

Monhegan is a picturesque place at Christmas, says the pastor. Its dark green spruce trees are set off and sculptured by white snow.

"It's like a Christmas card," she says.

How do you go about Christmas shopping when you're 15 miles at sea?

Some folk go to the mainland on the boat which runs to the island three days a week from Port Clyde. Small items may be picked up in the village. Mostly, shopping is done through mail order catalogs.

What happens if on the day before Christmas you find you've missed someone on your list?

Too bad. There's no boat on Thursday.

'Plain Republicans' Proposed by Ike

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, warning against classifying Republicans by their place in the political spectrum, told 1,000 guests at a fund-raising dinner here:

"I plead with you, let's become once again just plain Republicans."

Eisenhower was the featured guest at a $50-a-plate dinner Tuesday night honoring California's Sen.-elect George Murphy. Aides said Murphy was faced with last-minute campaign bills which created a deficit.

"We should think less of what divides us and think more of what binds us together," Eisenhower said.

He urged that the GOP "popularize the term 'common sense' and identify it with our party."

Soviet Union Vetoes Palestine Resolution

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union has cast its 103rd veto in the U.N. Security Council, killing a U.S.-British resolution deploring the fighting on the Israeli-Syrian border last Nov. 13.

Soviet delegate Platon D. Morozov said in Monday's proceedings that the resolution put Syria on the same footing as Israel. The council vote was 8-3, with Czechoslovakia and Morocco voting with the Russians.

Last Thursday the council rejected a Soviet-backed Moroccan resolution condemning Israel for the clsah.

THE PEOPLE OF IZMIR

TURKISH TRIBUTE—A bit of Colorado is now laying at the graveside of the late President Kennedy in Arlington National Cemetery. A Colorado evergreen was sent to the Turkish Embassy in Washington, D.C., from Airman 3.C. Alan D. Wilson, of Ent Air Force Base. Wilson sent the wreath to Washington to be placed at the graveside, "On behalf of the people of Izmir." Mrs. Evelyn McBurney, co-owner of Pikes Peak Floral Co., poses beside the wreath, which was made in her shop.

Ent Airman Arranges for Kennedy Wreath

An airman from Ent Air Force Base has had an evergreen wreath placed on the grave of the late President John F. Kennedy, "on behalf of the people of Izmir."

Airman 3. C. Alan D. Wilson, of the 47th Communications Squadron at Ent, returned from an assignment at an American air base in Turkey some six months ago. While there, some Turkish friends in Izmir asked him to have a wreath placed on the President's grave for Christmas on their behalf.

Last week, Wilson fulfilled his promise when he purchased a large wreath at Pikes Peak Floral, 17 E. Kiowa St., and had it sent to the Turkish Embassy in Washington D. C.

On Tuesday, officials of the Turkish Embassy and the Air Force placed the wreath at the graveside of our departed leader. On the wreath is a large ribbon that reads, "On behalf of the people of Izmir."

Before ordering the wreath, Wilson has corresponded with the Turkish Embassy, requesting that the wreath be laid at the grave before Christmas.

According to Miles and Evelyn McBurney, co-owners of the floral shop, the wreath is made of Colorado evergreen and measures about three feet in diameter.

The 24-year-old airman was stationed with a communications unit while serving from December, 1962 to June, 1964 in Turkey. He enlisted in the Air Force in August, 1962.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector D. Wilson, the airman is a native of Chester, Pa., where he graduated from high school in 1959.

Nautical Gifts Are Welcome For Boaters

United Press International

If you plan to play Santa to a boating friend or relative this Christmas, there are any number of practical — and not so practical—nautical gifts available.

For a few dollars you can gift wrap a life preserver, a first aid kit, a horn or a waterproof flashlight. On the other hand, if you feel in a generous mood-and have the cash—you can make someone happy with a 12-meter yacht.

Among the latter now on the market is the Constellation, which defeated the British 12-meter Sovereign in last September's America's Cup series. The price is about $300,000.

On the more practical side, a folding boarding ladder or a plastic ice chest make ideal gifts. The latter are especially versatile aboard a boat, not only preserving food supplies but serving as a seat and, in an emergency, as a life preserver.

For the outboarder, an extra fuel tank is always welcome. But first be sure and check the type of motor he owns.

Among other items are nautical clothing, a canvas boat cover, one of the new fiberglass tackle boxes, a set of boat flags, a compass, a depth finder, direction finder, binoculars, a boat hook or a spotlight.

Some boaters would appreciate fishing equipment or water skis and a tow rope, but first be sure they have an interest in these sports.

One of the most appreciated items this time of year, especially if your boatman is landlocked by winter weather, is either a book on boating or a subscription to one of the boating magazines.

Another good bet is a gift certificate for whatever amount you want to spend. These usually can be arranged at any marine supply store or boat dealer.

Soviet Union Vetoes Palestine Resolution

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union has cast its 103rd veto in the U.N. Security Council, killing a U.S.-British resolution deploring the fighting on the Israeli-Syrian border last Nov. 13.

Soviet delegate Platon D. Morozov said in Monday's proceedings that the resolution put Syria on the same footing as Israel. The council vote was 8-3, with Czechoslovakia and Morocco voting with the Russians.

Last Thursday the council rejected a Soviet-backed Moroccan resolution condemning Israel for the clsah.

TURKISH TRIBUTE—A bit of Colorado is now laying at the graveside of the late President Kennedy in Arlington National Cemetery. A Colorado evergreen was sent to the Turkish Embassy in Washington, D.C., from Airman 3.C. Alan D. Wilson, of Ent Air Force Base. Wilson sent the wreath to Washington to be placed at the graveside, "On behalf of the people of Izmir." Mrs. Evelyn McBurney, co-owner of Pikes Peak Floral Co., poses beside the wreath, which was made in her shop.

Ent Airman Arranges for Kennedy Wreath

An airman from Ent Air Force Base has had an evergreen wreath placed on the grave of the late President John F. Kennedy, "on behalf of the people of Izmir."

Airman 3. C. Alan D. Wilson, of the 47th Communications Squadron at Ent, returned from an assignment at an American air base in Turkey some six months ago. While there, some Turkish friends in Izmir asked him to have a wreath placed on the President's grave for Christmas on their behalf.

Last week, Wilson fulfilled his promise when he purchased a large wreath at Pikes Peak Floral, 17 E. Kiowa St., and had it sent to the Turkish Embassy in Washington D. C.

On Tuesday, officials of the Turkish Embassy and the Air Force placed the wreath at the graveside of our departed leader. On the wreath is a large ribbon that reads, "On behalf of the people of Izmir."

Before ordering the wreath, Wilson has corresponded with the Turkish Embassy, requesting that the wreath be laid at the grave before Christmas.

According to Miles and Evelyn McBurney, co-owners of the floral shop, the wreath is made of Colorado evergreen and measures about three feet in diameter.

The 24-year-old airman was stationed with a communications unit while serving from December, 1962 to June, 1964 in Turkey. He enlisted in the Air Force in August, 1962.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector D. Wilson, the airman is a native of Chester, Pa., where he graduated from high school in 1959.

Nautical Gifts Are Welcome For Boaters

United Press International

If you plan to play Santa to a boating friend or relative this Christmas, there are any number of practical — and not so practical—nautical gifts available.

For a few dollars you can gift wrap a life preserver, a first aid kit, a horn or a waterproof flashlight. On the other hand, if you feel in a generous mood-and have the cash—you can make someone happy with a 12-meter yacht.

Among the latter now on the market is the Constellation, which defeated the British 12-meter Sovereign in last September's America's Cup series. The price is about $300,000.

On the more practical side, a folding boarding ladder or a plastic ice chest make ideal gifts. The latter are especially versatile aboard a boat, not only preserving food supplies but serving as a seat and, in an emergency, as a life preserver.

For the outboarder, an extra fuel tank is always welcome. But first be sure and check the type of motor he owns.

Among other items are nautical clothing, a canvas boat cover, one of the new fiberglass tackle boxes, a set of boat flags, a compass, a depth finder, direction finder, binoculars, a boat hook or a spotlight.

Some boaters would appreciate fishing equipment or water skis and a tow rope, but first be sure they have an interest in these sports.

One of the most appreciated items this time of year, especially if your boatman is landlocked by winter weather, is either a book on boating or a subscription to one of the boating magazines.

Another good bet is a gift certificate for whatever amount you want to spend. These usually can be arranged at any marine supply store or boat dealer.
